3. In a grate bar and support therefor, the combination of a bridge, a fork depending from each end of said bridge, a pair of studs supporting the forked ends of said bridge, a pair of bearing members depending from said bridge and having a hook-shaped bearing at each side thereof, grate bars adapted to rest in said hook-shaped bearings, a locking plate having a depression therein with a hole in the center thereof with a slot leading from the hole for each of said grate bars, a radial lug formed on each of said grate bars, said locking plate being adapted to be placed over the ends of said grate bars with the grate bars projecting thru the holes in said depressions after said lugs have passed thru the slots leading from the holes in said depressions so as to rotate outside of said depressions on the rotation of said grate bars, said locking plate being adapted to hold said grate bars in said hook shaped bearings during their rotation.

1,506,201. CASEIN GLUE. HENRY L. PRESTHOLDT, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 554,193. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—17.)

2. An adhesive composition made in accordance with the following formula:

	Parts.
Casein	50 to 75
Calcium hydroxide	10 to 20
Sodium phosphate	5 to 15
Sodium hyposulphite	2 to 8
Calcium chloride	2 to 5
Castor oil	1 to 4
Kerosene	2 to 7

1,506,202. CASEIN GLUE. HENRY L. PRESTHOLDT, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 554,195. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—17.)

2. An adhesive composition made in accordance with the following formula:

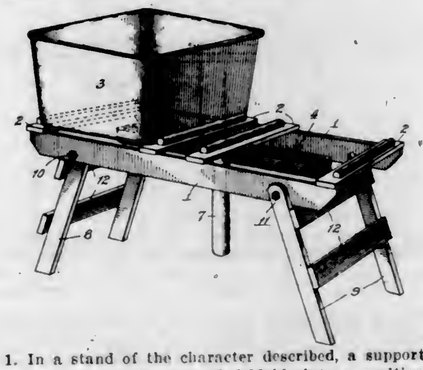
	Parts.
Casein	50 to 75
Dextrine	2 to 8
Starch	3 to 12
Calcium hydroxide	6 to 12
Magnesium oxide	10 to 20
Sodium hydroxide	2 to 8

1,506,203. CASEIN GLUE. HENRY L. PRESTHOLDT, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No 554,196. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—17.)

2. An adhesive composition made in accordance with the following formula:

	Parts.
Casein	50 to 75
Dextrine	2 to 8
Calcium oxide	10 to 20
Sodium fluoride	2 to 10
Sodium chloride	1 to 5
Oil	1 to 4
Resin	1

1,506,204. LIBRARY BOOK SUPPORT AND INDEX. HAYDEN C. SNODDY, Houston, Tex. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,512. 7 Claims. (Cl. 45—53.)

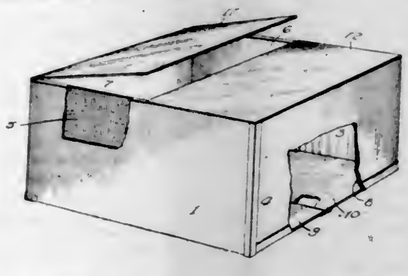


1. In a device of the character described, a book shelf having an upright support at each end, an angle iron extending from one end to the other of said shelf adjacent the rearward upper side thereof, a lever on each support secured to said angle iron, a pivot pin on each lever adjacent said angle iron, flattened rods extending from said angle iron diagonally downward to the forward side of said shelf, means on the forward end of each rod to engage the shelf and means on the rearward end to engage said angle iron, and to be clamped thereto when the latter is rotated by means of said levers.

1,506,205. BRAKE. VILGO V. TORBENSEN, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Vig-Tor Axle Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 12, 1923. Serial No. 638,552. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—78.)

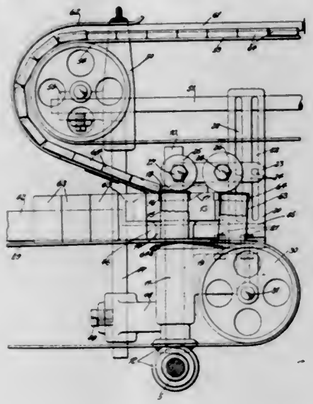
1. In apparatus of the class described, the combination with an axle having a driving shaft projecting therefrom, of a flanged member secured on said shaft, a propeller shaft operatively connected to said flanged member, and a brake drum secured to the flange of said member outwardly of said propeller shaft connection and independently thereof.

1,506,206. WASHTUB STAND. WILLIAM H. VOSS, Davenport, Iowa. Filed Mar. 31, 1922. Serial No. 548,313. 3 Claims. (Cl. 68—35.)



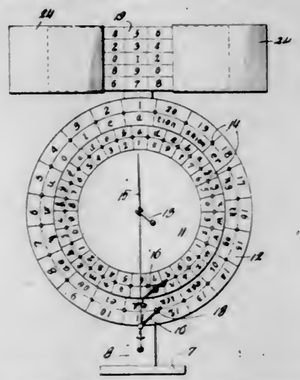
1. In a stand of the character described, a supporting top, legs pivoted thereto and foldable into a position in close proximity to the top, and a drain trough mounted in said top and adapted to receive drainage from a container resting on the top when in use.

1,506,207. FASTENING DEVICE TO BE USED IN CONNECTION WITH MECHANICAL PENCILS, FOUNTAIN PENS, AND THE LIKE. JOHN C. WAHL, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Wahl Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 26, 1922. Serial No. 608,954. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—10.)



2. In a writing instrument a detachable cap, a plate fixed in one end of said cap to close the same, said plate having a hollow cup-like member extending into the interior of said cap, a cup member mounted above said plate and formed with a circumferentially grooved depending projection adapted to extend into said cup-like member, resilient means in the latter to detachably hold said projection therein, said cap member being adapted to receive a securing element and be readily detached from said cap while the instrument is in use.

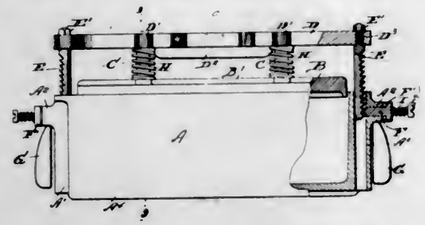
1,506,208. PAPER BOX. JOHN W. WEBB, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 21, 1921. Serial No. 516,585. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—37.)



1. A folded shipping box formed of cellular paperboard having an outer waterproofed facing sheet and comprising four connected side walls, a pair of inner wall sections connected to the top of two opposite side walls, a second pair of inner side wall sections connected to the bottom of the other two opposite side walls, said inner side wall sections being cemented to said side walls, a top pair of closure flaps intermediate of and alternating with said first-mentioned pair of inner side wall sections, and a bottom pair of closure flaps intermediate of and alternating with said second-mentioned pair of inner side wall sections.

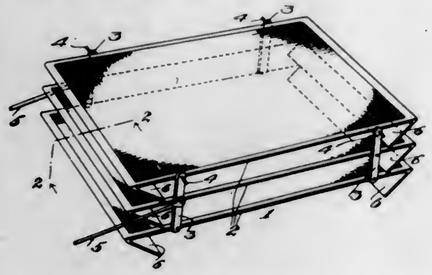
1,506,209. CAPPING MACHINE. ERNEST C. WEHNERT, St. Louis, and MARCUS G. RYDER, Overland, Mo. Filed Nov. 20, 1922. Serial No. 602,046. 12 Claims. (Cl. 113—27.)

1. In a machine of the character described, a chute for guiding caps to an inclined position for engagement with containers, a conveyor for moving the containers to engage the caps in inclined position, means for tilting the containers to an angle of inclination opposite from the angle of inclination of the caps when the containers engage the caps, and a device above said tilting means for pressing the caps upon the containers.



1,506,210. EDUCATIONAL DEVICE. WILLIAM F. WELTY, Cumberland, N. Mex. Filed Oct. 4, 1921. Serial No. 505,356. 2 Claims. (Cl. 35—2.)

1. A device of the character specified comprising a dial rotatably mounted thereon, said dial being provided with a plurality of projecting pins, and a resilient member adapted to brush the pins as the dial revolves, and said resilient member being provided with a recess adapted to receive one of the pins of the dial when the latter comes to a stands till.



1,506,211. HAM BOILER. ALEXANDER WILSON, JAMES WILSON, and ANDREW E. WILSON, Detroit, Mich. Filed Nov. 26, 1923. Serial No. 676,508. 4 Claims. (Cl. 100—57.)

1. In a device of the character described, a kettle provided with a plurality of channels extending downwardly through the walls of the latter, with openings at right angles to the channels to receive and house a plurality of dogs; a telescoping cover for the kettle; a pressure bar having a plurality of ratchet bars fixably secured thereto, adapted to enter the channels provided in the kettle; a plurality of spring actuated dogs adapted to engage the ratchet bars respectively housed in the openings formed in the kettle walls connected with the channels; means for manually releasing said spring actuated dogs from engagement with the ratchet bars; a plurality of springs located between the pressure bar and the cover and means for supporting and guiding the springs.

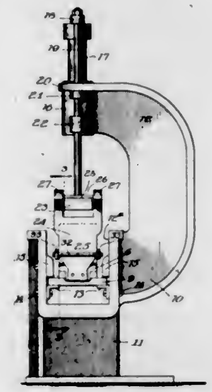
1,506,212. THRASHING MACHINE. FRED W. T. ZOEPKE, Great Falls, Mont. Original application filed Feb. 18, 1922, Serial No. 537,519. Divided and this application filed Mar. 17, 1923. Serial No. 625,863. 1 Claim. (Cl. 130—19.)

In a structure of the character described, a plurality of screens positioned horizontally and disposed one above another in spaced relation, each screen being provided with flanges extending downwardly from its ends and at an inward incline whereby an air blast passing longitudinally between the screens may be directed towards the upper surfaces of the lower screens.



1,506,213. TRANSFERRING DEVICE FOR RAILWAY MOTOR CARS. MARTIN M. ANTHONY, Harrisonville, Mo. Filed Apr. 9, 1924. Serial No. 705,318. 3 Claims. (Cl. 104—263.)

2. In a transferring device for railway motor cars, oppositely curved rails adapted to occupy positions between rails of a railway track, shoes adapted to embrace the head of one of the rails for suspending the ends of the diverging rails in proximi y to the rail of the track, and a member adapted to embrace the other rail of the track to which the converging ends of the said rails are connected, substantially as described.

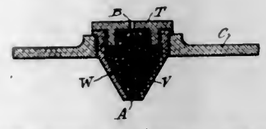
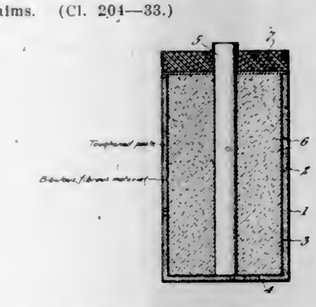
1,506,214. ART OF MANUFACTURING CONTAINERS. MARINO BELLO, Highland Park, and JACK J. BRETSON, Waukegan, Ill., assignors to Ahlbell Battery Container Corporation, Waukegan, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 8, 1922. Serial No. 559,357. 24 Claims. (Cl. 18—1.)



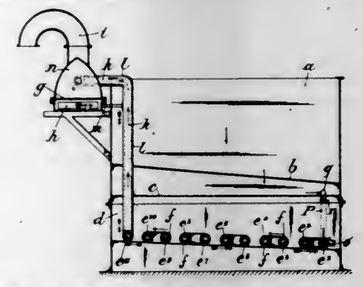
1. In the art of manufacturing containers formed upon cores and having apertured handle-equipped portions, the method of stripping the container from the core which consists in engaging the container at its apertures and engaging the portion of the mold from which the container is to be removed, and exerting force through such engagement, for relatively moving said container and mold-portion to effect the stripping of the container from the core.

1,506,215. PICTURE FRAMING. ALONZO W. BESHGETOOR, Midland, Mich. Filed Dec. 5, 1922. Serial No. 605,126. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—158.)



A mounting for pictures of flimsy material comprising a backing of fairly stiff fibrous material having an adhesive coating on its front side for attaching a picture and being trimmed to the same size as said picture after assembling, and frame members having an adhesive coating on the rear side thereof, said frame members being made in narorw strips of greater length than the marginal edges of the picture and the backing and adapted to be secured along said edges on the face of the picture by means of said adhesive coating and extend with the ends beyond the corners thereof, said ends thus providing suspension means for the framed picture.

1,506,216. STORAGE-BATTERY VENT. RAYMOND C. BENNER, Bayside, N. Y., assignor to The Prest-O-Lite Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 2, 1922. Serial No. 533,715. 6 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)

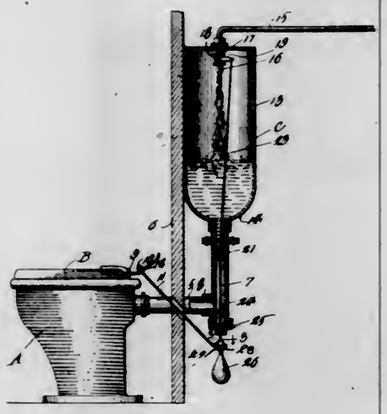


3. A storage battery vent having a gas outlet passage containing fibrous acid-resisting material coated with oleaginous substance.

1,506,217. DRY CELL AND PROCESS OF MAKING THE SAME. RAYMOND C. BENNER, Bayside, and HARRY F. FRENCH, Flushing, N. Y., assignors to National Carbon Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 27, 1922. Serial No. 571,176. 6 Claims. (Cl. 204—33.)

1. Process of making dry cells, which comprises applying to a metal cup substantially non-interpenetrating contacting linings of toughened paste and of bibulus fibrous material, and placing a carbon electrode and conductive depolarizing mix within the cup so lined.

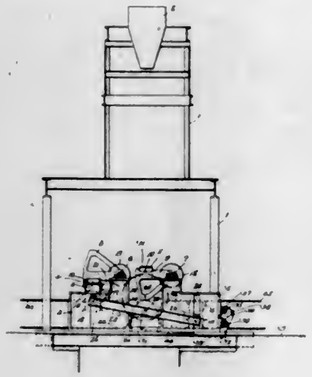
1,506,218. EVAPORATING APPARATUS. LOUIS BARTHELEMY CASTETS, Benejacq, France. Filed Oct. 23, 1922. Serial No. 596,468. 3 Claims. (Cl. 159—23.)



1. In an evaporator, the combination with a box having an upper and a lower heat conserving compartment: of an inclined, jacketed serpentine in the lower compartment, the interior of said serpentine connected to the upper compartment, means to admit steam to the jacket near the discharge end of said serpentine and an evaporating plate onto which said serpentine discharges from its upper end.

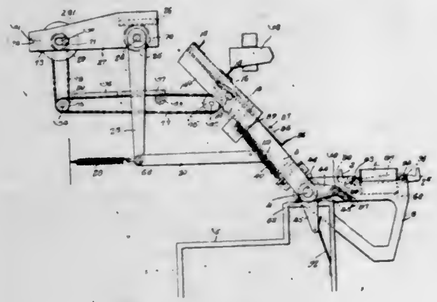
1,506,219. RECIPROCATING ENGINE. CARL S. CLARK, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Percy A. Porteous, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed July 3, 1922. Serial No. 572,620. 4 Claims. (Cl. 121—19.)

1. In a motor, the combination of a reciprocating cylinder having spaced exhaust ports, a pressure supply pipe projecting into the cylinder at the axis thereof and on which the cylinder reciprocates and having spaced inlet ports, and a tubular piston valve mounted to reciprocate between the pipe and the cylinder and controlling all of said ports.



1,506,220. TOILET BOWL AND TANK. ANTHONY T. D'AMATO, Corona, N. Y. Filed Sept. 11, 1923. Serial No. 662,146. 2 Claims. (Cl. 4—27.)

1. In a toilet, a flush tank comprising a body and a flush pipe communicating with the lower end of the body at the axial center thereof, a water supply pipe leading into the upper end of the tank, an extension formed on the supply pipe disposed in the tank and arranged in axial alignment with the flush pipe, a control valve in said extension, a pivoted flap valve in said flush pipe, a depending rod connected with the flap valve, a weight on said rod, and a second rod connected with the flap valve and with the control valve interposed in the extension of said water supply pipe.



1,506,221. BRICKMAKING MACHINE. ROY P. M. DAVIS, Mount Union, Pa. Filed Oct. 4, 1922. Serial No. 592,227. 6 Claims. (Cl. 25—2.)

1. In a brick making machine, a pair of pivoted mold supports and molds carried thereby, means for feeding a charge of mud alternately to the molds to form brick therein, means for simultaneously rocking said mold supports in opposite directions to filling and dumping positions respectively, a pair of vertically movable dumping tables one for each mold support, upon which the mold supports alternately deposit the brick carried thereby, means for simultaneously elevating one table and lowering the other, a brick conveyor, said tables when elevated receiving the brick from said mold support, and when lowered depositing the brick upon said conveyor, the movements of said mold supports and tables being in synchronism.

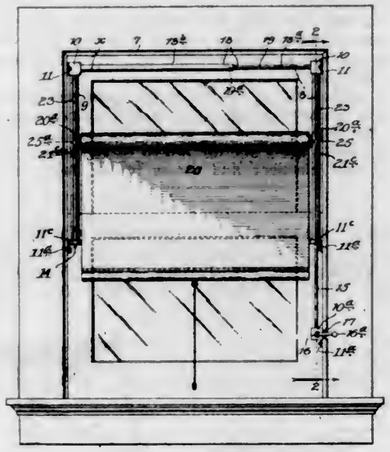
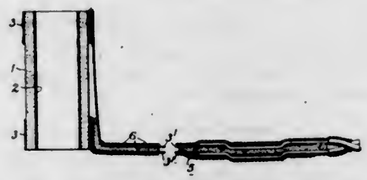
1,506,222. PALLET MACHINE. ROY P. M. DAVIS and IRVIN F. HEPLER, Mount Union, Pa. Filed Oct. 21, 1922. Serial No. 596,025. 8 Claims. (Cl. 25—2.)



1. In a brick making machine, a mold support and mold carried thereby, a pallet carrier, means for delivering a pallet to said carrier, said pallet carrier and said mold support being swingable about a common axis in opposing directions to bring said mold and the pallet on said pallet carrier into juxtaposition.

1,506,223. WINDOW-SHADE ADJUSTER. JAMES W. DAWSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to James A. Hedges and Howard E. Hedges, forming the Copartnership of J. A. Hedges & Company, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 21, 1923. Serial No. 640,385. 1 Claim. (Cl. 156—27.)



Window shade adjusting mechanism comprising a sheathing tube member disposable at the side of a window frame, a housing member surmounted on said tube member and having an attaching element extending therefrom, one of the members at the zone of contact having a bearing wall, a gear wheel disposed in said housing member and having a stub shaft journaled in said bearing wall and depending below the same into said tube member, a transverse shaft in driven relation to said gear wheel and journaled in said housing, a cap at the lower end of said tube member having an attaching element extending therefrom, a drive shaft extending exteriorly of the tube and journaled in the cap, a spiral shaft of rod material located within the tube member and fastened to the portions of the stub shaft and drive shaft disposed therein, a roller-supporting bracket having threaded engagement with said spiral shaft and operating means for said drive shaft located exteriorly of the tube.

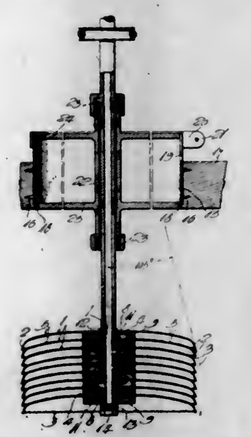
1,506,224. CARBURETOR FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. LEON ALEXANDER DE BECKER, St. Margarets-on-Thames, England. Filed Sept. 2, 1921. Serial No. 498,031. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—38.)

3. A pre-heater and vaporizer for application to the jet of the carburetor of an internal combustion engine comprising an insulated aggregation or mass of carbon and means for enabling said pre-heater to be connected to wires leading to a battery, said means consisting of strips of metal of approximately L-shape one of the limbs of each of which strips is formed at its outer end with a hook and is bent so as to fit the pre-heater, while the other limb of each strip, provided at its outer end with slots, is bent at its junction with said first named limb upwards and at right angles to said limb, is engaged with the hook at the end of said limb, and is then bent downwards on to the outer part of said hook, substantially as described.



1,506,225. ARTIFICIAL LIMB. CHARLES DESOUTTER, London, England, assignor to Desoutter Brothers Limited, London, England. Filed Apr. 25, 1922. Serial No. 556,497. 5 Claims. (Cl. 3—2).

1. An artificial limb comprising upper and lower leg sections made of relatively thin sheet metal, the sheet metal of each of said sections being provided with coacting, resting conical friction surfaces at each side of the knee joint, the conical surfaces of one section being arranged co-axially with the conical surfaces of the other section, a part knee bolt pivotally connecting said leg sections together, mounted co-axially with said friction surfaces, means for securing one of said parts against movement, and means for axially moving at will the other part to increase or decrease the friction between the inner and outer friction surfaces, for the purposes set forth.

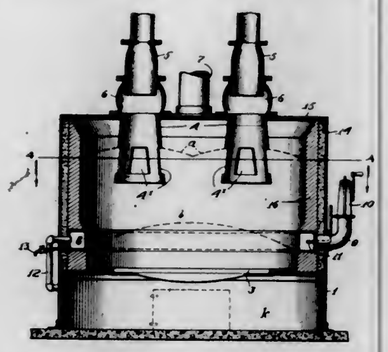
1,506,226. CENTRIFUGAL ATOMIZER. SAMUEL M. DICK, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Dec. 8, 1919, Serial No. 343,415. Renewed Feb. 15, 1924. 10 Claims. (Cl. 299—63.)



1. A centrifugal atomizer adapted to be mounted in a dehydrating cell and comprising a tubular rotatably mounted shaft having radial liquid discharge openings, and a plurality of spaced concavo-convex imperforate disks fixedly mounted on said shaft for rotation bodily therewith, all of said disks curving in the same direction, said radial openings being positioned between said disks.

1,506,227. SUCTION GAS PRODUCER FOR GASIFYING SAWDUST AND LIKE FUELS. HARROLD DORMAND, Bayonne, N. J. Filed July 17, 1923. Serial No. 652,044. 1 Claim. (Cl. 48—11.)

A suction gas producer for gasifying saw dust and like fuels comprising a casing, a fire grate separating combustion and ash pit chambers, a feed pipe projecting into the combustion chamber and formed with lateral apertures, for the passage of the fuel, a horizontal wall closing the top of the combustion chamber and affording a support for the feed pipe, an insulating lining surrounding the combustion chamber and extending upwardly to said horizontal wall, an annular vaporizer surrounding the combustion chamber, means for admitting air and moisture to said vaporizer and for leading vapor therefrom to the combustion chamber, and a vitreous lining intermediate the insulating lining and the combustion chamber and outwardly flaring to enlarge the combustion chamber above said vaporizer and coacting with the vaporizer to restrict the combustion chamber below the flaring section.

1,506,228. MANUFACTURE OF ALKYL, ARALKYL, AND AROMATIC COMPOUNDS. HENRY DREYFUS, London, England. Filed Aug. 9, 1921. Serial No. 491,003. 6 Claims. (Cl. 260—98.)

1. Process for the manufacture of dialkyl-sulfate, comprising bringing an SO_3 derivative of an alkali metal salt into reaction with an oxygen derivative of a simple aliphatic hydrocarbon wherein the oxygen is attached to at least one alkyl carbon by a single linkage, and distilling

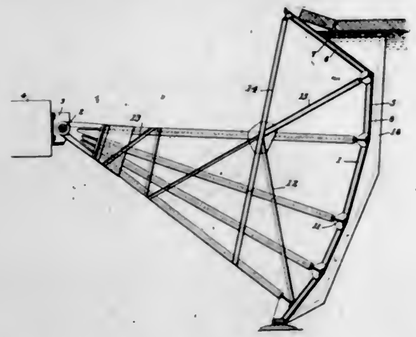
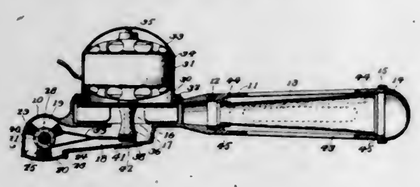
1,506,229. CARBURETOR. ORVILLE H. ENSIGN, Pasadena, Calif. Filed Sept. 30, 1916. Serial No. 123,180. 8 Claims. (Cl. 261—28.)



1. In a carburetor having a float chamber, a fuel jet, and an air intake, a balancing means to maintain a pressure in the float chamber corresponding to that in the air intake of the carburetor, and means for directing an air supply from the balancing system of the float chamber to the fuel jet, whereby to maintain a proportionate amount of fuel to air without lowering the fuel velocity.

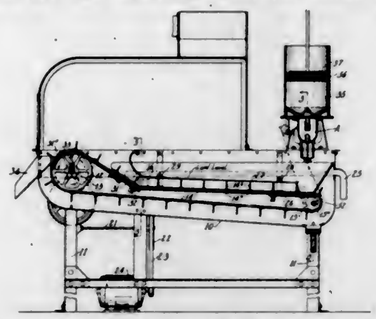
7. In combination with the mixing chamber of a carburetor; a fuel passage to deliver fuel to said chamber; a vented auxiliary chamber above said passage open to atmospheric pressure and adapted to hold a predetermined charge of fuel for starting an engine into operation, and unobstructed gravity flow means for conducting fuel from said chamber into said fuel passage before delivery to the mixing chamber, said vented chamber being empty during normal engine operation and filled by manually controlled means.



8. A carburetor of the character described consisting of a float chamber, an air intake, a fuel jet in communication with the lower portion of the float chamber, an air supply leading from the air-intake to the upper portion of the float chamber and direct to the fuel jet.

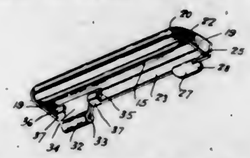
1,506,230. GATE FOR HYDRAULIC STRUCTURES. WILLIAM G. FARGO, Jackson, Mich., assignor to Fargo Engineering Company, Jackson, Mich. Filed Aug. 7, 1922. Serial No. 580,345. 8 Claims. (Cl. 61—25.)

1. A gate of the sector type provided at opposite sides with horizontal pivots and arranged to swing upwardly or downwardly, said gate having a front or water face composed of a series of flat transverse faces arranged in substantially segmental form.



1,506,231. VACUUM CLEANER. FRANK W. FINKHOUSEN, Fort Wayne, Ind. Filed Feb. 28, 1921. Serial No. 448,469. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—7.)

1. A vacuum cleaner having a nozzle opening downwardly, a plate fitted in spanning relation with the nozzle opening, the said plate being formed with ears carrying pintles, and a brush removably fitted upon the pintles.



1,506,232. DOUGHNUT MACHINE. DOUGLAS P. FLEMING, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 28, 1922. Serial No. 591,156. 5 Claims. (Cl. 53—7.)

1. In a doughnut machine, a tank for holding lard, a conveyer in said tank, the tail end of which is submerged in the lard, means adjacent the tail end of the conveyer for supporting raw doughnuts until they raise sufficiently to float, means for dropping raw doughnuts on said last mentioned means and means above the conveyor for holding said doughnuts submerged in the lard for a predetermined distance of travel of the conveyer.

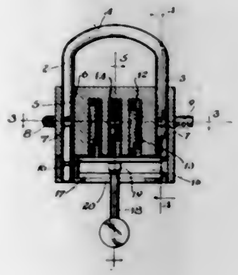
1,506,233. BAG FASTENER. FRANZ A. FULLER, Newark, N. J., assignor to The J. E. Mergott Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 25, 1922. Serial No. 539,136. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—67.)

2. A frame clasp comprising a plate having integral rear and end walls, a hooked catch formed with the rear wall, a loop, means for confining said loop to said rear wall, said catch and loop engaging loosely in slots in the frame, and a torsion element engaging in said loop and with said catch at the inner side of said frame.

1,506,234. MANIFOLD SHEET. DANIEL T. GLACKIN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed May 24, 1919, Serial No. 675,420. Patent No. 1,403,075, issued Jan. 10, 1922. Divided and this application filed Mar. 8, 1921. Serial No. 450,654. 7 Claims. (Cl. 283—62.)

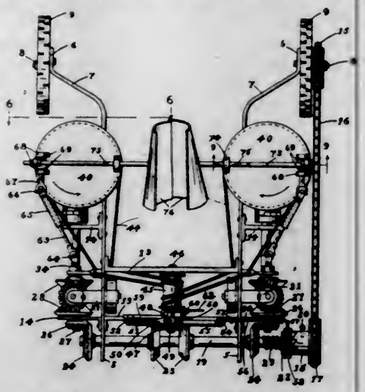


1. A multiform billing sheet adapted to be wound continuously around a typewriter platen, said sheet comprising a number of forms printed on one side thereof and arranged in succession from top to bottom of the sheet, the length of each form being substantially the same as the circumference of the platen on which they are to be wound, the length of the forms being progressively increased from top to bottom so as to enable the outer forms to register with the inner forms when wound about the platen, and a turned-over portion at one end of the sheet forming a pocket at the back of the sheet adapted to house the leading edge of a carbon-sheet.

1,506,235. MANUFACTURE OF LINOLEUM. ALFRED ARTHUR GODFREY, London, England. Filed Oct. 26, 1922. Serial No. 597,033. 2 Claims. (Cl. 154—20.)

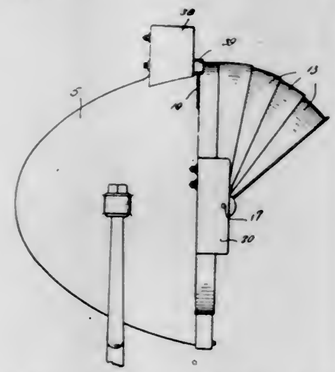
2. The production of a sheet of linoleum having a broken or clouded effect by mixing granulated material of different colors, rolling the material into a sheet, cutting the sheet into strips, laying a number of these strips in overlapping relation, rolling in a direction approximately at right angles to that of the first rolling, cutting the sheet so formed into strips, laying a number of these strips in overlapping relation, and rolling these strips again in a direction approximately at right angles to that of the first rolling.

1,506,236. LOCK. BENJAMIN J. GREER, Athens, Tex. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,090. 9 Claims. (Cl. 70—113.)



1. A lock, including a body and a shackle, one leg of the shackle being provided with a groove, a member slidably mounted in the body, said member adapted to enter the groove in the shackle, said member also provided with grooves, and locking screws adapted to engage said grooves.

1,506,237. AUTOMATIC STOOKER. SIMEON DAVID HILTS, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 9, 1920. Serial No. 402,470. 1 Claim. (Cl. 56—423.)



A stooker consisting of a frame, wheels supporting said frame, a shaft transversely positioned at the forward end of said frame, a loosely mounted sprocket wheel on one end of said shaft, a sprocket carried by one of said supporting wheels, a sprocket chain connecting said sprocket with said loosely mounted sprocket wheel, tables pivotally mounted on said frame, means for raising said tables, means for turning said tables, supports carried by said tables, rods carried by said supports, a sheaf-receiving member carried at the inner end of each of said rods, means for operating said rods for turning said sheaf-receiving members from a horizontal to a vertical position, said raising means being adapted to allow said tables to drop when said receiving means is in vertical position, clutch means adapted to engage said loosely mounted sprocket wheel and lock the same for operation with the said transversely positioned shaft, means for automatically disengaging said clutch means, and tripping means for operating said last named means.

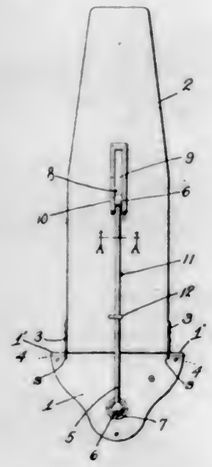
1,506,238. GLARESHIELD FOR VEHICLE HEADLIGHTS. CARL PERRY HOEFLER, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Sept. 7, 1923. Serial No. 661,400. 12 Claims. (Cl. 240—45.6.)



3. In a glare shield for headlights, a rim positioned upon the lens retaining rim of the headlight and freely slidable thereon, a moving shutter carried by said rim, means for opening and closing said shutter, and means for moving said rim to opposite sides of said headlight.

1,506,239. POWER-TRANSMISSION ELEMENT. ARTHUR HOUGH, Summit, WILLIAM C. LEONHARD, Passaic, JOHN R. DUFFORD, Paterson, and JOHN L. ALLMAN, East Rutherford, N. J. Filed Jan. 30, 1923. Serial No. 615,939. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—28.)

1. A gear having a part thereof made of sheets of thin parchmentized paper, impregnated with a normally viscous oil material and united together under high pressure.

1,506,240. IRONING BOARD. CHARLES C. IVES, Ogdensburg, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Francis A. Van Dyke, Ogdensburg, N. Y. Filed Feb. 7, 1923. Serial No. 617,513. 2 Claims. (Cl. 68—10.)

1. A device of the class described, comprising a support having spaced slots formed in its upper edge adjacent the sides thereof, a board having a groove in its rear surface approximately at its medial point in communication with a smaller groove extending to the inner end thereof, a slotted plate over the longitudinal edges of the first-mentioned groove, plates rigidly secured to the sides of the board and projecting therefrom in alignment with the spaced slots formed in the support, pins hingedly securing the plates in the slots of the support, a socket secured to the support and having a slot therein disposed toward the smaller groove of the board, a rod having spherical ends seated in the larger groove of the board and socket with its major portion seated in the smaller groove of the board when in closed position and a latch pivotally supported in contact with the rear of the board and over the samllest slot.

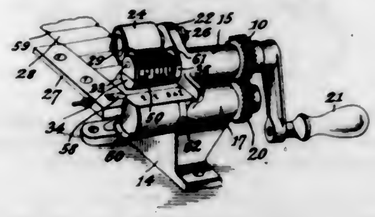
1,506,241. LOCKING DEVICE. JENS C. JENSEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,203. 5 Claims. (Cl. 16—143.)



1. In a hinge, two members having alternately placed knuckles, a pin passing through said knuckles, two adjacent knuckles being partially cut away to permit said members to move longitudinally out of alignment with respect to each other when swung to closed position and means for holding said members in alignment in closed position when the swinging member is again raised to aligning position with the other member.

1,506,242. MACHINE FOR PRINTING TICKETS. JOHN ALWYN KELLER, Bay Shore, N. Y., assignor to Keller Printing Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 11, 1923. Serial No. 631,345. 9 Claims. (Cl. 101—92.)

1. In a machine for printing tickets, a revoluble shaft, a printing-drum carried by said shaft and consisting of type-discs having a series of variable type-heads at their periphery, said type-discs being mounted in transverse series on an axis eccentric to the axis of said shaft and respectively having an "idler" turnable movement independent of the rotary movement of said shaft, and means for respectively locking and retaining each of said type-discs in constant fixed position against turnable movement at all times during the revolution of said main shaft, whereby the type-discs are in permanent fixed relation during operation of the machine and variable only by manual adjustment.

1,506,243. SNOW OR ICE SCOOTER. JACOB KIEFT and PERCY R. TATROE, Grand Haven, Mich. Filed Jan. 15, 1924. Serial No. 686,455. 1 Claim. (Cl. 280—23.)

A snow or ice scooter adapted to be propelled by the action of one foot of the rider upon the snow or ice and including a runner-like foot board upon which the rider is adapted to place his other foot while occupying a standing position, a metallic shoe attached to the under side of said foot board, a forwardly and upwardly extending standard rigid with the forward end of the foot board, a handle bar carried by the upper end of said standard adapted to be grasped at its ends by the hands of the rider while assuming said standing position, said shoe extending forwardly and upwardly from the forward end of the runner and in contact with the standard, means for securing the upper free end of said forwardly projecting end portion of the shoe to said standard, said standard comprising a single piece of metal centrally return bent to provide a pair of substantially parallel members, said runner having longitudinal sockets opening through the forward end thereof and into which the free lower ends of the standard members are fitted and secured, the bend of the piece of metal forming the standard providing a socket at the upper end of the standard and a bolt passing through the upper end of the standard for pivotally connecting the handle bar thereto.

1,506,244. TROUSERS STRETCHER AND CREASER. CLYDE H. KIRBY, Everton, Mo. Filed Oct. 20, 1923. Serial No. 669,799. 2 Claims. (Cl. 223—19.)

2. An apparatus as characterized comprising a pair of trousers engaging clamps composed of a plurality of leaves hingedly connected to open bookwise, and spreading devices for said trousers engaging clamps, said spreading devices including pairs of transversely extending bars arranged at opposite sides of the clamps and connected in parallel spaced relation at their ends by means of transverse pins, tension springs connecting one of said clamps with the pins at one end of each of said bars, and hooks carried by the other clamp engaging the outer pin of said bars.

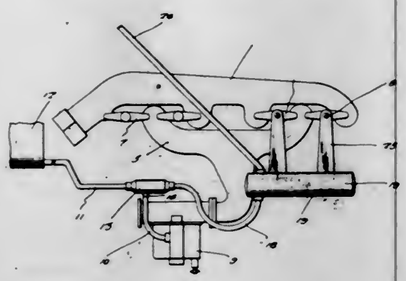
1,506,245. SCORE-CARD AND PENCIL HOLDER. WINNIFRED C. LYMAN, Mansfield, Mass. Filed Nov. 1, 1923. Serial No. 672,140. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—11.)

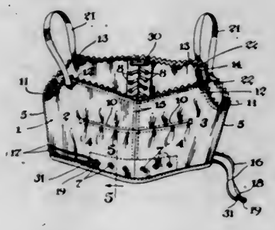
1. A device of the class described comprising a strip of metal having an elongated end portion constituting a spring tongue, the strip being bent backwardly upon itself at the inner end of said tongue, extended throughout the length of the latter and then bent forwardly and inwardly around the free end of the tongue to provide a jaw cooperable with said tongue to form a card holder, the strip after forming said jaw being bent forwardly upon itself and extended throughout the length of said jaw, the free end of the strip being then bent backwardly and extended inwardly adjacent the part of the strip behind the aforesaid tongue to provide a supporting finger.



1,506,246. STEEL ALLOY MATERIAL. GEORGE F. McMAHON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 2, 1922. Serial No. 598,672. 6 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)

1. The method of forming alloy materials which comprise admixing pulverized powdered electrolytic metal with metal-containing material and heating the mixture with exclusion of extraneous gas to a temperature below the melting point of the electrolytic metal, thereby producing a sintered cake of uniform composition.

1,506,247. FUEL-FEEDING APPARATUS. CHARLES H. MARTIN, Kolin, Mont. Filed Nov. 24, 1923. Serial No. 676,870. 3 Claims. (Cl. 158—46.5.)



1. In combination with a motor vehicle carburetor having a fuel intake pipe, and a main fuel supply tank normally disposed rearwardly of and above said carburetor, and having a main fuel supply pipe extending forwardly therefrom, a check valve casing having opposed intake ports, one of which is coupled to said main fuel supply pipe and provided with a lateral outlet port that is coupled to the carburetor intake pipe, an auxiliary fuel supply tank mounted forwardly of the carburetor at a level above the latter and below the level of the main fuel supply tank, and an auxiliary fuel supply pipe connecting said auxiliary fuel supply tank with the remaining intake port of said check valve casing, the adjacent ends of the main fuel supply pipe and the auxiliary fuel supply pipe projecting into the check valve casing in spaced opposed relation, and a movable valve member mounted within the check valve casing for alternate seating engagement with the ends of the main and auxiliary fuel supply pipes, the inner end of the main fuel supply pipe being imperforate whereby the same is completely closed by said movable valve member when seated against the end of said main fuel supply pipe and the inner end of said auxiliary supply pipe being perforated whereby constant communication is provided between the carburetor intake pipe and the auxiliary fuel supply tank in both positions of said movable valve member.

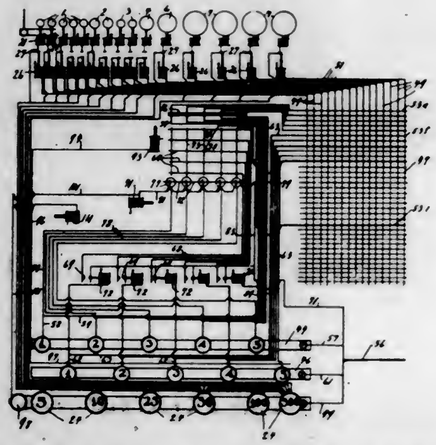
1,506,248. BRASSIÈRE. GEORGINE S. MONROSE, Tampa, Fla. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,117. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—42.)

A brassière adapted to envelope the wearer's body and comprising a plurality of portions having a front reinforced diaphragm portion, a series of horizontally spaced securing means on said diaphragm portion, and rear complementary vertical edges detachably and adjustably connected by lacing means adapted to extend around said brassière and detachably and adjustably engage said securing means on said diaphragm portion.



1,506,249. AUTOMOBILE LUBRICATOR. ALBERT FRANCIS NACKERS, Cornelius, Oreg. Filed Mar. 1, 1920. Serial No. 362,430. 3 Claims. (Cl. 184—11.)

2. The combination with a transmission casing of an inspection plate on said casing, a lubricant collecting chamber beneath said plate having laterally projecting flanges, means extending through said flanges for securing said chamber between said plate and casing, a conduit leading from said chamber to the forward end of the casing, and a diagonally disposed screen within said chamber for straining the lubricant conducted to the forward end of the casing through said conduit.

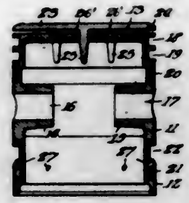
1,506,250. AUTOMATIC TICKET AND CHANGE-RETURNING MACHINE. LUDVIG B. NORDLUND, San Francisco, Calif. Filed July 5, 1922. Serial No. 572,824. 8 Claims. (Cl. 133—2.)

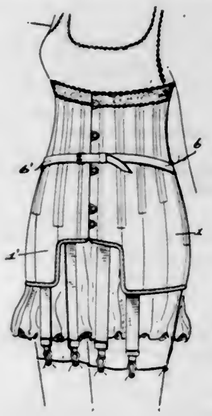


1. In a device of the character described, a plurality of circuits, two groups of switches, and connecting means between the circuits and the switches allowing each switch to control a certain combination of circuits and allowing any one of the switches of one group to cooperate with any one of the switches of the other group in controlling certain additional combinations of the circuits.

1,506,251. LOOSE-LEAF BINDER. GEORGE A. OLSEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Accounting Devices Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 30, 1923. Serial No. 677,843. 7 Claims. (Cl. 129—17.)

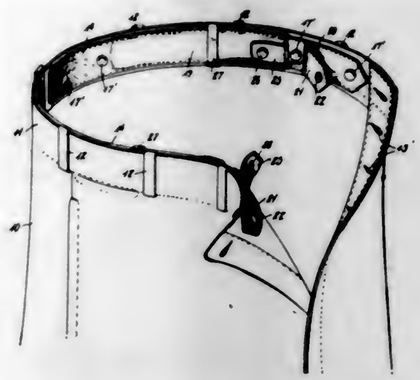
1. A loose-leaf binder comprising two channel-shaped members hingedly connected flange to flange, with their flanges projecting rearwardly, and a set of arcuate prongs secured to each member, the arc of each prong being struck from the center of said hinge, all prongs being on arcs of the same radius, the ends of the prongs carried by one member lying substantially in contact with the other member when the members are in closed position.

1,506,252. PISTON. ANTON PONDELICK, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 23, 1922. Serial No. 531,069. 7 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)



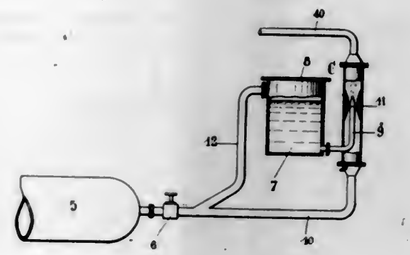
1. A piston structure comprising a cylindrical body and head formed of aluminum, circumferential reenforcing bands of cast iron, and a cast iron guard plate for the head, such cast iron parts being intimately secured by casting the aluminum around them.

1,506,253. PISTON. ANTON PONDELICK, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 31, 1923. Serial No. 642,442. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)



1. In a piston structure, the combination of the cylindrical body having a circumferential channel of rectangular cross section, longitudinal and transverse tongues extending from the upper and lower walls of said channel, a bearing ring in said channel, and longitudinal and transverse grooves in the upper and lower faces of said ring for receiving said longitudinal and transverse tongues whereby to lock said ring against lateral, radial, and turning movement.

1,506,254. CORSET. LIZZIE K. RHODE, Flushing, N. Y., assignor to Hip Hold Corset Corporation. Filed Nov. 21, 1922. Serial No. 602,330. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—37.)

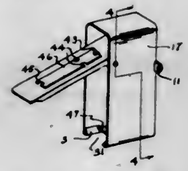


1. In a corset in combination, non-elastic side sections provided with hip portions, an elastic back section, flaps attached to the back of said hip portions of said side sections and crossed in the rear below the hip-line of the wearer, and belt sections associated with said flaps and fastened in front.

1,506,255. SECRET SAFETY BELT AND PANTS-GIRTH REDUCER. JACOB ROSENSTEIN, Frankfort, Ky. Filed Nov. 19, 1923. Serial No. 675,756. 5 Claims. (Cl. 241—7.)

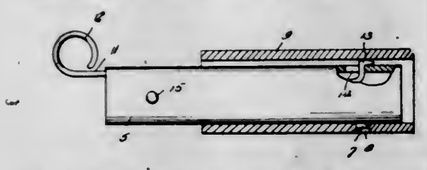
1. The combination with the waist-band of a pair of trousers or the like of a belt member, means for detachably connecting said belt member to said waist-band, a pocket formed in said belt member and a girth reducing auxiliary pocket insertable in said first mentioned pocket.

1,506,256. ENGINE STARTER. FÉLIX SAINTIN, Poissy, Seine and Oise, France. Filed Oct. 5, 1921. Serial No. 505,646. 5 Claims. (Cl. 123—180.)



4. A starting device for engines of the class described comprising an auxiliary carburetor, a container, a spray nozzle in said carburetor and communicating with said container, a compressed air tank, a conduit connecting said tank with the bottom of said carburetor and the top of said container, a normally closed valve in said conduit for regulating the flow from said tank to both the carburetor and container, and a diffuser in said conduit adapted to throttle the air at a point below the outlet of the nozzle.

1,506,257. SANITARY INCLOSING MEANS FOR TOOTHBRUSHES. HARRY P. SCHMIDT, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 31, 1923. Serial No. 671,941. 2 Claims. (Cl. 206—154.)



1. A sanitary inclosing means for tooth brushes comprising a casing, the top, sides and back of which are of integral formation, the side members being provided with slots and ventilating perforations and having tongues extending therefrom and the back member being provided with slots, lugs formed integral with and extending outwardly from said back member, the tongues of said side members being adapted to pass through the slots in said back and the lugs of said back member being adapted to pass through the slots in said side members, to secure the whole in operable position.

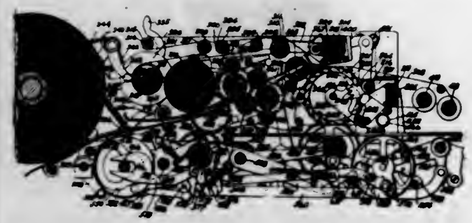
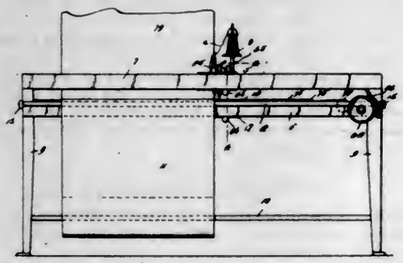
1,506,258. BEARING-SLEEVE REMOVER. WAVERLY C. SHAW, Earlham, Iowa. Filed May 22, 1923. Serial No. 640,659. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—88.2.)



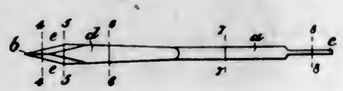
A tool for removing bearing sleeves comprising a cylindrical body having at one side a slot, a headed screw mounted at the opposite side of the body, a sleeve located within the body and fixed with relation thereto and being in longitudinal alignment with the slot, and a rod slidably mounted in the last mentioned sleeve and provided at its outer end with a finger loop, the inner end of the rod being provided with an angularly disposed offset portion, which is disposed through the said slots.

1,506,259. HYDRANT. WARREN S. SHERMAN, Oklahoma City, Okla. Filed Mar. 29, 1922. Serial No. 547,904. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—13.)



1. A hydrant comprising a body provided with an elbow, a gate operating in the elbow, a thrust rod slidable in the elbow and located in the path of the gate, a downwardly closing valve controlling drainage from the body and comprising a stem slidable in the elbow, and a lever external to the elbow and fulcrumed intermediate its ends thereon, one end of the lever cooperating with the stem, and the other end of the lever cooperating with the thrust rod whereby the valve will be opened when the gate is closed.

1,506,260. CASH REGISTER. BERNIS M. SHIPLEY, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Jan. 30, 1920, Serial No. 355,172. Renewed Feb. 8, 1923. 38 Claims. (Cl. 101—66.)



1. In a machine of the class described, the combination of printing devices for making a plurality of impressions on record material at each operation of the machine, automatic means for placing the record material in position to receive the first impression and to remove the same after the last impression, and means independent of said automatic means for feeding the record material after it has received the first impression into position to be again acted upon by the printing mechanism.

1,506,261. SEWING MACHINE. FREDERICK A. SIEVERS, Atlanta, Ga. Filed Apr. 28, 1923. Serial No. 635,182. 8 Claims. (Cl. 112—2.)

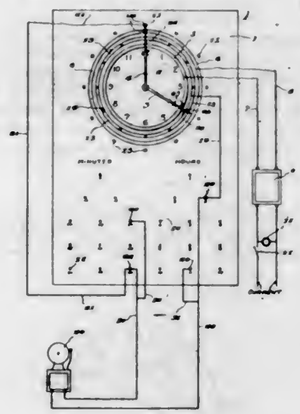
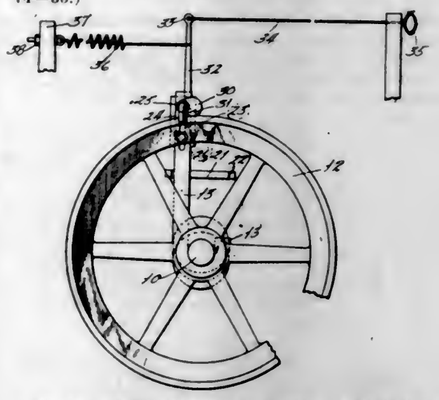
1,506,262. NEEDLE. CHARLES SLATER, Redditch, England. Filed June 1, 1922. Serial No. 565,162. 1 Claim. (Cl. 223—37.)



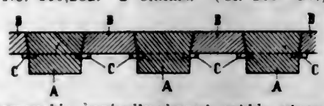
A needle comprising a cylindrical shank, a spear or lancet shaped point end of diamond shaped cross section, said point end having laterally cutting edges disposed in V-formation with the base of said V of a width exceeding the diameter of the shank to form in the material an aperture of laterally elongated shape, an opposed pair of flats between said point and said shank to afford free passage for a thread loop, an eye end of flattened form and of more than ordinarily reduced thickness arranged in a plane at right angles to the plane of said point end and of said flats and coacting with the cylindrical portion of the shank to widen the central portion of said aperture.

1,506,263. SNOW-REMOVING MACHINE. MARSOP SOUHIGIAN, Lawrence, Mass. Filed July 30, 1923. Serial No. 654,757. 6 Claims. (Cl. 37—8.)



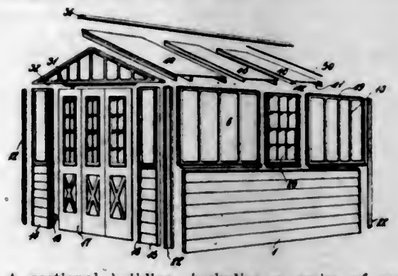
1. The combination with a motor truck having a driver's cab and a dump body in rear of said cab and extending to the rear end of the truck; of a trough-shaped snow scoop in front of and connected to said truck, a longitudinal trough supported horizontally on top of said cab and extending from front to back thereof to discharge into the truck body, an elevator in front of the cab from the rear end of the scoop bottom to the front end of the trough, a rotary beater in the front end of the scoop above the bottom of said scoop and spaced rearwardly from the front end of said bottom for forcibly throwing the snow rearwardly to the elevator, and a rotary beater in the rear end of said trough for throwing the snow directly rearward into the truck body.

1,506,264. ELECTRIC ALARM. HARRY W. STECKEL, Muskegon, Mich. Filed July 23, 1923. Serial No. 653,274. 4 Claims. (Cl. 161—4.)



1. In a device of the character specified, the combination with a support, of a clock arranged in said support, plug sockets arranged in said support, alarms having means adapted to connect the same with said plug sockets, inner and outer contact rings upon said clock, contact segments between said inner and outer contact rings, contact studs surrounding said outer contact ring, means connecting said contact rings with a source of electrical supply, means for connecting said contact segments and said contact studs with said plug sockets, and contact members upon the clock hands for establishing an electrical connection between said inner ring and said segments and said outer ring and said studs for sounding an alarm at a predetermined time.

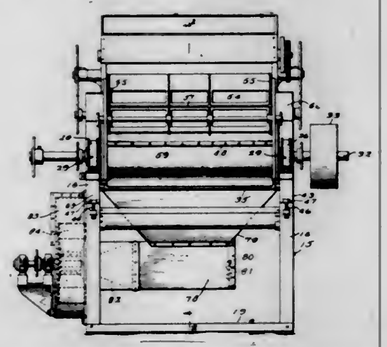
1,506,265. ENGINE STARTER. BUFORD J. STEEN, Christine, Tex., assignor of one-half to Gulberson Corporation, Dallas, Tex., a Corporation of Texas. Filed June 5, 1923. Serial No. 643,546. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—53.)



1. In an engine starter attachment, a bracket arranged for attachment to an engine, an arm supported by said bracket and having a bearing member at one end for engaging a crank shaft, an eccentric pivoted on the outer end of the arm, a lever extending outwardly from the eccentric, a connection for manually operating the lever to swing the eccentric and the arm, and a resilient connection for returning the parts to their normal position.

1,506,266. MECHANICAL ROASTING FURNACE. GEORG STÖHN, Stolberg, Germany. Filed Jan. 26, 1921. Serial No. 440,232. 2 Claims. (Cl. 263—26.)

1. A removable conically-shaped rabble stone consisting of two parts, the upper part being arranged to be inserted into the rotary hearth plate of a mechanical roasting furnace, and the lower part being exchangeably secured to the upper part.

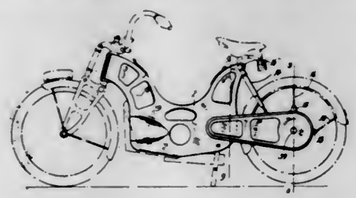


1,506,267. SECTIONAL BUILDING. LAMONT SWISHER, Decatur, Ill. Filed Oct. 4, 1921. Serial No. 505,256. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—2.)

1. A sectional building, including a series of panels having frames made of bevelled complemental parts one of which is cut or extracted from the other and adapted to be fitted together when the panels are assembled.

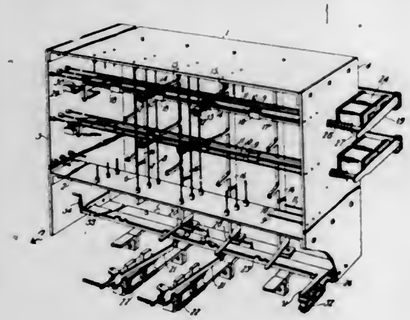
4. A sectional building, having side and end panels made as separable units, and corner posts for uniting these panels vertically, said posts comprising pieces triangular in cross-section and L-shaped side pieces, the latter adapted to receive the edges of the panels in butt-joint fashion, clamps engaging the adjacent ends of the side and end panels on the interior of the building, and means to detachably fasten the said clamps to the corner posts.

1,506,268. MECHANICAL SEED SEPARATOR. ARTHUR A. VARDELL, deceased, late of Dallas, Tex., by Highland G. Vardell, executrix, Dallas, and James Wyatt Stribling, Ennis, Tex. Filed Oct. 14, 1920. Serial No. 416,939. 10 Claims. (Cl. 83—6.)



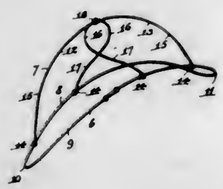
1. In a machine for separating and delinting cotton seed or the like, a frame, a roll-box carried thereby, a rotatable presser cylinder arranged eccentrically within the roll-box and provided with longitudinally spaced radially extending fingers, means for feeding cotton seed or the like into the roll-box, a grate embodying spaced bars, arranged at the lower portion of the roll-box, a rotatable saw cylinder embodying spaced saws having their upper portions operating between the grate bars and projecting into the lower portion of the roll-box, and means to drive the presser cylinder and saw cylinder.

1,506,269. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF CYANIDES. FOORD VON BICHOWSKY and JOHN HARTHAN, Glendale, Calif. Filed Feb. 23, 1921. Serial No. 447,244. 4 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)



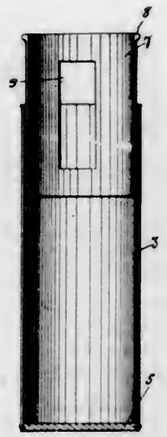
1. The production of cyanides of the alkali metals which consists in heating a silicon nitride containing mass with iron carbide in the presence of an alkali metal compound and in the absence of free carbon.

1,506,270. MEANS FOR SUPPORTING THE REAR ROAD WHEEL OF A VELOCIPEDE. CYRIL GEORGE PULLIN, Isleworth, England. Filed July 20, 1920. Serial No. 397,570. 3 Claims. (Cl. 208—146.)



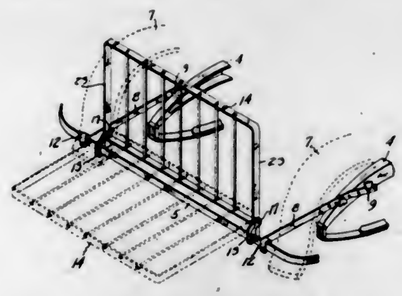
3. The combination on a motor driven velocipede of a centre frame of box-like construction, an axis pin carried at the bottom of said frame, a tubular arm connected to said axis pin on one side of said frame, a sheet metal arm as set forth mounted on said axis pin on the other side of said frame, a sprocket mounted on bearings rigidly connected to said sheet metal arm, a rear road wheel, means for associating said road wheel and said sprocket wheel in driving relation, a knock-out spindle for said road wheel, carried by said arm and projected through said bearing, and telescopic stay members pivotally connected to the rear ends of the bottom fork arms and to the top of said centre frame.

1,506,271. LINE SWITCH. JOHN NEWBERRY REYNOLDS, Greenwich, Conn., and JOHN F. HEARN, Passaic, N. J., assignors to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 1, 1920. Serial No. 370,374. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)



1. In an automatic telephone switch, sets of line conductors and sets of trunk conductors arranged coordinately but out of contact one with the other, a trunk-bar associated with each set of trunk-conductors and having a plurality of flexible arms, one for each set of line conductors and on each flexible arm a set of contacting media each associated with one of the crossing points of said line and trunk conductors, means for moving said trunk-bar from normal position to stand-by position, and means operable upon the initiation of incoming calls for engaging said flexible arms individually and moving them so as to move said contacting media into contact with their respective line conductors and trunk conductors.

1,506,272. HAIR FORM. WARREN C. SCHERER and EVELYN D. SCHERER, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Mar. 29, 1922. Serial No. 547,639. 11 Claims. (Cl. 132—54.)

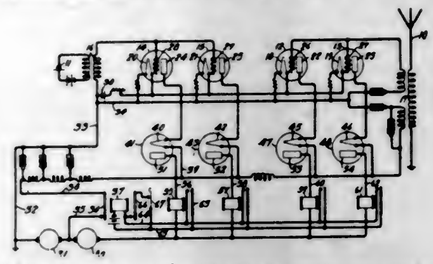


1. A hair form or frame formed of wire and having a base and a crown portion, said crown portion comprising two sections, each being secured to said base at one side of the transverse center of the latter.

1,506,273. SLIVER CAN. HERBERT E. SMITH, Putnam, Conn. Filed May 4, 1923. Serial No. 636,569. 4 Claims. (Cl. 220—8.)

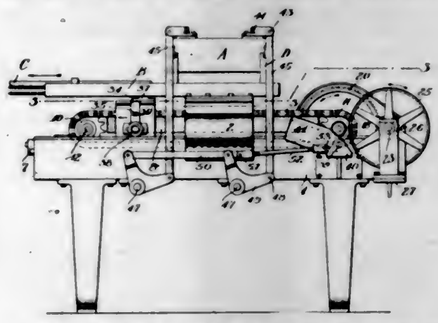
1. A sliver can having a free and unobstructed inner surface throughout, in combination with an extensible member telescopically fitting said can and always free to automatically rise as the sliver expands, and to prevent the sliver from overflowing the can.

1,506,274. COMBINED BUMPER AND LUGGAGE CARRIER. EDWARD H. SPECHT, Oakland, Calif. Filed Feb. 1, 1924. Serial No. 689,861. 8 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)



3. In a device of the character described, a bumper bar adapted to extend across the rear of an automobile, a pair of brackets positioned on said bar intermediate its ends and adapted for securing said bumper to the longitudinal frame members of the automobile, and a luggage carrier rack pivotally carried on said bar and interposed between said brackets.

1,506,275. PROTECTIVE MEANS FOR ELECTRIC CIRCUITS. GEORGE H. STEVENSON, Rye, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y. a Corporation of New York. Filed May 25, 1921. Serial No. 472,365. 29 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)



1. In combination, a vacuum tube having an anode and a cathode, a second vacuum tube having a filamentary cathode and a second electrode, a source of voltage for said first tube, and external connections for said second cathode, said external connections being connected in series with said anode, said first cathode and said source.

23. In combination, a line, means for supplying high frequency waves modulated by signals to said line, and means responsive to said modulated waves for determining when said modulated waves will be transmitted to said line.

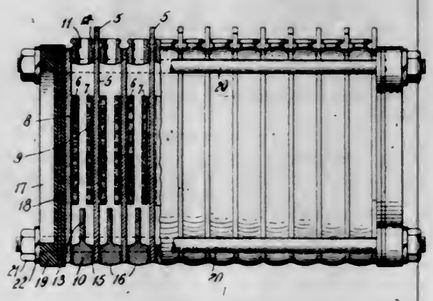
1,506,276. MACHINE ELEMENT. FRANK H. STOLP, Geneva, N. Y., assignor to The Stolp Company, Inc., Geneva, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 23, 1922. Serial No. 546,143. 8 Claims. (Cl. 113—33.)

1. The combination with a bed, an endless flexible carrier having upper and lower reaches traversing said bed in opposite directions and means for driving the carrier, of a cross head reciprocatable on the bed, a slide transversely movable on the cross head and carried by the carrier, a vibratory guide member pivoted to the bed to normally stand at an angle to the path of the cross head and an actuator on the latter adapted to cooperate with the guide member and vibrate same.



1,506,277. MILITARY RECONNOITERING APPARATUS. JOSEPH B. STRAUSS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 29, 1915. Serial No. 58,647. Renewed June 6, 1921. Serial No. 475,553. 5 Claims. (Cl. 189—44.)

1. A military reconnoitering apparatus comprising a movable frame, an observation tower mounted thereon, a platform carried by said tower, means for lengthening and shortening said tower and for raising and lowering it, and a flexible adjusting means automatically adjusting itself as the tower is lengthened and shortened for holding the platform substantially horizontal in all positions of the tower.

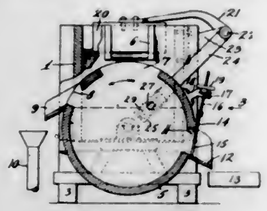
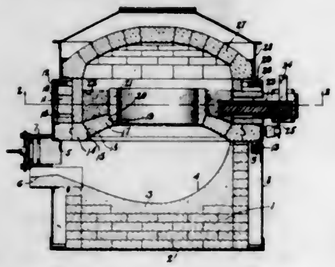
1,506,278. BATTERY. NORMAN DEXTER STURGES, Bellerose, N. Y., assignor to Multiple Storage Battery Corporation, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 15, 1922. Serial No. 561,065. 20 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)

1. In a battery cell the combination of insulating and metallic members forming the body of the cell and a fluid-tight joint between the abutting surfaces of the members consisting of a ridge on one of the members adapted to engage the adjacent surface of the other member.



1,506,279. WATERPROOF VAULT. PLESANT S. TORRENCE, Salisbury, N. C. Filed May 3, 1924. Serial No. 710,893. 3 Claims. (Cl. 77—35.)

1. In a device of the class described, a receptacle including a body having an outwardly slanting depending apron provided with an outstanding flange, a bottom in the body and having an outwardly slanting depending apron engaging the apron of the body, and provided with an outstanding flange engaging and located beneath the flange of the apron of the body, and a cover inverted over the body and having an outstanding flange, and securing elements connecting all of the flanges.



1,506,280. STUFF-BOX REGULATOR. CALVIN C. YATES, Lee, Mass. Filed Jan. 11, 1922. Serial No. 528,513. 15 Claims. (Cl. 92—46.)

1. In an apparatus of the class described, the combination with a stuff box and means for delivering stock thereto, a regulator chamber to which the stock is delivered from the box, a delivery opening in the chamber, and means controlled by the consistency of the stock in the box for increasing or decreasing the pressure head of the stock in the chamber to vary the volume of stock passing through the delivery opening per unit of time.

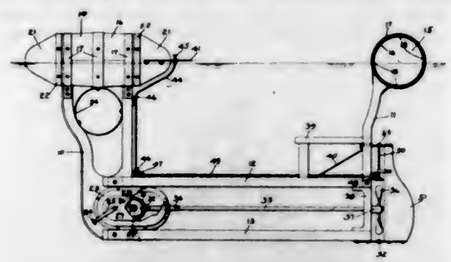
1,506,281. ELECTRIC FURNACE. THADDEUS F. BAILY, Alliance, Ohio. Filed Aug. 28, 1923. Serial No. 659,738. 6 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

2. In an electric furnace having a heating chamber and a hearth therein, a rib upon the walls of the heating chamber, above the hearth, and an arched resistance trough supported upon said rib and in juxtaposition to the walls of the heating chamber.

1,506,282. ELECTRIC SHOE. JOSEPH BARBIERI, St. Vincent de Paul, Quebec, Canada. Filed Oct. 12, 1923. Serial No. 668,218. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—76.)



1. An electric shoe comprising a pair of relatively slidable heel sections, a rack carried by one of said sections, a pinion rotatably supported in the other section and in engagement with said rack, a generator supported in one of said sections, and means for driving the generator from the pinion.

1,506,283. HYDROCYCLE. QUIRINO BARTOLOMUCCI, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 6, 1923. Serial No. 655,806. 1 Claim. (Cl. 9—18.)

A hydrocycle comprising a frame, a plurality of floats, a propelling mechanism on the lower portion of said frame, a slotted plate attached rigidly to the upper part of said frame, handles integral with the rear edge of said plate, a steering knob slidably mounted on said slotted plate, a steering lever adapted to be rotated by the movements of said knob, a rudder rotatably mounted on the rear lower portion of said frame, and means for transmitting the motion of said steering lever to said rudder.

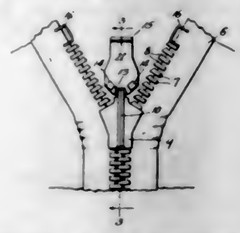
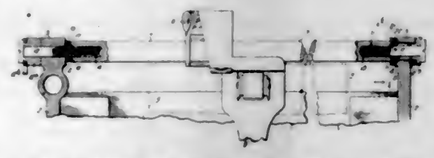
1,506,284. DISINFECTING DEVICE IN COMBINATION WITH TELEPHONE MOUTHPIECES. WILLIAM HENRY BENNETT, Victoria, British Columbia, Canada. Filed June 22, 1922. Serial No. 570,257. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—185.)



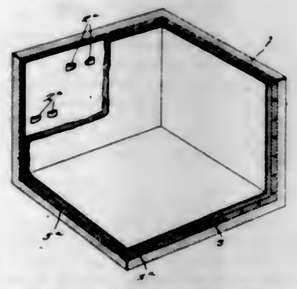
1. A telephone receiver mouth-piece moulded chiefly of gypsum and having its external diameters and shape correspondingly similar to the internal diameters and shape of the standard telephone mouth-piece, and having embedded therein a metal ring with bendable tabs projecting from its exterior surface.

1,506,285. CLOSURE MEMBER. RALPH H. BINNS, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed May 16, 1922. Serial No. 561,383. 6 Claims. (Cl. 24—225.)



6. A closure member including in combination a pair of strips, interengaging arms associated with said strips, an actuating member carried by said strips and adapted to cause an engagement and disengagement of said arms, the end of one of said strips being extended beyond the end of the second of the same and a track carried by said first named strip at a point beyond the end of said second strip.

1,506,286. CLOSURE LOCK. RALPH H. BINNS, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 19, 1922. Serial No. 582,853. 6 Claims. (Cl. 24—205.)



4. In a closure lock, the combination with stringers carrying spaced interlocking members, and an actuating member embracing and sliding upon said interlocking members for effecting their engagement and disengagement, of a plate movably attached to and shaped to fit over said actuating member and engage said interlocking members, and fingers carried by said plate between its ends adapted to engage parts carried by said stringers.

1,506,287. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. HERBERT E. BRIDGWATER, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Remington Typewriter Company, Ilion, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 16, 1924. Serial No. 693,252. 18 Claims. (Cl. 197—139.)

1. In a typewriting machine, the combination of two supports spaced apart, a rod or bar extending between said supports, screws on said supports and threaded into the ends of said rod or bar, and a member separate from said rod and interposed between one of its ends and the adjacent support, one of said screws being effective to cause said member to intersect in self-adjusting fixed relationship with the end of the rod.

1,506,288. ACID-PROOF TANK OR CONTAINER. FERDINAND F. BRUCKER, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Miller Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 19, 1923. Serial No. 681,578. 5 Claims. (Cl. 206—2.)

1. An acid-proof tank comprising a metal body having anchoring devices secured to the walls thereof, a foundation layer of rubber compound having a sheet of reticulated material incorporated therewith, which sheet is engaged by said anchoring devices, and a protecting sheet of rubber compound overlying said foundation layer and united thereto by vulcanization.

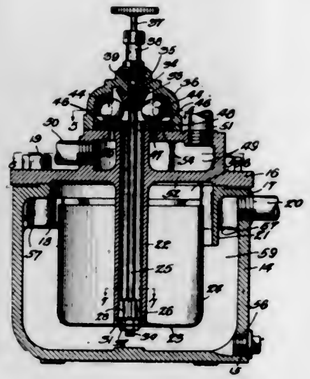
1,506,289. HEEL AND ATTACHING PLATE THEREFOR. ARTHUR W. BUCK, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Cinderella Heel Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed July 16, 1920. Serial No. 396,747. 4 Claims. (Cl. 36—41.)

1. In a shoe including the heel seat portion thereof, a hollow heel having a rearwardly inclined wall, said heel being provided with downwardly inclined passageways, and an obliquely disposed tongue depending from said heel seat portion of the shoe, separated portions of said tongue being adapted to be inserted downwardly into said inclined passageways in said heel to engage the walls of said inclined passageways.



1,506,290. OILER FOR POULTRY AND ANIMALS. JOHN WILLIAM CARDWELL, Republic, Kans., assignor of one-half to Frank Z. Stover, Republic, Kans. Filed Oct. 13, 1923. Serial No. 668,386. 5 Claims. (Cl. 119—157.)

1. An oiler of the class described comprising a supporting frame, a depressible platform mounted in said frame, a rotatable tank mounted above said platform, a connection between said tank and platform whereby depression of the platform will turn the tanks, said tank having means for delivering a predetermined quantity of the contents of the tank on the depression of the platform.

1,506,291. STEAM TRAP. LYLE G. CHASE, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Yarnall-Waring Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 17, 1920. Serial No. 431,351. 12 Claims. (Cl. 137—103.)

1. In a steam trap, a casing adapted to receive steam and water, a bucket therein adapted to float when water has been expelled from it and to sink when it has received water, a guide for the bucket, walls forming a passage leading upwardly from the interior of the bucket, upwardly facing valve seats having passages therethrough in communication with the upper end of the first named passage, ball valves resting in the valve seats when the bucket is raised and mechanism connected with the bucket to move with it, adapted to move the balls positively from their seats when the bucket sinks and permitting them to come back to their seats when the bucket floats.

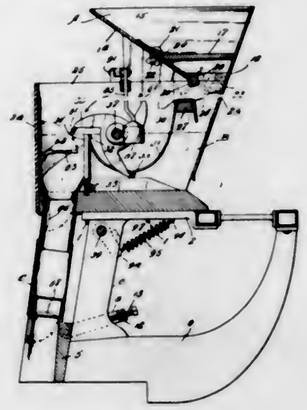
1,506,292. BARBER'S MAGAZINE POWDER BRUSH. SALVATOR CORSELLO, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 4, 1924. Serial No. 690,363. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—138.)

1. In a barber's powder brush, the combination of a brush head, a powder receptacle spaced from but secured to said head, registering apertures in the bottom of said receptacle and in said head, and a valve disk universally slidable between said head and said receptacle, and means for automatically centralizing said disk whereby said registering apertures are normally closed.



1,506,293. SPINDLE APPARATUS FOR CAP SPINNING AND LIKE FRAMES. WALTER DARGUE, Halifax, England. Filed Apr. 16, 1923. Serial No. 632,408. 7 Claims. (Cl. 118—66.)

1. In a spinning apparatus, a stationary bearing, a driving whorl having a non-slidable tubular stem journaled in the said bearing, a non-slidible spindle secured concentric with the said tubular stem, a tube slidable vertically on the said spindle and in the said tubular stem, means for revolving the said tube from the whorl, and a bobbin operatively connected with the said tube.

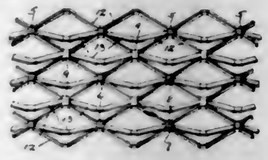
1,506,294. POTATO-PLANTER ATTACHMENT FOR CORN PLANTERS. NICK FABER, Sioux City, Iowa. Filed Feb. 26, 1923. Serial No. 621,162. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—118.)

1. In a potato planter, a main and an auxiliary hopper, means for feeding the potatoes from the main hopper to the auxiliary hopper, means for selectively removing the potatoes from the auxiliary hopper and being normally operatively connected with the feeding means and means located in the auxiliary hopper and adapted to be operated by the accumulation of the potatoes in the auxiliary hopper to interrupt the operative connection between the potato selecting means and the potato feed means.



1,506,295. TAPELINE HOLDER. EMIL FORDER, Jersey City, N. J. Filed July 15, 1922. Serial No. 575,423. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—137.)

1. In a tape line holder the combination of an abutting leg comprising a pair of parallel and adjacent members, a supporting member at right angles to the leg and extending from one of the members thereof, a table extending from the other member of the abutting leg and at right angles thereto, a hook comprising a lower member parallel and adjacent to said table and a prong parallel to and spaced from the lower member of the hook.

1,506,296. RIBBED EXPANDED METAL. DOUGLAS K. FORSYTH, Youngstown, Ohio, assignor of one-third to William S. Lowrie, Akron, Ohio, and one-third to Robert R. Wutt, Massillon, Ohio. Filed July 17, 1922. Serial No. 575,519. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—117.)

1. An expanded metal mesh comprising metal strips arranged in diamond mesh, the strips forming the sides of the diamond being arranged vertically, and connecting strips lengthwise of the diamonds arranged horizontally, the connecting portions forming open ended cups, the longitudinal connecting strips being bowed out of the plane of the mesh to add vertical depth to the reinforcement.

1,506,297. STORAGE-BATTERY CELL. ARTHUR O. GARRETT, San Diego, and CHRISTOPHER E. FUNNELL and WILLIAM L. HOFFMAN, Los Angeles, Calif.; said Funnell and said Garrett assignors to said Hoffman. Filed Nov. 4, 1920. Serial No. 421,698. 3 Claims. (Cl. 204—38.)

1. A storage battery cell, including a jar with end members provided with vertical spaced apart grooves therein extending from the tops of the plates positioned therein to the bottom of the jar and of a width to receive a plate and a pair of separators, plates with their side edges mounted in the middle of said grooves and separator plates with their side edges mounted in said grooves on opposite sides of said edges of said plates, the edges of a plate and two separators lodged in each groove, filling the same.

1. In combination with a garment supporter comprising a keyholed clasp, a button bearing strap with which the keyholed clasp is engaged, the button of the strap having a head engageable throughout the opening of the keyhole clasp at the large portion of the clasp, the bight portion forming the lower end of the smaller portion of the opening of the clasp limiting the downward movement of the button in the opening and combining with the button to maintain the garment engaged therewith, said button having a resilient flange at its upper end, a ring pivoted to said bight portion of the clasp and swingable to engage over the button, said ring being engageable beneath the flange of the button by pressure deforming the flange.

1,506,299. SHIELD. LESTER G. GULDE, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Dec. 6, 1923. Serial No. 678,995. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—48.4.)

1. In a device of the character described, a supporting member, laterally disposed dividing members supported by the supporting member, a guard mounted on the upper portion of the supporting member and including depending members disposed in spaced relation with the supporting member, a hood mounted on the supporting member, said supporting member having a curved cut out portion to accommodate an electric bulb, and shielding members formed with openings to diffuse the light rays projected therethrough.

1,506,300. ILLUMINATING DEVICE FOR TALKING MACHINES. WILLIAM S. HARP, Baltimore, Md. Filed June 15, 1923. Serial No. 645,512. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—2.)

1. The combination with a talking machine cabinet and a lid therefor, of an electric lamp, a guiding means, a resilient strip normally engaging the guiding means, an electrical connection between one terminal of the lamp and the guiding means, an electrical connection between the other terminal of the lamp and the strip, one of said connections including a source of electrical current, and a prop bar movable with the lid and relative to the guide to shift the strip out of contact with and permit its return into contact with the guide.

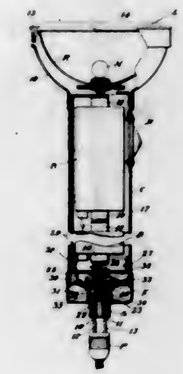
1,506,301. PROCESS OF MAKING SULPHUR DIOXIDE. CHARLES S. HOLLANDER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Rohm & Haas Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct 16, 1922. Serial No. 594,750. 4 Claims. (Cl. 23—1.)

1. The method of producing sulphur dioxide which comprises the steps of spraying a suspension of sulphur and sulphuric acid on a hot plate and permitting their vapors to react.



1,506,302. FLASH LIGHT AND ELECTROLYTIC RECTIFIER. NEVIL MONROE HOPKINS, New York, N. Y., assignor to National Carbon Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 20, 1920. Serial No. 432,022. 16 Claims. (Cl. 240—8.5.)

1. A portable electric lighting device comprising in combination, an electric lamp, a storage battery in circuit with said lamp, a casing for said lamp and said battery, asymmetric conducting means removably disposed in said casing in circuit with said battery and means on said casing for coupling current supply means in circuit with said battery and said asymmetric conducting means.

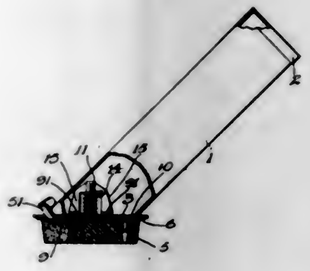
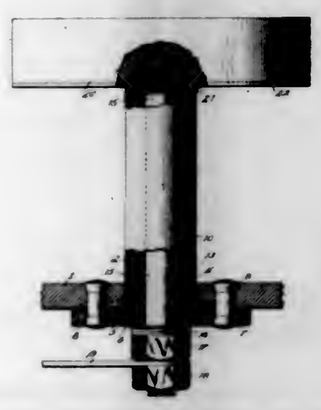
1,506,303. FLASH LIGHT. NEVIL MONROE HOPKINS, New York, N. Y., assignor to National Carbon Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 20, 1920. Serial No. 432,023. 13 Claims. (Cl. 240—8.5.)



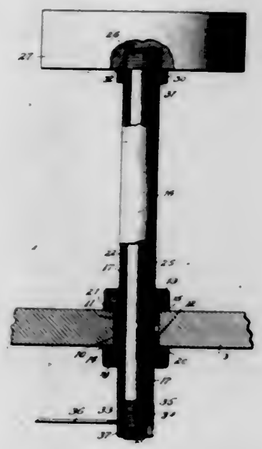
1. A flashlight comprising in combination a tubular casing member, a rechargeable battery in said casing member, an electric lamp in circuit with said battery, means mounted on and closing one end of said member, a cover normally closing the other end of said member, a switch in circuit with said lamp and battery, an insulating device extending through said cover, and electrical terminals carried by said device, connected in circuit with said battery and adapted to be coupled to an electric supply circuit for charging said battery.

1,506,304. BATTERY. LESTER L. JONES, New York, and NORMAN DEXTER STURGES, Bellerose, N. Y.; said Sturges assignor to Multiple Storage Battery Corporation. Filed May 13, 1922. Serial No. 560,547. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)



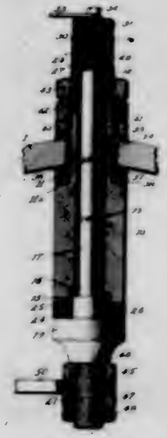
1. In a battery the combination of a plurality of assembled cell units, each consisting of an insulating spacer and dividers of rolled sheet lead forming the walls of the cell, active plates secured to the opposite sides thereof, the dividers serving as supports for the active plates and as electrical connections between the adjacent cells, and means for clamping the spacers and dividers in assembled relation, the spacers and dividers being circular in form whereby the pressure applied by the clamping means is equalized and bucking of the dividers is prevented.

1,506,305. CLEANING IMPLEMENT. GEORGE J. KELLER, Lynn, Mass. Filed Sept. 16, 1922. Serial No. 588,590. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—138.)



2. An implement for purposes substantially as set forth, comprising in combination a working face having pockets, a reservoir handle to contain the substance to be applied by the implement, disposed at an acute angle to the said working face and having one or more outlets through which such substance may find its way from the reservoir to the said pockets, a valve-member spring-actuated to stand normally in closed position and manually operable to open said outlet or outlets, and a stirrer within said reservoir connected with said valve-member and automatically actuated by the spring.

1,506,306. ANODE. ALEXANDER KIRKALDY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Kirkaldy Engineering Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 16, 1923. Serial No. 668,847. 3 Claims. (Cl. 204—4.)

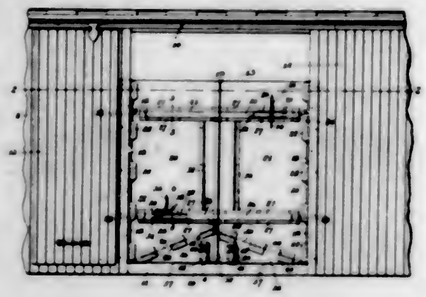


1. An anode of the character described, comprising a metallic disk having one of its faces completely covered with insulating material.

1,506,307. ELECTRODE. ALEXANDER KIRKALDY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Kirkaldy Engineering Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 30, 1923. Serial No. 671,753. 10 Claims. (Cl. 204—1.)

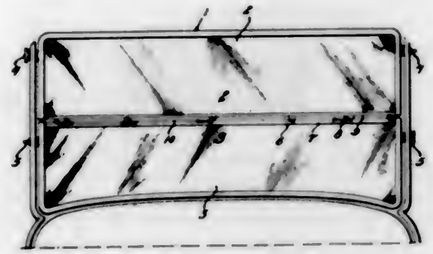
1. In an electrolytic system of the character described, a metallic water containing casing, an electrode projecting within and insulated from said casing capable of being adjusted to vary the extent of its projection within said casing.

1,506,308. ELECTRODE. ALEXANDER KIRKALDY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Kirkaldy Engineering Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 20, 1923. Serial No. 675,871. 7 Claims. (Cl. 204—25.)



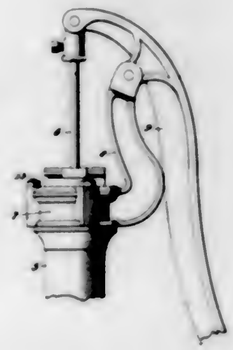
1. In an electrolytic system for the protection of boilers, an electrode having in combination a body member of non-insulating material to project through a boiler shell into exposed position within the boiler and insulated therefrom, and a current conducting member extending through said body member and insulated from said body member and the boiler shell.

1,506,309. TIRE MOUNTING FOR WHEELS. RUDOLPH A. KLATT, Tonawanda, N. Y., assignor to Auto-Wheel Coaster Company, Inc., North Tonawanda, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 22, 1922. Serial No. 570,119. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—6.)



A tire mounting for a wheel having a felloe, comprising a channel adapted to be arranged on said felloe with its trough facing outwardly, a metal band engaging with the bottom of the trough of said channel, an elastic tire arranged in the trough of said channel and resting on said band, and means adapted to connect said felloe, band and channel, said tire resting freely in said channel and being disconnected from said felloe.

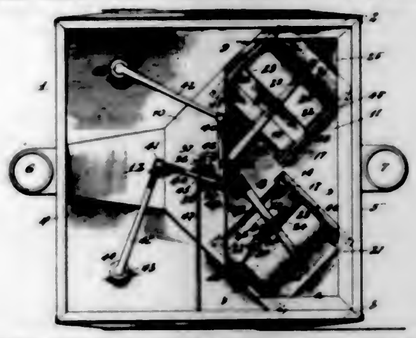
1,506,310. GRAIN CAR DOOR. MARTIN KLAUS, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Nov. 26, 1921. Serial No. 518,059. 8 Claims. (Cl. 20—28.)



1. A car provided with a door opening, a door comprising two members hinged to opposite sides of the door opening and meeting at the center thereof, a slide bolt on each door member adapted to engage the other door member, and a triangular auxiliary section movably applied to the lower edge of each door member and forming part thereof, each of said auxiliary sections being movable independently of said door members and having one of its three edges alined with the outer or free edge of the door member to which it is applied.

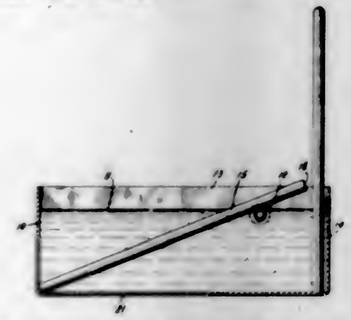
1,506,311. WEATHER STRIP. LOUIS B. KNIGHT, Atlantic City, N. J. Filed Feb. 8, 1923. Serial No. 617,715. 5 Claims. (Cl. 296—93.)

5. A weather strip comprising a transparent strip and a transparent rib projecting from the strip and adapted to fit between the opposed edges of a pair of windshield glass plates, the rib consisting of a channel-shaped strip having its edges secured to the transparent strip.



1,506,312. PUMP. GEORGE G. KLENZMANN, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Filed Feb. 2, 1924. Serial No. 690,273. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—217.)

1. The combination of a pump cap having a plurality of hook bolts disposed therein, and a pump standard fitting inside said cap, and grooved to receive the hooks of said bolts, and provided with a bolt supporting flange with a single gap to admit a bolt.



1,506,313. GAS METER. GEORGE A. LANE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to American Meter Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 9, 1919. Serial No. 270,303. 2 Claims. (Cl. 73—1.)

1. In a gas meter, in combination, a suitable casing, a valve table in said casing, a valve seat, a valve cover on said seat, an operating shaft, a valve arm connecting the shaft with the cover, said arm being pivotally connected at its front end with the rear part of the cover, and provided at an intermediate portion with an anti-friction roller, a bracket carried by the cover and having a curved slot therein, which receives the antifriction roller, whereby two connections between the valve arm and the cover are obtained for reciprocating the cover.

1,506,314. METHOD OF COATING TUBULAR ARTICLES BY IMMERSION. MORRIS LOWY, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 555,381. 2 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)

1. The method herein described of coating substantially U-shaped tubular objects, which consists in immersing the major portion of the object in a bath of coating material with its open ends projecting above the coating material, and then dipping the open ends of the object into the coating material so as to coat those portions thereof which were left uncoated during the first immersing step.

1,506,315. RUBBER HEEL. ALBERT B. LYWITZKI, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 14, 1923. Serial No. 625,008. 2 Claims. (Cl. 36—38.)

1. A cushioned heel comprising a body portion formed of rubber and having a recess formed in its upper face, a plate conforming to the shape of the recess supported therein, a series of cushioning springs supported on said plate, a second plate adapted to conform to the shape of the recess and similar in structure to the first mentioned plate adapted to be supported by the cushioning springs.

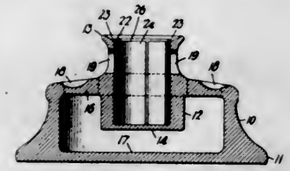
each of said plates being provided with an enlarged central opening and small openings therethrough adapted to register with each other and with a passageway through each of the cushioning springs, and means for fastening said rubber portion and cushioning springs to the heel of a shoe.

1,506,316. PYRAZOLONE DYE AND PROCESS OF MAKING THE SAME. EUGENE A. MARKUSH, Jersey City, N. J., assignor to Pharma-Chemical Corporation, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 9, 1923. Serial No. 611,637. 16 Claims. (Cl. 260—87.)

1. The process for the manufacture of dyes which comprises coupling with a halogen-substituted pyrazolone, a diazotized unsulphonated material selected from the group consisting of aniline, homologues of aniline and halogen substitution products of aniline.

15. The yellow coloring matter which may be obtained by coupling to halogen-substitution products of pyrazolone, a diazotized unsulphonated material selected from the group consisting of aniline, homologues of aniline and halogen substitution products of aniline; the matter being capable of dyeing silk and wool in acidulated baths.

1,506,317. METHOD OF MAKING RUBBERIZED PARCHMENT PAPER AND THE PRODUCT THEREOF. THOMAS CLARENCE MARSHALL, Yorklyn, Del., and JAMES LEWIS MCCLELLAN, Kennett Square, Pa.; said McClellan assignor to said Marshall. Filed Dec. 16, 1922. Serial No. 607,418. 6 Claims. (Cl. 92—21.)

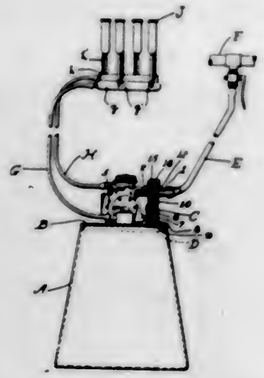


1. The herein described method of making rubberized fibre consisting in adding rubber latex to paper in the process of manufacture, coagulating the latex and hydrating the cellulose.

1,506,318. CAN OPENER. JESSE S. MOORE and JEROME MEYER, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 29, 1922. Serial No. 557,334. 1 Claim. (Cl. 30—3.)

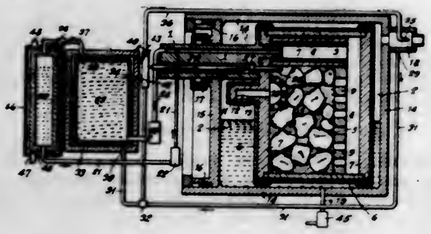
A can opener comprising a lever arm having at its front end a forwardly projecting curved prong adapted to penetrate the top and side wall of a can to provide two spaced fulcrum points, a fulcrum-blade overhanging said prong, and a curvilinear blade carried by the lever arm, as and for the purpose described.

1,506,319. MATCH SAFE. JACOB E. NEAHR, Hartsdale, N. Y. Filed Oct. 5, 1921. Serial No. 505,632. 14 Claims. (Cl. 206—20.)



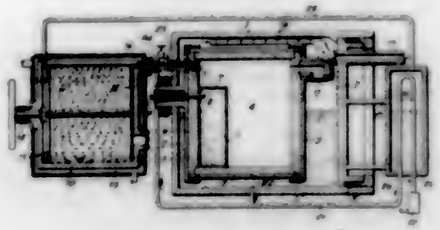
1. An open-top ash-receptacle formed of molded ware, and having integral therewith a match-safe nested within and rising above the ash-receptacle, and provided at its upper portion with a side perforation in which to insert a match to be struck against an igniting device fitting within the match-safe.

1,506,320. HIGH-FREQUENCY ELECTRIC ARC. EDWIN FITCH NORTHRUP, Princeton, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Ajax Electrothermic Corporation, Trenton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 30, 1919. Serial No. 314,242. 20 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)



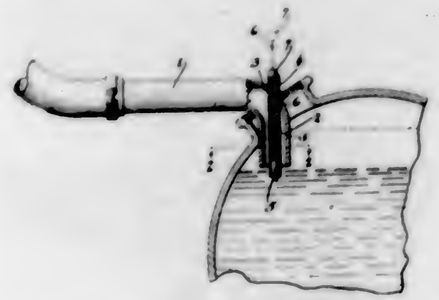
1. A plurality of electrodes arranged to present a plurality of gaps for electric arcs in combination with a source of high frequency alternating current supply therefor and an inductance in series with the parallel arcs.

1,506,321. MILKING MACHINE PULSATOR. ERNEST C. OAKES, Bloomfield, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Empire Milking Machine Company, Bloomfield, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 1, 1922. Serial No. 548,688. 3 Claims. (Cl. 31—101.)



1. In a milking machine, a vacuum actuated pulsator, a common vacuum pipe connecting with a teat-cup pulsator port and valves and with a milk pail port and valve, a trap in the pulsator port connection and a separate trap in the milk pail valve connection.

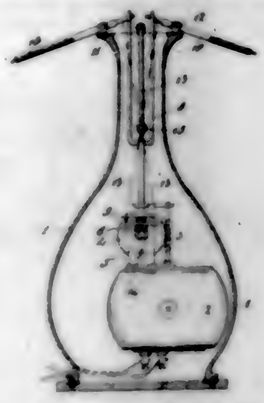
1,506,322. METHOD AND MEANS OF PRODUCING HEAT. JOHN HUGH O'NEILL, Springfield, Mo. Filed Dec. 5, 1919. Serial No. 342,832. 7 Claims. (Cl. 110—1.)



1. The method of producing heat away from atmospheric air which consists in liquefying ammonium nitrate, mixing the same with alcohol in predetermined proportions, and vaporizing and burning the mixture.

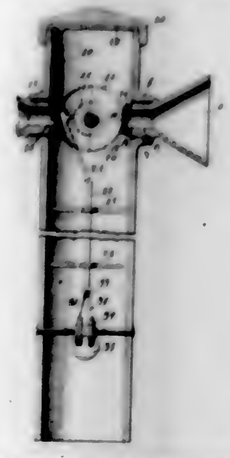
1,506,323. METHOD AND MEANS OF PRODUCING HEAT. JOHN HUGH O'NEILL, Springfield, Mo. Filed Dec. 5, 1919. Serial No. 342,833. 5 Claims. (Cl. 110—1.)

1. The method of producing heat away from atmospheric air which consists in mixing a pulverized fuel with a normally solid combustent, applying heat to the mixture to melt the combustent and reduce the mixture to a soft mushy condition, conveying the soft mixture at a governed rate to a combustion chamber which has been previously heated to temperature above the ignition point of the mixture.



1,506,324. OIL GAUGE. JOHN W. OWENS, Jefferson, Iowa, assignor of one-half to Charles G. Keller, Jefferson, Iowa. Filed Sept. 14, 1923. Serial No. 662,701. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—118.)

In a filling device of the class described, a pipe section having one end thereof bent downwardly to provide an elbow, the crown portion of said elbow being provided with an opening disposed on a vertical axis concentric with the dependent portion of said elbow, a tube securely fitted in said opening and having its end projecting respectively above the crown of said elbow and below the lower end of the latter, a float movably mounted in said tube, an elongated stem carried by said float and projecting thereabove, and an enlarged member mounted on the upper end of said stem to form a handle and indicator for said float, said member being adapted to be seated on the upper peripheral edge of said tube when the float is in its lowermost position.



1,506,325. AUTOMATIC FAN. ETTORE PARISI, Rome, Italy. Filed Sept. 25, 1922. Serial No. 590,458. 1 Claim. (Cl. 230—1.)

A fan comprising a stem or casing, a motor therein, including a worm, a gear engaged by said worm, a crank revoluble by said gear, a forked rod mounted for vertical movement and having a slot in which the pin of the crank operates, and fans pivotally mounted on said stems or casing and connected to the forks of said rod for operation thereby.

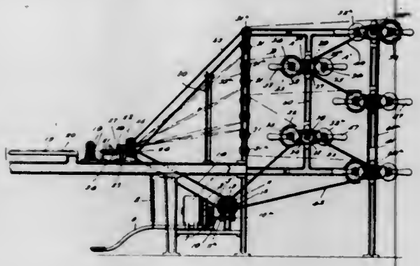
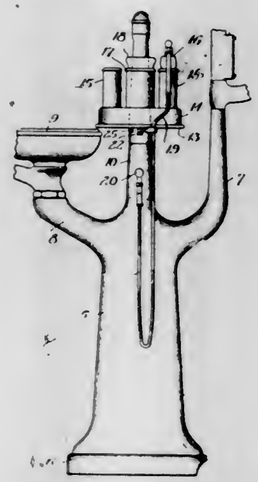
1,506,326. RAILWAY CROSSING SIGNAL. EDGAR T. PARKER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 24, 1923. Serial No. 627,450. 8 Claims. (Cl. 246—294.)



2. In a signalling device, a supporting element, a shaft carried thereby, a visible signal carried by the shaft, audible signal members carried by the supporting elements and including a vibrating diaphragm, anvils carried by said diaphragm, a toothed wheel arranged upon the shaft for rotation therewith and adapted to engage the anvils whereby rotation of the shaft will simultaneously produce a visible and audible signal, and means for imparting movement to the shaft.

1,506,327. APPARATUS FOR CUTTING AND WINDING FABRIC STRIPS. JOSEPH E. PERRAULT, Watertown, Mass., assignor to Hood Rubber Company, Watertown, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 17, 1922. Serial No. 537,270. 18 Claims. (Cl. 242—64.)



3. In apparatus of the class described, a support having spaced wall portions, a driving shaft journaled in said wall portions, a driving wheel fast on said shaft between said wall portions with means for operating it, said shaft projecting through said wall portions, driving wheels fast on said projecting portions, spool carriers rotatably mounted on said projecting portions, spindles rotatably mounted on said carrier on opposite sides of said shaft portions, means for driving said spindles from said driving wheels, spools on said spindles, and means for rotating said carrier and for holding it in desired positions.

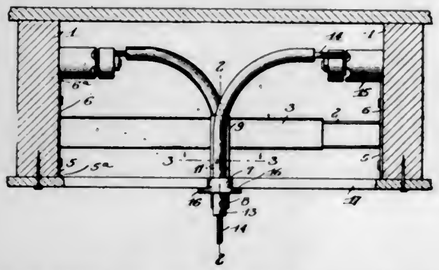
1,506,328. DENTAL EQUIPMENT STAND. ALPHONSE F. PIEPER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Jan. 26, 1923 Serial No. 615,178. 4 Claims. (Cl. 32—3.)

1. A dental equipment stand provided with an instrument and with means for removably supporting the latter thereon, a flexible conductor connected at one end with said instrument and at the other with said stand and having its intermediate portion looped to provide for extensible movement of said instrument, and an arm pivotally mounted at one end adjacent said supporting means and provided at its other end with a keeper portion for retaining the looped portion of said conductor adjacent said stand.



1,506,329. HAT HOLDER. WILFORD H. PIKE, Oakland, Calif. Filed Apr. 16, 1923. Serial No. 632,209. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—13.)

1. A hat rack comprising a fastening plate, flanges on said plate, a holding frame pivoted to said flanges, said holding frame comprising a hat ring, arms connecting said ring to said flanges and provided with a plurality of notches, an adjusting link pivoted to said flanges and adapted to project into any one of the said notches whereby the ring might be held in any one of a plurality of positions.

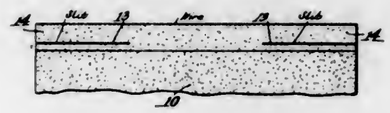
1,506,330. SUPPORT FOR ELECTRICAL FIXTURES. BURTON A. VANDY, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Sarah Vandy, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Mar. 27, 1922. Serial No. 546,951. 5 Claims. (Cl. 247—1.)

4. A support for electrical fixtures comprising two channel members one of which is received within the other and the channel in the members being opposed, and anchoring lugs extending outwardly in opposite direction from the side walls of each of the channel members, said lugs at each end having different lengths, and each of said lugs having its outer edge positioned to the same distance from the longitudinal axis of the hanger that a lug in the opposite end has its edge positioned from such axis.



1,506,331. TOOL HOLDER. IVÁN BENKO, Vienna, Austria. Filed July 19, 1921. Serial No. 485,945. 10 Claims. (Cl. 10—135.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

3. A tool-holder comprising, in combination a driving member, a driven member for the cutting tool laterally and axially yieldingly coupled to the driving member, a sleeve arranged between the driving and driven members and adapted to be driven by the driving member, and a spring axially located in the said sleeve adapted to be rotated by the latter and coupling the said two members with one another, said spring permitting of a lateral swinging motion of the axis of the tool.

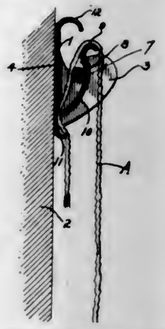
1,506,332. BIB OR APRON FOR DENTISTS' USE AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM O. BLOOM, Boylston, Mass. Filed Apr. 25, 1923. Serial No. 634,616. 4 Claims. (Cl. 2—49.)

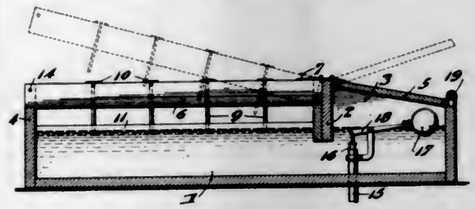
1. As an article of manufacture, a bib or apron for the purpose described formed from a piece of paper substantially rectanguiar at the top having the top doubled over on itself and pasted to the body of the bib and slit inwardly from its opposite edges within the area of the doubled over portion to form two straps separated from the body of the paper and adapted to pass around the neck of the wearer, these straps having means by which they can be connected together at the back, whereby the straps and the upper edge of the bib just below the straps near the side edges are reinforced by being formed of double thickness.

1,506,333. REAR AXLE FOR MOTOR VEHICLES CONSTITUTING A DRIVING AND CHANGE-SPEED UNIT. GERMAIN PIERRE BONNEVIE, Rive-de-Gier, France. Filed Aug. 7, 1920. Serial No. 401,992. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—58.)



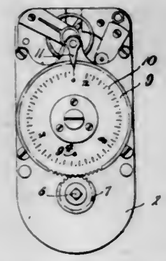
1. In a drive axle assemblage and gear box, a drive shaft passing through said box, a first clutch member supported and driven by one end of said shaft, a second clutch member loosely mounted on the shaft, a differential mechanism, reducing gearing adapted to connect the second clutch member to said differential mechanism, a clutch element on said reducing gearing, a second clutch element on the second clutch member adapted to be engaged by the first mentioned clutch element and forming one of the parts for driving the differential mechanism directly from the shaft, and a train of reducing gears connected constantly with the second clutch member and cooperating with the reducing gearing for permitting a plurality of speeds forward when the clutch elements are not in direct engagement.

1,506,334. SIGNAL. JESSE G. BOVEY, Lincoln, Nebr. Filed May 21, 1923. Serial No. 640,459. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)



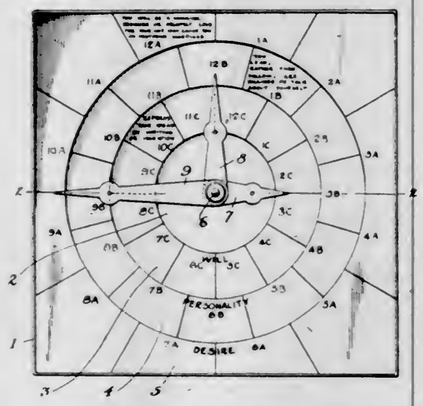
1. In an actuating device for vehicle signals, a support having an aperture therein, an L-shaped tubular member secured at one of its extremities in the aperture of said support, a plurality of tubular members of decreasing diameters telescoping into each other and into said L-shaped tubular member, a rigid rod slidable into the tubular member of least diameter, and a flexible rod secured at the inner extremity of said rigid rod and passing through all of said tubular members and projecting beyond said support.

1,506,335. RACK. WALTER G. BROWN, Balboa, Canal Zone, Panama. Filed Mar. 19, 1923. Serial No. 626,093. 8 Claims. (Cl. 45—32.)



1. A device of the class described including a base member, a rocking support, means engaging the end portions of the rocking support for pivotally mounting the rocking support in spaced relation to the base member with its lower edge held in contacting engagement with the base member, by the weight of an article hung over its upper edge and adapted to grip a portion of the article extending between its lower edge and the base member.

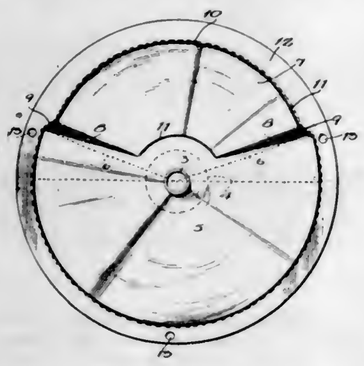
1,506,336. STOCK-WATERING TROUGH. WILLIAM COMBELLICK, Gettysburg, S. Dak. Filed Sept. 8, 1922. Serial No. 586,907. 4 Claims. (Cl. 119—80.)



1. In a stock watering trough comprising, with a trough structure having its ends extending above the sides, a central rail supported by said extending ends hinged on one end to be swung up from the trough, and guard members carried transversely by said central rail and engaging with the sides of the trough when the rail is lowered.

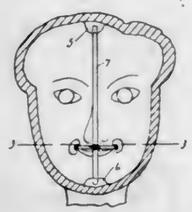
1,506,337. SIGNAL FOR TIME LOCKS. FRANKLIN E. CRAWFORD, Winchester, Mass., assignor to Bankers Electric Protective Association, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 26, 1923. Serial No. 621,145. 7 Claims. (Cl. 161—1.)

1. In combination with a time clock having a rotary setting dial, a driver moving in time with the dial, a support provided with a series of spaced contacts arranged in a circular arc coaxial with the axis of the clock dial, a lamp in circuit with each contact, and a circuit closer moving in a circular path and successively engaging the several contacts, said circuit closer having an element with which the driver engages.



1,506,338. GAME. WILBUR F. DROWN, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 10, 1923. Serial No. 631,244. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—56.)

5. A game device comprising circular indicia-bearing cards forming a circular stepped well, and a central spindle carrying hands in said well, one hand for each card and at the level of that card, the indicia being in separate sets, one for each card, and the hands separately movable.



1,506,339. REFLECTOR. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN GIFT, Dunkirk, Ind. Filed Apr. 3, 1923. Serial No. 629,688. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—41.)

A reflector adapted to be provided with a source of light and comprising a parabolic shell having its upper portion indented thereby forming a pair of opposed semi-paraboloid upper and lower surfaces with their axes angularly arranged, the receding portions of the depressed upper section being formed on smaller arcs than the corresponding portions of the lower section and located entirely above the horizontal plane passing through the axis of the lower parabolic section, the upper parabolic section being located within the circumference of the lower parabolic section, the longitudinal adjacent edges of the sections being joined by a portion which gradually decreases in width from the front to the rear where it merges into the curved rear portions of both sections, the rear end of the upper parabolic section being formed on an arc of a circle and located appreciably above a horizontal plane passing through the axis of the lower parabolic section.

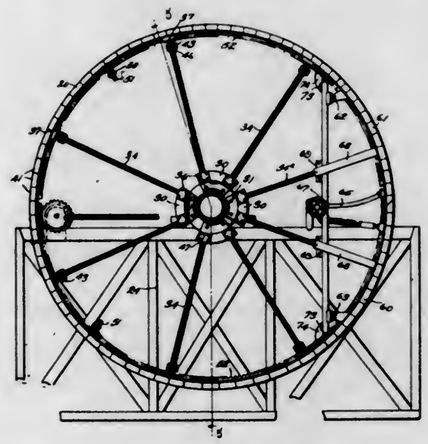
1,506,340. DOLL. JAMES S. GRAHAM, San Diego, Calif. Filed Nov. 8, 1921. Serial No. 513,642. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)

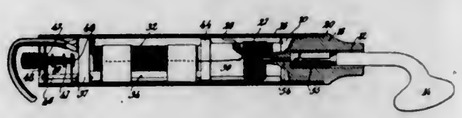
1. A doll's head of the class described, including a hollow head provided with an expansible and contractible mouth portion, levers pivoted together intermediate their ends, connected to the opposite sides of said mouth portion and extending out through the back side of the head adapted to expand and contract the mouth portion.

1,506,341. MOTOR BRAKE FOR ELECTRIC HOISTS. ETHAN N. HESCOCK, Westfield, N. J., assignor to New Jersey Foundry and Machine Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 19, 1923. Serial No. 640,156. 8 Claims. (Cl. 188—82.)



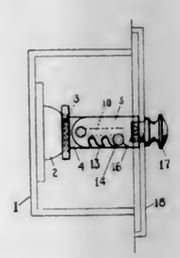
1. In a hoist mechanism the combination of a power shaft, means to operate it to raise a load, two friction brakes, one to hold the load and the other controlling the actuating member of the first friction brake.

1,506,342. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR PREPARING MOLD SURFACES. MYRON F. HILL, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 18, 1920. Serial No. 366,955. 7 Claims. (Cl. 22—123.)



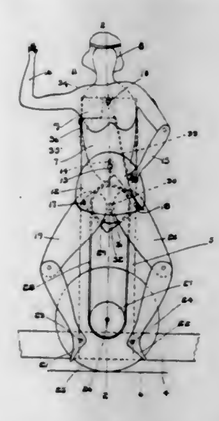
1. The method of preparing molds which consists of rolling a permeable comminuted refractory filler material onto a multiplicity of rigidly mounted studs or retaining devices to hold the same in place when inverted.

1,506,343. PRINTING DRUM. ELBRIDGE R. HOLMES, WALTER Y. ROBB, and CHARLES R HOWARD, Worcester, Mass., assignors to Crompton & Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Dec. 21, 1922. Serial No. 608,298. 6 Claims. (Cl. 242—115.)



1. In a textile printing machine, a drum made in unitary sections, a supporting shaft for said drum, connections between said sections, and means to separately support each section on said shaft, each section and its supporting means being removable as a unit from said machine.

1,506,344. VIOLET-RAY GENERATOR. BENNO F. JANCKE, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Eastern Laboratories, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 31, 1923. Serial No. 616,091. 9 Claims. (Cl. 250—36.)

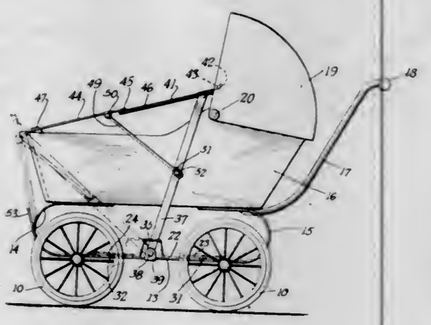


1. A violet ray generator, comprising a spool or frame, having portions of reduced diameter, coils and a condenser on said reduced portion, and a tube adapted to slip onto said spool and cover said coils and condenser, said spool having portions having a diameter corresponding to that of said tube for supporting the same.

1,506,345. MOUNTING DEVICE FOR LIGHTING FIXTURES. ANDY JANOVSKY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Shapiro & Aronson, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 26, 1923. Serial No. 676,940. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—85.)

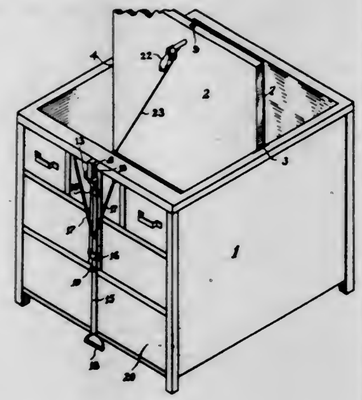
1. A fixture support comprising an L shaped member having a slot forming a guide in its horizontal portion and a threaded opening in its vertical portion, a second L shaped member having a threaded opening in its vertical portion, serrations on one edge of the horizontal portion, a detent on the first named portion adapted to engage said serrations, a pin slidable in said guide, which secures the two horizontal portions of said members together.

1,506,346. TOY. BERNARD P. JOHNSON, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Aug. 31, 1923. Serial No. 660,349. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



1. A dancing doll comprising a figure having vertically movable hip and breast portions, mechanism adapted to impart to both portions a rocking movement and to the hip portion a simultaneous vertical movement, and additional mechanism adapted to impart to the breast portion an independent vertical movement of greater frequency than that of the hips.

1,506,347. SAFETY BABY CARRIAGE. MICHAEL KAHNE, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 22, 1923. Serial No. 682,343. 7 Claims. (Cl. 280—47.)



1. In combination with a baby carriage having a body and a hood pivoted thereover, of a pair of rigid plates slidably engaged together and disposable over said body when extended, means on one of said plates engageable with said hood whereby it is securely held, and a lock fixed in said body to engage the other plate.

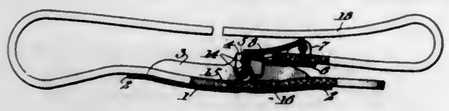
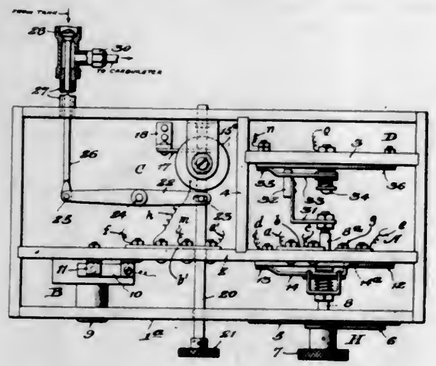
1,506,348. DESK FOR CASHIERS. ISRAEL KAMIN, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Jan. 14, 1924. Serial No. 686,154. 2 Claims. (Cl. 89—36.)



1. In a device of the class described, a bullet-proof top tiltably mounted therein, a lock adapted to secure same in its normal position, tripping means associated with said lock to actuate same upon depression, gravity means to tilt the top to a vertical position upon depression of the tripping means, a drawer situated beneath said top having locking means, and an incline adapted to divert articles precipitated off the top into the drawer.

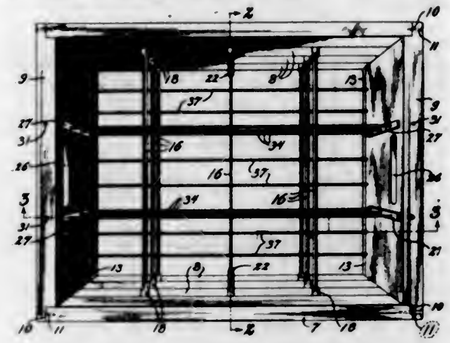


2. In a device of the class described, the combination with a bullet-proof top tiltably mounted in the desk, of a gun affixed to said top, a flexible element connected to the trigger thereof and to the desk frame whereby the gun is discharged upon said top reaching a vertical position.

1,506,349. CLAMPING BUCKLE. ALLEN H. KERNGOOD, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Alma Manufacturing Company of Baltimore City, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Nov. 19, 1923. Serial No. 675,699. 8 Claims. (Cl. 24—191.)

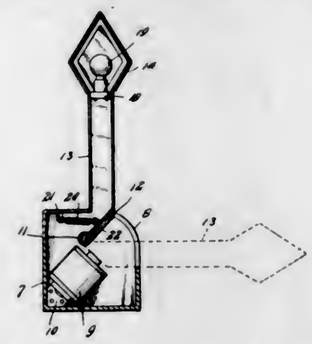
1. A clamping buckle, having a face plate and rearwardly projecting opposite side flanges provided with inturned bearing members, and a lever clamping member pivotally mounted in said bearings, said side flanges having inwardly inclined lips past which the lever clamping member is snapped and thereby held in locked position.

1,506,350. ANTITHEFT DEVICE FOR AUTOMOBILES. STEPHEN M. KUKURA, Struthers, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Michael B. Chuey. Filed Aug. 1, 1921. Serial No. 489,034. 4 Claims. (Cl. 177—314.)



1. An anti-theft device for motor vehicles adapted to close the fuel line, lock the ignition system, and sound an alarm device; comprising, a panel member, a key controlled main switch accessible from the face of the panel, a knob and dial also exposed on the panel, a valve in the fuel line, a manually shiftable rod projecting through the panel and operatively connected with the valve, means for locking said rod including a rod engaging member and an electro-magnet adapted to be in circuit with said key controlled main switch, a rotary switch also included in circuit with said main switch and ignition line and controlled by said knob, and an alarm switch also included in circuit with the main switch and the alarm device, and said alarm switch being controlled by said knob.

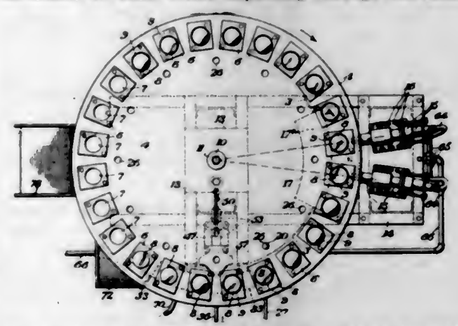
1,506,351. PROCESS FOR DETERMINING THE DYE ADSORPTION OF SOILS. EDWIN C. E. LORD, Washington, D. C., dedicated, by mesne assignments, to the Citizens of the United States of America. Filed Dec. 13, 1923. Serial No. 680,485. 1 Claim. (Cl. 23—30.) (Filed under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.)



A process for determining the dye adsorption of soils for estimating their physical properties in road improvement investigations, consisting in mixing a small quantity of soil with sufficient dye solution to cause coagulation of the soil, the solution being thereby decolorized, transferring the whole to a filtering tube as described, where the decolorized dye solution is drained through the tube into a graduate, in passing further quantities of dye solution through the soil in said tube until the soil becomes saturated with dye and the filtrate in the tube shows a slight coloration, and in finally determining the quantity of dye adsorbed from the volume of the decolorized filtrate collected in the graduate tube.

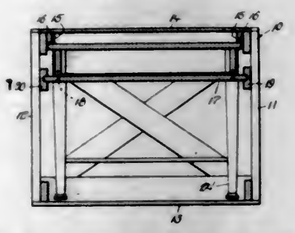
1,506,352. BOTTLE CRATE. MICHAEL ZIMMERMAN, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 25, 1922. Serial No. 577,352. 8 Claims. (Cl. 217—22.)

1. A structure of the class described including members provided with spaced apertures and having angular bent ends adapted to pass into recesses formed in the opposite corresponding walls of the structure, members having the ends passing through the apertures and into sockets formed in the walls, and members intersecting said second named members and anchored to the other opposite corresponding walls of the structure.



1,506,353. VEHICLE DIRECTION INDICATOR. VELETTA ADAMSON, Pocatello, Idaho. Filed Apr. 24, 1923. Serial No. 634,235. 1 Claim. (Cl. 177—329.)

A vehicle direction indicator including a casing of rectangular section having a plurality of corners and formed with an opening in one corner thereof, an electromagnet mounted diagonally in said casing, a signal arm pivotally mounted in said casing adjacent the end of the electromagnet and provided with a bevelled end portion adjacent the pivot, said arm extending through the opening in the casing, means for normally holding the arm in an upright position, and an armature mounted on the bevelled end of the signal member adapted to be attracted by said energized electromagnet for moving said arm from the vertical position about its pivot to a horizontal signalling position.



1,506,354. SHRAPNEL-SALVAGING APPARATUS AND METHOD. GUSTAVE ALLISON, Perth Amboy, N. J., assignor to Columbia Salvage Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,105. 26 Claims. (Cl. 86—1.)

23. In an apparatus of the class set forth, the combination of a frame, an upright post supported in the frame, a turntable rotatably held to the post and provided with an annular series of equally spaced shell-body receiving apertures and an annular series of equally spaced latch-bolt receiving apertures, an upstanding latch bolt reciprocably supported on the frame under the turntable adapted to engage in the bolt receiving apertures, a spring normally urging the bolt upwardly, a treadle pivotally held to the frame and operatively connected with the latch bolt for retracting said latch bolt, a power-operated hammer mounted on the frame below the level of the turntable and arranged radially of the table with its impact end adjacent the outer edge of the path of movement of shell bodies depending through the shell-body receiving apertures, said latch bolt being arranged to lock the table with a shell body in line with said hammer upon engagement of the latch bolt in each successive latch-bolt aperture, said table being adapted to support shell-bodies inserted head end down in the shell-body receiving apertures by engagement of the retaining bands on the shell bodies with the upper face of the table, and an anvil mounted on the frame under the turntable between the post and hammer and having its outer edge curved on an arc concentric with the path of movement of shell bodies on the turntable and adapted to be engaged by the side walls of such shell bodies as they are carried between the anvil and hammer.

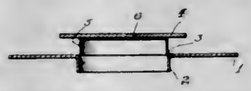
1,506,355. PACKING CRATE. GORDON L. ASTON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 31, 1923. Serial No. 671,969. 9 Claims. (Cl. 217—36.)



1. Means for packing an article of furniture in the nature of a table or bench comprising a carrier member detachably fastened to the bottom of the article and projecting at both of its ends beyond the adjacent portions of the article, and a crate for housing the article and having each of two opposed walls severally equipped with a support having a groove for slidably receiving an end of said carrier member.

1,506,356. MEANS FOR UNITING TWO METAL PARTS. JOSEPH BOTT, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Bastian Bros. Co., Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 3, 1922. Serial No. 526,838. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—20.)

The combination with a name plate, of a cup shaped member having its bottom secured to the name plate within the edges of the latter, the annular wall of the cup shaped member being throughout its height substantially perpendicular to the rear face of the name plate and lying within the edges of the name plate, so that the name plate projects beyond the wall to provide an abutting surface, and a sheet metal part to which the name plate is secured having an opening and also a flat wall about the opening with which the projecting portion of the name plate engages, the opening having projected about it an annular flange, the inner wall of which flares slightly adjacent the flat surface on the sheet metal member and the inner wall of the flange beyond said flaring portion being perpendicular to the flat surface of the sheet metal member about the opening and being engaged by the external surface of the annular flange of the cup shaped member, the diameter of the internal surface of the annular flange being slightly less than the diameter of the external surface of the cup shaped member and the diameter of the flaring portion of the internal wall of the flange on the sheet metal member being slightly greater than the external diameter of the flange of the cup shaped member, and the flanges on the sheet metal member and the cup shaped member, both being resilient so that when the flange of the cup shaped member is introduced into the opening of the sheet metal member its edge is compressed by the flaring portion of said opening in order that the flange of the cup shaped member may enter the flange of the sheet metal member and, when the name plate about the cup shaped member abuts the flat portion about the opening in the sheet metal member, the flange of the cup shaped member will lie in the flange of the sheet metal member thus slightly expanding the latter and causing one flange to be in a condition of compression and the other in a condition of expansion substantially throughout both flanges.

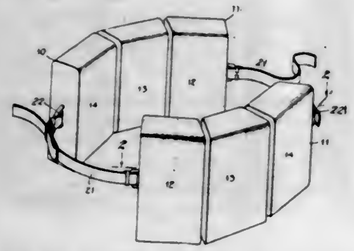
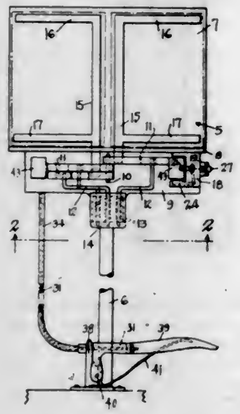
1,506,357. MEANS FOR UNITING TWO PARTS. JOSEPH BOTT and CHARLES F. MITCHEL, Rochester, N. Y., assignors to Bastian Bros. Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 6, 1923. Serial No. 679,030. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—20.)



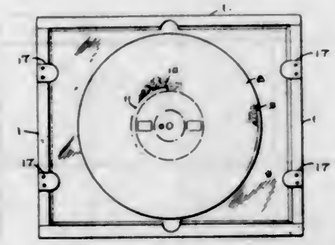
1. In combination with two members to be united, one of which is provided with an opening with a cylindrical wall, and the other of which has a cylindrical flange fitted in said opening, spring arms extending through said flange from a point within the latter to cooperate with the cylindrical wall in order to have binding engagement with the latter.

1,506,358. SENDING ARRANGEMENT FOR WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY. OTTO v. BRONK, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Gesellschaft für Drahtlose Telegraphie m. b. H. Hallesches, Berlin, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Sept. 3, 1921. Serial No. 498,427. (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.) 4 Claims. (Cl. 250—17.)



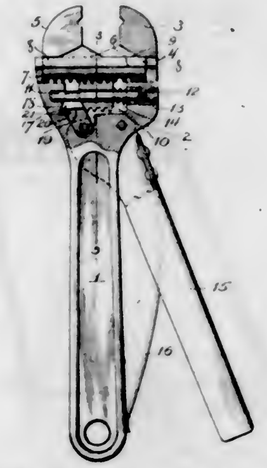
1. The method of controlling the radiation from a plurality of separated radiators which consists in radiating currents of low intensity having a frequency difference equal to the frequency to be transmitted, receiving said currents at each of the radiators, and utilizing the received currents to control the radiation from the radiators.

1,506,359. SWIMMING BELT. SIGMUND BOWER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 8, 1923. Serial No. 656,380. 6 Claims. (Cl. 9—17.)



1. A belt of the class described comprising a plurality of buoyant bodies having apertures extending therethrough, elastic bands mounted in the apertures of said bodies and the ends of which project therethrough, means for securing the separate ends of said bands and for coupling the same together, strap members secured to the protruding ends of said bands, and one of said strap members being provided with a strap attaching and retaining device, the apertures through the outer of said buoyant bodies converging outwardly.

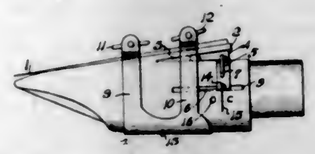
1,506,360. MUSIC-LEAF TURNER. REMO BRIASCO, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 19, 1924. Serial No. 687,170. 2 Claims. (Cl. 84—498.)



1. A sheet turning device comprising a pintle, a plurality of turning elements mounted on said pintle longitudinally thereof and in pivotal relation thereto, a housing, a plurality of levers pivotally mounted in said housing and individually associated with said turning elements to operate them, individual springs for operating said levers, each of said turning elements having a flattened portion at one end thereof, and means for securing said turning elements against operation by said levers and for releasing said turning elements for operation by said levers comprising a lever having fingers for engaging the flattened portions of some of said turning elements, a lever for engaging the flattened portions when the lever fingers are withdrawn, and means for operating said levers simultaneously.

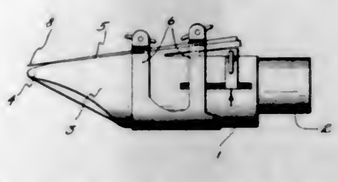
1,506,361. DISK PRINTING. FRANCIS J. BULASK, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Pictures Development Co., Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 14, 1920. Serial No. 396,046. 3 Claims. (Cl. 95—73.)

1. A printing apparatus including a transparent base, a centering pin rising therefrom, an angular position determining guide pin also rising therefrom, said pins providing means for assembly of a positive transparency and a light sensitive means thereon, and a holder for yieldably applying pressure to hold the pin assembled transparency and sensitive means firmly against the base for light ray printing on said sensitive means.



1,506,362. WRENCH. ALVIN O. CARMAN, Potterville, Mich. Filed Mar. 14, 1923. Serial No. 625,033. 2 Claims. (Cl. 81—87.)

1. In a wrench, the combination of a frame, a fixed jaw thereon, a movable jaw slidably mounted on the frame, yieldable means tending constantly to move said jaw to open position, a slidably mounted member operatively connected with the movable jaw to move the same to closed position, a lever handle fulcrumed on the frame adjacent the fixed jaw, and a wedge-shaped dog pivoted at one end eccentrically to the lever handle and having its opposite end disposed between and slidably engaged with a wall of the frame and the adjacent opposed end of the slidable member.



1,506,363. CLARINET AND SAXOPHONE MOUTHPIECE. HIPPOLYTE MARIUS CHIRON and FREDERIC PARME, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 23, 1922. Serial No. 602,879. Renewed Apr. 28, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 84—383.)

1. In combination with a saxophone or clarinet mouthpiece having a flat lay surface thereon, a reed on said lay surface, a wedge under a portion of the mouthpiece beneath said lay surface and adapted to tilt said reed, means for securing said wedge in place, and means for sliding said wedge.

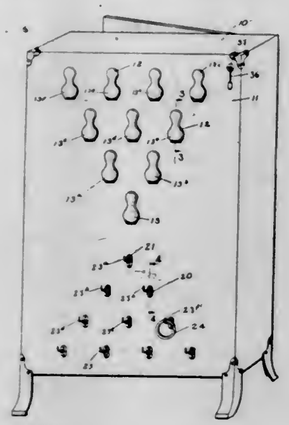
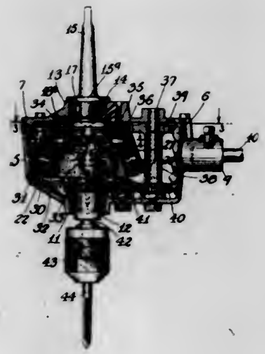
1,506,364. REED FOR SAXOPHONE OR CLARINET MOUTHPIECES. HIPPOLYTE MARIUS CHIRON and FREDERIC PARME, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 11, 1923. Serial No. 631,262. 1 Claim. (Cl. 84—383.)



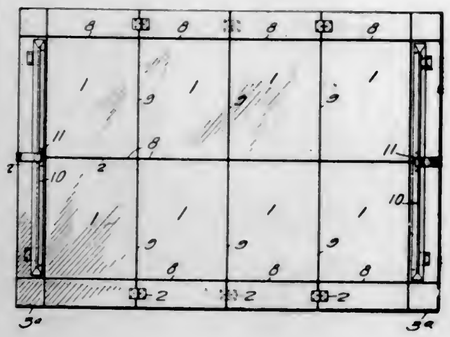
A bamboo reed for a mouthpiece of a saxophone or clarinet comprising a rectangular member thickest at one end and tapering longitudinally toward the opposite end, a curved top face on said reed, a plurality of grooves extending longitudinally and parallel to each other on the curved face of said reed, said grooves being aligned with the longitudinal edges of the reed, the grooves and the ridges formed between said grooves providing an undulating surface, an additional plurality of grooves of similar conformation extending angularly transversely on the curved surface of the reed, said last-named grooves communicating with the longitudinal grooves and dividing the longitudinal ridges into ridges of shorter length.

1,506,365. REAR-AXLE CONSTRUCTION. DAVID F. DOMIZI, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Nov. 27, 1922. Serial No. 603,491. 10 Claims. (Cl. 74—99.)



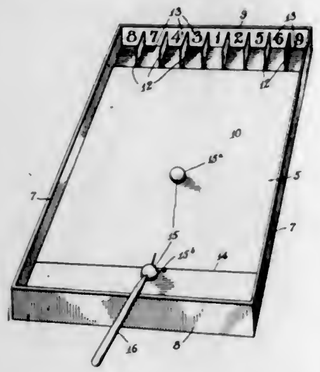
1. In a rear axle, the combination with a differential, of a driving pinion, a pair of roller bearings on opposite sides of the pinion for supporting it, a supporting member in which one of the bearings is mounted, said bearing being adjustable axially of the pinion and having an outer ring capable of axial movement but interlocked with said member against rotative movement.

1,506,366. GAME. MAX A. DREWS, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed May 6, 1921. Serial No. 467,398. 10 Claims. (Cl. 46—59.)



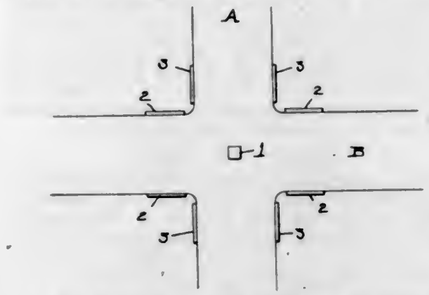
1. A game of the class described comprising a frame member, a plurality of weight-actuated targets and a plurality of signals pivotally mounted on said member, said targets and signals being each arranged to simulate a set of bowling pins, means connecting the respective targets with the signals, and additional means connecting certain targets with certain groups of signals whereby manipulation of any one of said targets results in manipulation of the signal or signals connected therewith.

1,506,367. TAPPING ATTACHMENT. GEORGE W. EMRICK, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Eastern Tube and Tool Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 23, 1922. Serial No. 570,466. 12 Claims. (Cl. 74—59.)



1. A device of the class described comprising two rotatable conical members, one of said members being located within the other, means for rotating said members in opposite directions, a floating clutch mounted between the conical faces of said members and capable of movement toward and from the conical face of either member, and a universal mounting for said clutch to facilitate the centering thereof in connection with the separate members.

1,506,368. CUTTING TABLE. CLARENCE FANCHER, Hudson Falls, N. Y. Filed Feb. 26, 1923. Serial No. 621,377. 7 Claims. (Cl. 164—79.)

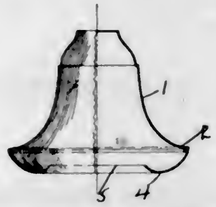


1. A device of the type described, comprising a sectional table whose sections or leaves are hingedly or foldably assembled together, with intermediate lines of spaces between said leaves or sections extending transversely and longitudinally throughout the same whereby a cutting member may be inserted within said spaces and drawn along the same.

1,506,369. GAME DEVICE. WILLIAM J. GUINAN, Jersey City, N. J. Filed Feb. 15, 1922. Serial No. 536,677. 1 Claim. (Cl. 46—61.)

A game device of the class described comprising an elongated game board of box-shaped form and composed of a bottom and side and end walls, the bottom of the game board adjacent to the rear end thereof being slightly depressed transversely of the game board, partition members mounted in said depressed portion and in connection with the rear wall to subdivide the rear end portion of the board into a plurality of stalls, each of said stalls being designated, and the designations of greatest value being located at the opposite sides of the game board, the front end portion of the game board being provided with a transverse starting line and with a short longitudinal line registering therewith, and located centrally between the side walls of the game board, two balls, one of which is adapted to be placed centrally of the game board and the other of which is adapted to be placed where the transverse line and longitudinal line intersect, and a cue for advancing the last named ball to strike the first named ball to advance it into one of the designated stalls.

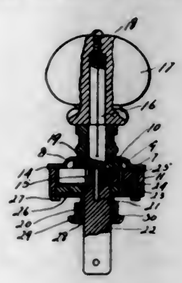
1,506,370. TRAFFIC-SIGNAL DEVICE. ABE GUTTENTAG, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed July 24, 1920. Serial No. 398,768. 5 Claims. (Cl. 39—1.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a main traffic regulator, two auxiliary traffic regulators positioned at each corner of intersecting streets, means for operating said main traffic regulator for causing the operation of either of said auxiliary traffic regulators positioned at each corner.

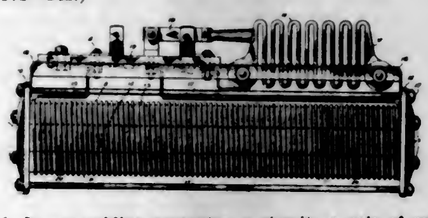
1,506,371. BITUMINOUS COMPOSITION. LESTER KIRSCHBRAUN, Evanston, Ill. Original application filed May 8, 1915, Serial No. 26,813. Divided and this application filed Dec. 2, 1918. Serial No. 264,903. 14 Claims. (Cl. 134—1.)

1. A bituminous stock capable of being formed into a relatively thin sheet in an aqueous vehicle and comprising an emulsified matrix formed of a waterproof adhesive bituminous binder and an emulsifying agent and water, the water being in the external phase, and comminuted fibre intimately mixed with said matrix.



1,506,372. SOCKET COVER. MAX KLEIN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Shapiro & Aronson, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 25, 1920. Serial No. 419,502. 1 Claim. (Cl. 173—362.)

A socket cover formed of two mating metal parts, adapted to inclose an electric light socket, the upper part having its lower edge terminating in an inwardly and downwardly extending flange, the lower member having at its upper edge an inturned flange extending from its periphery, the flange on the upper portion being designed to fit within the opening formed by the flange on the lower portion and by the application of pressure to project through said opening and snap into position below the flange of the lower portion.



1,506,373. TUNING PEG FOR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. CARL KEEMP, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Continuation of application Serial No. 647,050, filed June 22, 1923. This application filed July 3, 1924. Serial No. 724,052. 2 Claims. (Cl. 84—304.)

1. The combination with a head piece of a stringed musical instrument having a recess in the rear thereof with a hole through the front and communicating with the recess and further having notches disposed about said recess, of a tuning peg structure including an outer plate having a central cupped up portion, a ring gear fixed to said plate, said ring gear being of smaller diameter than the said plate so as to leaves a flange for engagement with the rear face of the head piece when the tuning peg structure is inserted in the recess, enlargements on said ring gear for registration with the notches about the recess in the head piece, a key gear concentric with the ring gear, an outwardly projecting shank passing through the outer plate and adapted to revolve the key gear, a washer within the cupped up portion of the outer plate between the latter and the key gear, a key mounted on the shank, a washer located between said key and said outer plate, a loose intermediate gear meshing with the ring gear and the key gear and adapted to travel about the space between said gears during the revolving of the key gear, a trunnion projecting from the key gear at the axial center thereof, a stem journalled on said trunnion in endwise alignment with the key gear shank, a disc fixed to the inner end of the stem, a pin carried by said disc and fitted in the loose intermediate gear to travel therewith and thereby rotate the stem at a reduced speed relative to the key, and a plate covering said disc and secured to the ring gear.

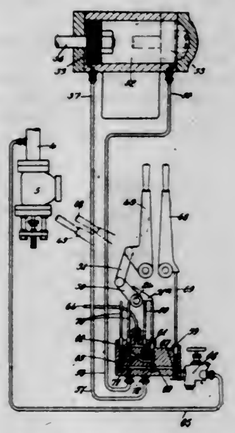
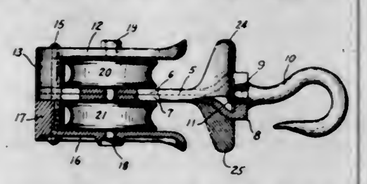
1,506,374. STABILIZER. JOHN C. LINCOLN, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Citizens Savings and Trust Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 29, 1919. Serial No. 320,655. 5 Claims. (Cl. 171—242.)



1. In arc welding apparatus, a circuit; a pair of coils forming parts of said circuit; a common core for said coils; each coil being made of one layer of bare copper wire, the said coils being insulated one from the other and from the core; means for connecting the coils in series or in parallel; and two plates materially greater in area than the cross-section of the core and bolted respectively to the ends of the latter, whereby the reluctance of the magnetic lines in escaping into the air is decreased.

1,506,375. CONTROL AND REVERSING GEAR OF INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. JAMES McKECHNIE, Westminster, London, England, assignor to Vickers Limited, Westminster, England. Filed May 15, 1922. Serial No. 561,191. 10 Claims. (Cl. 60—16.)



1. In control and reversing gear for internal combustion engines, air starting mechanism, a lever controlling the air starting operation, reversing mechanism, a servo motor actuating the said reversing mechanism, a lever controlling the said reversing servo motor, interlocking mechanism between the said servo motor lever and the air starting lever and further interlocking mechanism between the servo motor and the air starting lever adapted to prevent the use of the said air starting lever until the reversing movement has been completed by the servo motor in accordance with the direction given by the reversing lever.

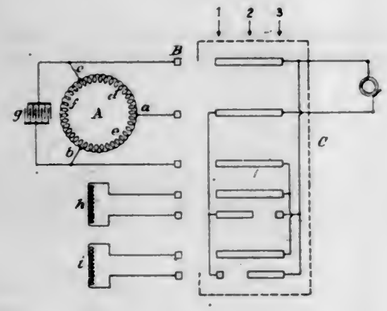
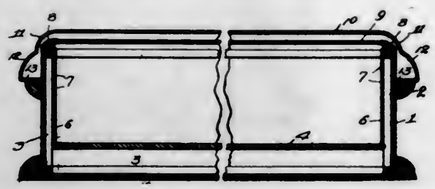
1,506,376. DOUBLE SNATCH BLOCK. DONALD C. McMILLAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Apr. 11, 1922. Serial No. 551,528. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—193.)



1. A double snatch block having a centrally disposed member provided with a longitudinal recess, arms secured to said central member, sheaves between said arms and said centrally disposed member and a supporting means and means extending through said centrally disposed member to which said supporting means is secured.

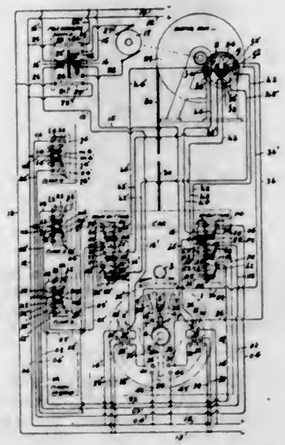
1,506,377. LAMP AND BASE. JACOB MANDEL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 25, 1924. Serial No. 688,432. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—81.)



A lamp including a base having a threaded opening therein, the portion of the upper surface of the base encompassing the opening being inclined downwardly and inwardly towards the opening, a pedestal, the lower extremity of the pedestal being reduced to form a flat substantially horizontal surface encompassing said reduced portion, the said reduced portion adapted to enter the opening in the base, the threads in the pedestal engaging the threads in the base, the co-operating threads serving to force the said flat and inclined surfaces into contact, a light cord or wire connected with the pedestal and extending from the end of the pedestal, and a plug connected with the conductor, said plug being adapted to be passed through the opening in the base when the pedestal is connected and disconnected from the base.

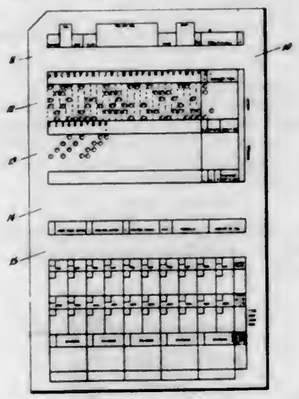
1,506,378. OPERATING ALTERNATING-CURRENT APPARATUS IN WHICH CAPACITY IS DESIRED. RALPH D. MERSHON, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 6, 1919. Serial No. 343,044. 4 Claims. (Cl. 172—233.)

3. The combination with an alternating current apparatus having phase-windinga, of a condenser connected with a phase-winding thereof, a plurality of inductive reactances connected with another phase-winding, and means for transferring inductive reactances in succession from the latter phase-winding to the former.



1,506,379. VAULT CASKET. JOHN E. MOORE, Portsmouth, Va. Filed Sept. 8, 1923. Serial No. 661,651. 5 Claims. (Cl. 27—6.)

1. In a vault casket the combination of a lid, and a casket body extending into the lid, with portions of the lid extending down a considerable distance on the sides of the casket body, and a supporting ledge extending about the casket body, the depending portions of the lid terminating in inturned flanges resting flat upon the ledge and engaging the sides of the body, whereby the interior of the casket body is sealed against moisture or water entering the same even though the casket body is not resting in a perfect horizontal position.



1,506,380. CONTROL FOR ELECTRIC ELEVATORS. HUMPHREY F. PARKER, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 25, 1921, Serial No. 464,319. Renewed July 3, 1924. 11 Claims. (Cl. 187—29.)

5. The combination with a guided movable body of an electrical controlling circuit, a switch on said body connected in said circuit, means for manually closing said switch to set the body in motion, means for holding said switch closed to maintain the body in motion, a secondary electrical circuit for releasing said switch holding means, a selective manual circuit closing means on said body included in said secondary circuit, a manual circuit closing means located at each fixed stopping point for said body also included in said secondary circuit, and an automatic circuit closing means included in said secondary circuit, said automatic circuit closing means being timed to operate synchronously with the arrival of said body at each stopping point therefor, one or more automatic stops of said body at predetermined stopping points being obtained by the selective actuation of the manual secondary circuit closing means on said body or by the actuation of the manual secondary circuit closing means located at said predetermined stopping points.

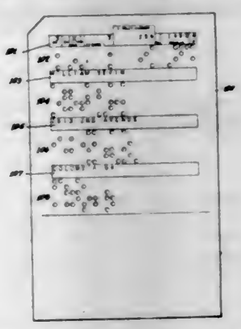
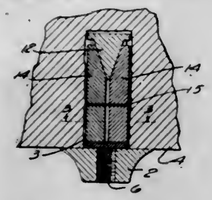
1,506,381. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR PERFORATING RECORD SHEETS. JOHN ROYDEN PEIRCE, New York, N. Y., assignor to Computing-Tabulating-Recording Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 7, 1922. Serial No. 566,447. 22 Claims. (Cl. 164—112.)



1. The method of effecting any one of a number of different records representing different characters including the letters of the alphabet, which comprises perforating a record sheet in one or more hole spaces in a record field having the theoretical minimum number of hole spaces to accommodate any of the various distinctive records.

1,506,382. RECORD SHEET AND APPARATUS CONTROLLED THEREBY. JOHN ROYDEN PEIRCE, New York, N. Y., assignor to Computing-Tabulating-Recording Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 7, 1922. Serial No. 566,448. 90 Claims. (Cl. 101—19.)

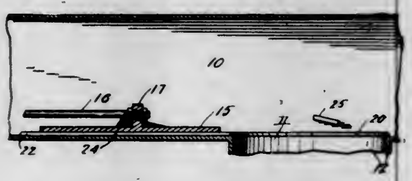


31. In a card control machine, in combination, with feeding devices for feeding controlling perforated records and blank sheets therethrough, means for reading the perforated records, means for transferring the readings thus obtained to the blank sheets and means for placing said transferred records upon the blank sheets in two ways, first, by printing upon the sheets and second, by perforating the same.

1,506,383. PERFORATION-READING INSTRUMENTALITIES. JOHN ROYDEN PEIRCE, New York, N. Y., assignor to Computing-Tabulating-Recording Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed June 7, 1922, Serial No. 566,448. Divided and this application filed June 7, 1922. Serial No. 566,449. 28 Claims. (Cl. 164—114.)

1. A machine of the class described comprising in combination, means for effecting a plurality of distinctive records representing different characters including the letters of the alphabet, a group of perforation-sensing elements operable in various combinations, the number of elements in said group being the theoretical minimum number required to effect a number of combinations at least as great as the number of distinctive records, and means controlled by different combinations of said elements for selectively determining the various records to be effected by said first named means.

1,506,384. EXPANSION BOLT AND METHOD. HENRY W. PLEISTER, Westfield, N. J., assignor to Henry B. Newhall. Filed Oct. 4, 1922. Serial No. 592,377. 12 Claims. (Cl. 72—105.)

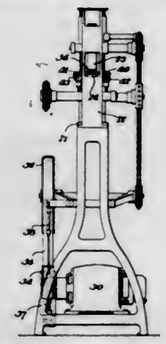


1. The method of securing a fastening to a wall, ceiling or other support consisting in inserting the fastening in the hole in the wall, ceiling or other support, pressing a compressible substance located within the fastening against an expanding member located in the fastening to force portions of the compressible substance radially through openings in the fastening by both compression and wedging action and into binding contact with the walls of the hole, and then securing the object to be supported to the fastening so held in the hole.

1,506,385. PROCESS OF MAKING FLOTATION OIL. FREDERICK H. RHODES, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Barrett Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 2, 1918. Serial No. 264,983. 1 Claim. (Cl. 196—26.)

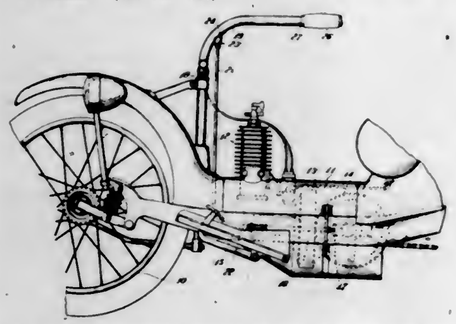
The herein described process, which comprises the removal, by extraction with an acid, of pyridine bases from a hydrocarbon oil for flotation purposes prepared from coal tar distillates, and then neutralizing the acid in the oil by agitating it with a solution of the alkali salts of tar acids.

1,506,386. DAMPER. BROR MAX SCHAUMAN, Atlantic Highlands, N. J., assignor to an Association comprising Grandin V. Johnson, Otto Gantschy, and Harry W. Johnson, all of Highlands, N. J.; William Koch, Long Branch, N. J.; and Bror Max Schauman, Atlantic Highlands, N. J., one-fifth to each member. Filed Dec. 30, 1921. Serial No. 525,889. 10 Claims. (Cl. 126—285.)



1. In combination with a flue having an opening, a slide damper for closing said opening, said flue having a raised sharp edge surrounding said opening to form a damper seat, the operation of said damper on said seat serving to clean the seat while the seat cleans said damper.

1,506,387. METHOD AND MEANS OF BEVELING. FREDERICK C. SIMMONS, Highland Park, Pa., assignor to Pioneer Suspender Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 22, 1922. Serial No. 583,461. 10 Claims. (Cl. 69—17.)



1. The method of beveling which consists in moving a strip of material so that a corner of its side margin shall project between two longitudinally extending knife edges and encounter a shearing blade lying transverse its line of travel and substantially in the plane of said longitudinally extending knife edges.

10. In a beveling device, the combination of means for moving a strip of material, means forming a guide-channel for said strip including a bracket element and removable elements secured thereto, having knife-edge margins spaced apart for the projection of a corner of the strip between the same, and a cutting device having a shearing edge in substantially the same plane as said knife-edge margins.

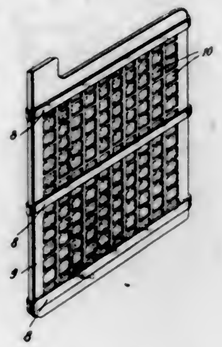
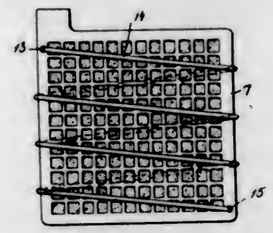
1,506,388. CONTROLLING DEVICE FOR MOTOR CYCLES. JOSEPH ALLAN SMITH, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Ner-a-Car Corporation, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 27, 1921. Serial No. 480,775. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—82.)



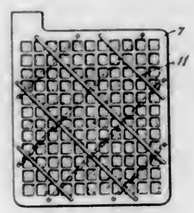
1. In a motor driven vehicle having co-engageable friction transmission members, mechanism for controlling the engagement of said members one with the other comprising a hand grip rotatably mounted on a part of the vehicle, a flexible connection between one of said friction members and said hand grip, a spring, and means whereby the spring is stressed when the hand grip is turned to bring said friction member into contact with the other friction member.

1,506,389. CONTAINER. VERNON C. SNYDER, Mountain Lakes, N. J. Filed Sept. 22, 1921. Serial No. 502,521. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—5.6.)



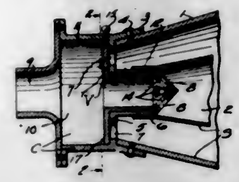
1. A container of the type shown having a metal top crimped to the wall thereof and means provided in said top whereby it may be removed, said top serving as a removable tight cover for the container.

1,506,390. BATTERY. NORMAN DEXTER STURGES, Bellerose, N. Y. Filed Nov. 29, 1922. Serial No. 603,895. 7 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)



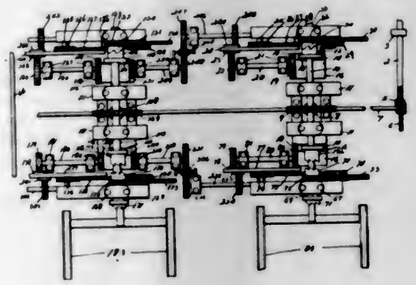
6. An insulating band for storage battery plates consisting of an endless transversely corrugated strip of celluloid adapted to embrace a single plate.

1,506,391. BATTERY. NORMAN DEXTER STURGES, Bellerose, N. Y. Filed Dec. 13, 1922. Serial No. 606,610. 1 Claim. (Cl. 204—29.)



A plate for storage batteries carrying active material and having a strip of celluloid wound about the plate to serve as sole separating means when the plate is used with other plates in a storage battery.

1,506,392. BATTERY. NORMAN DEXTER STURGES, Bellerose, N. Y. Filed Dec. 15, 1922. Serial No. 607,039. 1 Claim. (Cl. 204—29.)

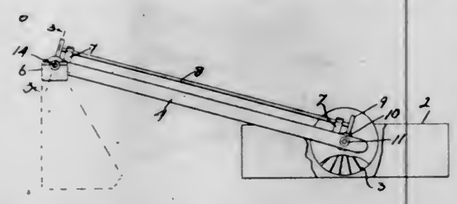


A plate for storage batteries carrying active material and provided on its face with individual strips of celluloid, the ends of which are secured to the plate to serve as the sole separating means when the plate is used with other plates in a storage battery.

1,506,393. SOUND AMPLIFIER. ADOLPH A. THOMAS, New York, N. Y. Original application filed Nov. 16, 1922, Serial No. 601,237. Divided and this application filed Nov. 19, 1923. Serial No. 675,567. 13 Claims. (Cl. 181—27.)

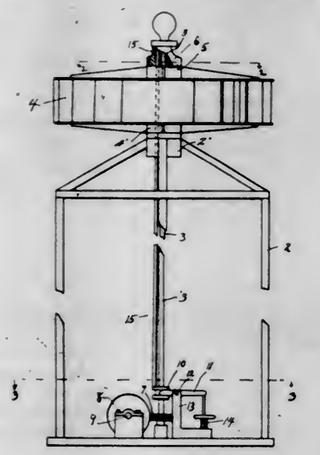
5. A sound amplifier comprising a plurality of nested sound chambers, and means at the inner ends of said nested chambers for controlling the relative proportion of said waves passing simultaneously through said chambers.

1,506,394. APPARATUS TO MECHANICALLY HARNESS, STORE, AND TRANSMIT POWER. JOHN TYDINGS, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Nov. 15, 1921. Serial No. 515,329. 7 Claims. (Cl. 185—40.)



1. In an apparatus of the class described, the combination of two independent spring arbors, a spring drum mounted to revolve about each of said arbors, a spring connected with each of said arbors and each drum, means to revolve either of said drums independently for winding the spring thereof, means to prevent retrograde movement of said drum, means to hold each arbor in a stationary position, means to manually actuate one of the arbor holding means and other means to automatically actuate the other arbor holding means so timed as to release the last named arbor holding means when the spring connected with the arbor with which the first named arbor holding means coacts has spent its power.

1,506,395. CURRENT AND TIDAL-CURRENT MOTOR. JOHN TYDINGS, Smithville Flats, N. Y. Original application filed Nov. 15, 1921, Serial No. 515,329. Divided and this application filed Feb. 16, 1922. Serial No. 536,908. 2 Claims. (Cl. 170—100.)



1. In a device of the character stated, a current motor for deriving power from the current of a tidal stream including pontoons, a paddle wheel having radial blades located between said pontoons, a shaft on which said paddle wheel is mounted journalled in suitable bearings on said pontoons, a worm on each end of said shaft, bearings located at a distance from said pontoons, said bearings having bosses thereon, reach rods arranged in pairs journalled on said bosses and pivotally connected with the pontoons, bearings supported by said reach rods, shafts journalled in the bearings on said reach rods each having a worm gear at one end to mesh with the worms on the paddle wheel shaft, gears on the opposite ends of said shafts, a shaft mounted in the first named bearings, worm gears mounted on said shaft to mesh with the last named worms, gears having pawl and ratchet mechanisms between them and the worm gear whereby one of said gears will be rotated when the worm gear is revolved in one direction and the other of said gears rotated when the worm gear is revolved in the opposite direction, and means including ratchets and pawls to constantly rotate a shaft in one direction.

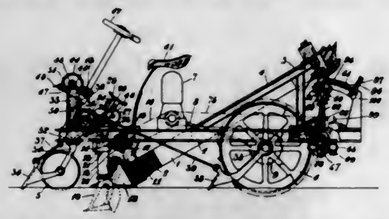
1,506,396. WIND MOTOR. JOHN TYDINGS, Smithville Flats, N. Y. Original application filed Nov. 15, 1921, Serial No. 515,329. Divided and this application filed Feb. 16, 1922. Serial No. 536,909. 2 Claims. (Cl. 170—36.)

1. A wind motor for the purpose stated including a frame, a vertical shaft journalled in said frame, a wind wheel loose on said shaft and provided with a clutch member, a complementary clutch member slidably mounted on said shaft and arranged to revolve therewith, said complementary clutch member coacting with the first mentioned clutch member, a rod passing through a portion of the shaft and connected with the complementary clutch member, and means to move said rod longitudinally to disengage the complementary clutch member from its coacting clutch member.



1,506,397. ASH DISPOSAL. JOHN H. WEAVER, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Dec. 7, 1920. Serial No. 428,869. 3 Claims. (Cl. 83—60.)

1. In an ash disposal device, the combination of a chamber forming structure, having an opening in its side wall extending from near the bottom to near the top of said structure, the upper part of said opening having a smaller horizontal dimension than the lower part of said opening, a movable closure for the lower larger opening, and regulatable means for connecting the interior of the structure with a flue.

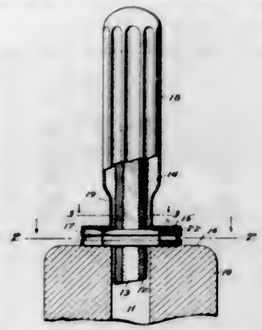
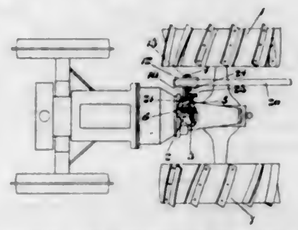
1,506,398. BEET HARVESTER. OTTO GOTTFRIED WELLTON, Malmo, Sweden. Filed Apr. 8, 1922. Serial No. 550,599. 8 Claims. (Cl. 55—108.)



1. In a beet harvester, the combination of members operating in the soil for loosening the beets, means adapted to grip the tops of the beets and pull the beets out of the soil and feed the beets to a nipping device, and a nipping device comprising a knife, two arms capable of swinging towards and away from said knife, and gripping members on said arms, said gripping members being adapted to move towards and away from one another in such manner that when said arms swing away from said knife said members are at a comparatively large distance from one another and can move past a beet, and that when said arms swing towards said knife said gripping members are moved towards one another so as to grip a beet and move the same towards said knife.

5. In a beet harvester, the combination of members operating in the soil for loosening the beets, means adapted to grip the tops of the beets and pull the beets out of the soil and feed the beets to a nipping device, a nipping device comprising a knife, a frame journalled so as to swing in directions towards and away from said knife, two parallel shafts journalled in said frame transversely to the axis of rotation of the same, two arms secured to said shafts so as to be capable of swinging towards and away from one another, and gripping members pivotally secured to said arms so as to turn around axes in substantially the longitudinal directions of said arms, means for guiding said gripping members towards and away from one another, and curved guide rails located outside the path of movement of said gripping members and adapted to guide the beet held by said gripping members during the swinging movement of said members towards said knife.

1,506,399. DUST CAP. JEWELL WILLIAMS, Keyport, N. J., assignor to Inglis M. Uppercu, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 31, 1921, Serial No. 526,351. Renewed July 15, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 152—12.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a threaded stem provided with a flat side, a clamping nut engaging the threads on the stem, said nut provided with an element of a snap fastener, a cap telescoping the end of the stem provided with a reduced and flattened waist portion for engaging said flat side of the stem and also provided with a nut housing having means for engaging the nut to prevent relative rotary movement between the nut and cap and also having an element of a snap fastener coacting with the corresponding element on the nut to resist accidental removal of the cap from the stem.

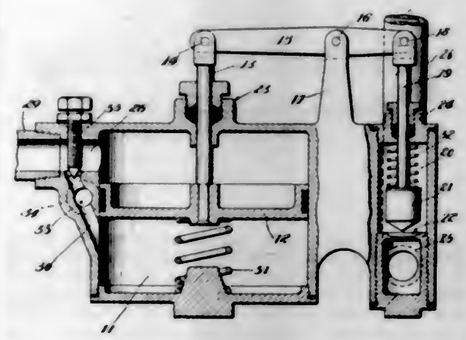
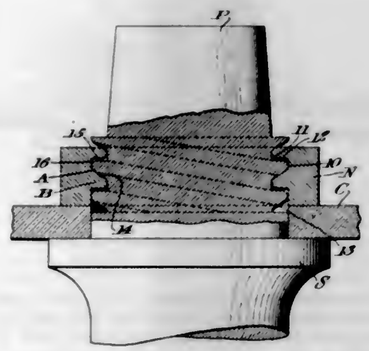
1,506,400. TRANSMISSION APPLIANCE. HOWE A. WYNNE, Hartville, Mo. Filed Oct. 18, 1920. Serial No. 417,575. 11 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)



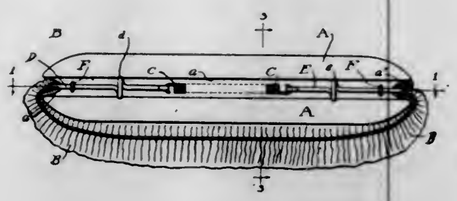
1. In a tractor, the combination with the transmission case, and the transmission drive shaft of the tractor within the transmission case, of a second shaft supported by the tractor driven from said transmission shaft and extending outwardly through the transmission case, a clutch member attached to the outer end of said second shaft, a transmission pulley supported independently of said second shaft between said clutch member and the transmission case, a clutch member in connection with said transmission pulley, means supported between said transmission pulley and the transmission case for moving one of said clutch members into and out of engagement with the other whereby said pulley may be operated or left in an inoperative condition when said second shaft is rotating as desired, and means for preventing accidental engagement of said clutch member.

1,506,401. TOOTHBRUSH. JOHN HARRY YOUNG, Norbury, London, England. Filed Dec. 4, 1922. Serial No. 604,659. 1 Claim. (Cl. 132—84.)



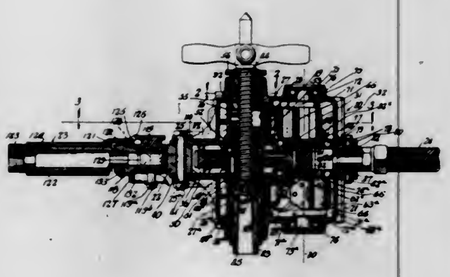
A tooth brush comprising a narrow handle part with an enlargement at the outer end, a mirror secured in said enlargement, and a perforated lug projecting beyond said enlargement for suspending the handle part with the mirror face outward.

1,506,402. AUTOMATIC FUEL CONTROL FOR WATER HEATERS. HINCKLEY C. AINSWORTH and PERCY H. MURRAY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 5, 1924. Serial No. 711,091. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—351.)



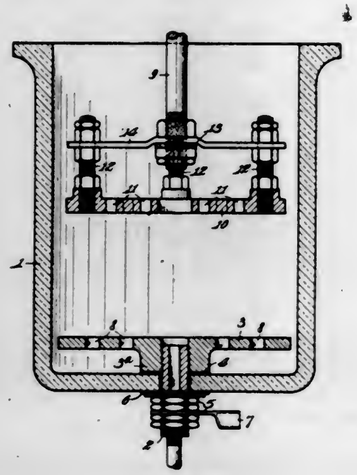
1. An automatic fuel control comprising a ported passage for fuel, a valve for said port, a plunger chamber, a plunger slidably fitting the chamber, there being a water inlet port in the plunger chamber on one side of the plunger and a duct connected with said port and communicating with the chamber on the opposite side of the plunger and there being a water outlet port communicating with the duct leading to a heating element, means restricting the duct between the water inlet port and the water outlet port, and means operably connecting the valve with the plunger.

1,506,403. STORAGE BATTERY. HARRY J. BAKER, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to The Prest-O-Lite Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 28, 1923. Serial No. 628,356. 2 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)



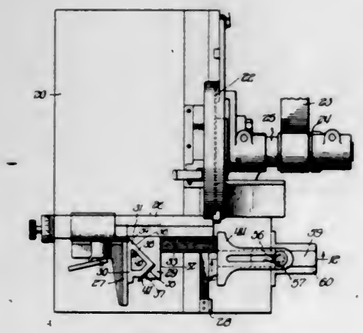
1. In a storage battery, the combination of a cell cover having an opening therethrough, a threaded leaden terminal post projecting through such opening, and a threaded leaden nut for securing said post in said opening, the nut and terminal post when coupled together in operative relation having contact only between the upper surface of the nut thread and the lower surface of the post thread and at the roots of said threads.

1,506,404. SHOE-POLISHING DEVICE. SHELDON M. BOOTH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 3, 1923. Serial No. 616,746. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—231.)



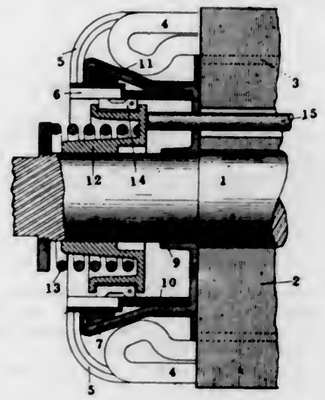
A shoe polishing device comprising a rigid block, the front and back of said block being substantially alike and the ends of the block being rounded, a transversely extending groove being provided in each of the rounded ends of said block and said block being further provided in each side with a longitudinally extending groove communicating at each end with the transverse groove, springs positioned in the longitudinal grooves, and a U-shaped member attached to one end of each of said springs, a second U-shaped member attached to the opposite ends of said springs, said second U-shaped member being provided with manipulating lugs, a strip of polishing material looped intermediate its ends under the cross element of said first named U-shaped member and clamped in one of the lateral grooves, with the free ends of said strip adapted to extend over either face of said block and under the cross element of the second U-shaped member in the lateral groove at the opposite end of said block.

1,506,405. PNEUMATIC DRILL. MATHEW J. BURKEL, Aurora, Ill., assignor of one-fourth to Clarence E. Mehlhope, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 20, 1919. Serial No. 283,922. 4 Claims. (Cl. 121—33.)



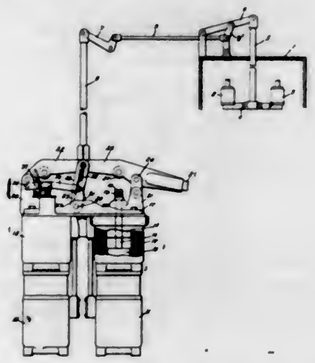
1. A pneumatic drill comprising a flat gear case ring, top and bottom cylinder casings fixed to said ring, pistons in said cylinder casings, an upright drill spindle journaled at its ends in said cylinder casings, a crank shaft parallel with the spindle and journaled in the cylinder casings, said crank shaft extending through the gear case ring and being driven by said pistons, a toothed member in said gear case ring operatively connected to the drill spindle and driven by said crank shaft, top and bottom internal gears mounted on said toothed member, and upright rotary valves having gear pinions on their inner ends meshing with said internal gears, said valves controlling the inlet and discharge of pneumatic fluid to and from the piston cylinders.

1,506,406. SLIP REGULATOR FOR ELECTRIC MOTORS. ALBERT E. CARVER, Beech Bottom, W. Va., assignor of one-half to J. E. Montgomery, Wheeling, W. Va. Filed June 7, 1922. Serial No. 566,500. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—57.)



1. In an automatic slip regulator for electric motors, the combination with a regulator-tank cell, of a lower stationary electrode disposed in an elevated position with respect to the bottom of said cell, and an upper electrode suspended and vertically movable with respect to said lower electrode, said electrodes being cast in flat plate-like form of corrosion-resisting metal and being suitably perforated.

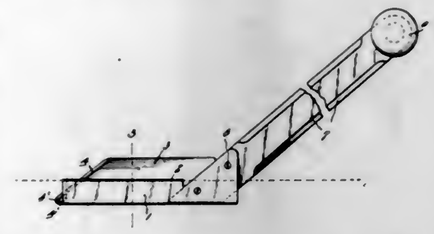
1,506,407. COMPOSING-ROOM-SAW MITERING ARRANGEMENT. EDWARD CHESHIRE, Berlin Township, Waukesha County, Wis. Filed Mar. 6, 1922. Serial No. 541,309. 7 Claims. (Cl. 29—69.)



1. In a composing room saw, gauge means for accurately setting border material to be mitered, including two relatively movable members between which a border member of the thickness to be mitered may be inserted for determining the ultimate line along which the border material will be mitered.

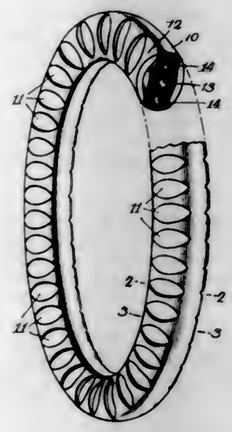
1,506,408. COMMUTATOR. ERNEST CLARKE, St. Louis, Mo., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Wagner Electric Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 23, 1921. Serial No. 517,201. 8 Claims. (Cl. 171—321.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination of an annular supporting member having a tapered inner peripheral surface, a plurality of segments circularly arranged therein, and means cooperating with the tapered surface of the annular member to hold the segments in position.



1,506,409. SOLENOID-OPERATING MECHANISM. RICHARD CLASSEN, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 7, 1923. Serial No. 661,525. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—166.)

1. In an electric switch, a plurality of solenoids, a lever adapted to be actuated by each of said solenoids, means for connecting together corresponding portions of said levers, and a tripping mechanism operatively connected to said means to control the movement of said levers in one direction.



1,506,410. LAWN-EDGE TRIMMER. ARRA E. COURTNEY, Kansas City, Mo. Filed July 18, 1922. Serial No. 575,873. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—227.)

A device of the character described made from a single piece of metal to form a handle receiving member and a head, the head comprising a flat vertical side piece and an obliquely disposed flat outwardly extending side piece directly connected at their bottom edges, the first side piece being bent outwardly at its upper edge to form a flat outwardly extending guide flange, the oblique side piece extending to a point in advance of the other side piece and the guide flange, and the side pieces having front sharpened edges, said handle receiving member being U-shaped in cross-section and triangular in side elevation.

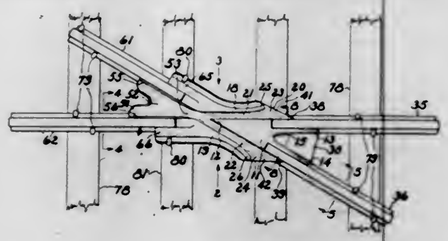
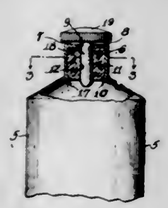
1,506,411. TIRE CORE. GEORGE W. COWGILL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 29, 1924. Serial No. 695,978. 2 Claims. (Cl. 152—5.)



2. A vehicle tire including a core with a circular opening in the center and additional openings, above and below the central opening, which are oval shaped toward the outer walls forming bracing arch like partition walls, all three openings extending circumferentially of the core, said core having transverse partitions, on opposite sides of the central opening, of substantially the shape of the opposite sides of an hourglass, which are perpendicular at the apex of the core, forming oval recesses in the sides thereof, said openings, partitions and recesses being evenly distributed at regular intervals throughout the core.

1,506,412. FROG FOR RAILWAYS. ROBERT G. CRAWFORD, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to The American Frog & Switch Company, Hamilton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 30, 1923. Serial No. 660,217. 10 Claims. (Cl. 246—464.)



3. A frog having an easer-extension at one side of a rail-slot and a fish-extension at the other side of said rail-slot to form said rail-slot, a frog-tongue at the inner end of said rail-slot, a wing spaced from said frog-tongue to form a channel having a widened mouth, and a web at the bottom of said mouth, said web connecting with said wing and having connection with said fish-extension in rear of the inner end of said rail-slot.

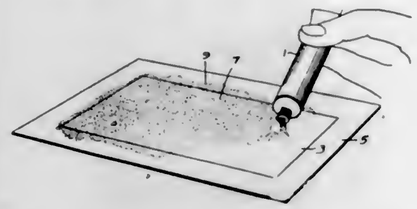
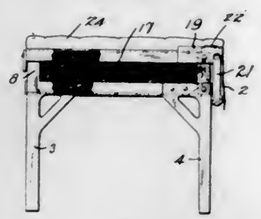
1,506,413. LEAKPROOF TUBE SEAL. HENRY SAULNIER DARLINGTON, Media, Pa., assignor to A. H. Wirz, Inc., Chester, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 25, 1922. Serial No. 539,100. 6 Claims. (Cl. 113—116.)



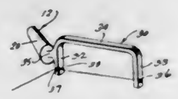
1. A collapsible tube for holding liquids and semi-liquids, having the outer end formed as a chamber, an apertured cork in said chamber, under compression axially of the cork and a plug fitting the aperture and closing the tube by engagement of the walls of the cork.

1,506,414. DEVICE FOR PRESSING AND STEAMING CAPS. JACOB DASHEW, Baltimore, Md. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,109. 3 Claims. (Cl. 223—21.)



1. A device for pressing and steaming caps, comprising a number of sections having inclined inner surfaces and an enlarged end, and a number of apertures leading from said inclined surfaces through the said enlarged end, a tapered key block adapted to fit between said sections and operate against said inclined surfaces to force the said sections apart, an aperture extending downwardly in the center of the key block to near the lower end thereof, and a number of apertures leading from the said central aperture to the apertures in said sections and to the end of the key block.

1,506,415. METHOD OF ADHESIVELY SECURING ARTICLES TOGETHER. BRADLEY DEWEY, Cambridge, Mass., assignor to Dewey and Almy Chemical Company, Cambridge, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 22, 1920. Serial No. 367,863. 2 Claims. (Cl. 216—62.)

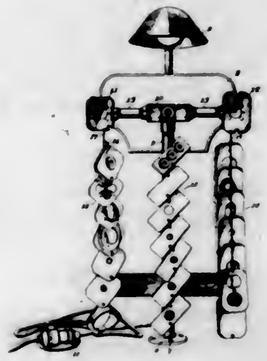


1. A method of securing articles of different areas together, characterized by spreading on the surface of one of the articles a thin coating of viscous rubber adhesive containing a solvent, pressing the articles together with the rubber adhesive between them at normal temperature and before the solvent has evaporated, thereby to unite the articles and cause any excess rubber adhesive to creep beyond one of the articles onto the other, and rubbing the excess rubber adhesive therefrom after it has dried.

1,506,416. COUCH BED. JOSIAH A. DEWEY, Oakland, Calif., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Murphy Door Bed Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Copartnership Firm consisting of William L. Murphy and William K. White. Filed Mar. 20, 1920. Serial No. 367,352. 6 Claims. (Cl. 5—29.)

6. In a couch bed, a stationary frame, an invertible frame pivotally mounted on said stationary frame, and a resiliently mounted edging strip for supporting the upper front edge of the couch and for re-enforcing the central portion of the bed.

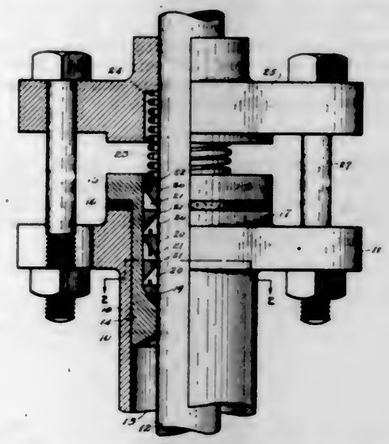
1,506,417. TOOTH-CLEANSING DEVICE. STANLEY M. DONALS, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Oct. 1, 1923. Serial No. 666,004. 2 Claims. (Cl. 132—84.)



1. As an article of manufacture a dental floss holding bow comprising a substantially U-shaped structure, and an attaching shank extending longitudinally therefrom and inclined transversely of the bow at an angle of less than 180° with respect to the plane of the U-shaped bow.

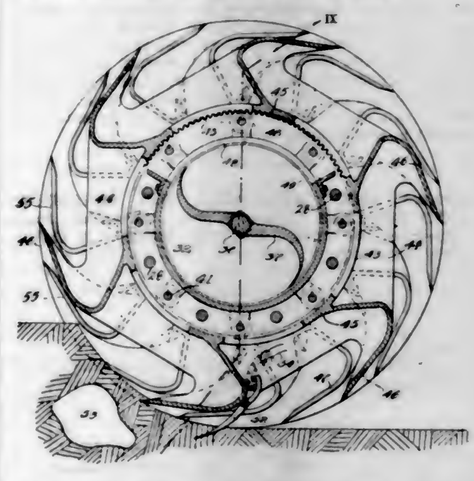
1,506,418. TEST PLUG. EDWIN G. EVENSTA and HENRY J. ANDERSON, Minneapolis, Minn., assignors to E-Z Manufacturing Co., Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Feb. 26, 1923. Serial No. 621,232. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—76.)

A test plug including an expansible bulb adapted to be placed in a pipe, a tube extending through the bulb and provided with two air-charging conduits, one of which opens into the bulb for expanding the same, and the other of which opens into the pipe in which the test plug is applied, said two conduits being independently valve controlled.



1,506,419. DISPLAY DEVICE. GEORGE T. FIELDING, Stamford, Conn., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 11, 1922. Serial No. 543,064. 4 Claims. (Cl. 211—24.)

1. In a display device for apparatus comprising a major element and a number of minor elements each of which is adapted for use with the major element, the combination of a standard, a major element fixed thereon, and a string of minor elements hung adjacent thereto.



1,506,420. PACKING RING. FRED J. FLASPOEHLER, WILLIAM A. STIEGLITZ, and FRANK A FLASPOEHLER, Louisville, Ky. Filed July 7, 1921. Serial No. 483,112. 2 Claims. (Cl. 286—23.)

1. The combination with a cylinder and a piston rod passing through an opening in said cylinder, of a stuffing box fitted between the rod and the wall of the opening, said stuffing box being arranged to form an annular recess around the rod having a bottom bevelled inwardly toward the rod, a sectional seat ring fitted in said recess against the bottom, other sectional cylindrical rings arranged in pairs with their inclined faces abutting and their cylindrical faces bearing respectively on the piston and the wall of the opening, the inner ring of the first pair bearing on the sectional seat, pins each projecting from the several rings into the spaces between adjacent sections of the co-operating rings, and means to force said rings inward of the stuffing box.

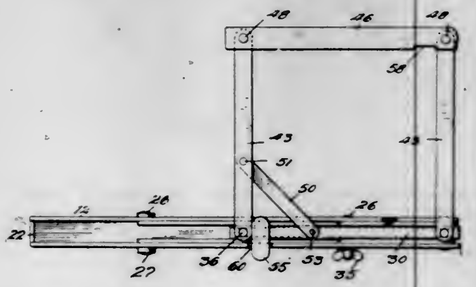
1,506,421. SURFACE-EXCAVATING MACHINE. THEOPHIL J. FREDA, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 3, 1922. Serial No. 526,605. 21 Claims. (Cl. 37—87.)



1. A surface excavating machine comprising a tractor, a main frame supported thereby and overhanging unexcavated ground, transversely disposed spaced apart rotary cutters supported by said main frame, a conveyor axially of each cutter and of greater length than each cutter adapted to conduct earth to the outer end of each cutter, and means on said tractor adapted to simultaneously operate said cutters and conveyors.

12. A surface excavating machine comprising a main frame, transversely disposed coaxial rotary cutters supported by said main frame, and having confronting ends in spaced relation, conduits axially of said cutters, spiral conveyors in said conduits and adapted to conduct earth to the outer ends of said conduits, and means between the confronting ends of said cutters adapted to simultaneously operate said spiral conveyors, bucket conveyor and said cutters.

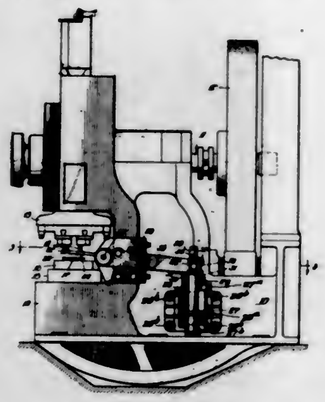
21. An excavator comprising inner and outer heads, circumferentially disposed shafts rotatably supported by said heads, a rotary cutter about said shafts and driven therefrom, and a conduit connecting said heads and adapted to receive earth from said cutter, said conduit supporting said outer head relative to said inner head and at intervals supporting said shafts.

1,506,422. LUGGAGE CARRIER. JOHN M. GIBBONS, New York, N. Y., assignor to Lanton Auto Equipment Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 24, 1923. Serial No. 634,214. 8 Claims. (Cl. 229—29.)



1. In a luggage carrier for automobile running boards and the like, a channel-shaped housing member adapted to be secured to the edge of the running board with the channel facing outwardly, a collapsible horizontal section pivotally connected to said housing member and adapted to fold into the channel therein, and a collapsible vertical section carried by the outer edge of the horizontal section and also adapted when collapsed to enter the channel in said housing member.

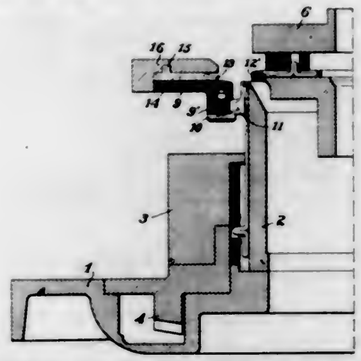
1,506,423. FEED MECHANISM FOR ENVELOPES AND THE LIKE. ELMER E. GRAY, Cliftondale, Mass. Filed Oct. 30, 1920. Serial No. 420,639. 5 Claims. (Cl. 271—41.)

1. In a feed mechanism for envelopes and the like, in combination, a drum to support and feed the envelopes, a friction member on the periphery of said drum to rotate therewith and increase the frictional engagement of said drum with said envelope, a smooth member fast on and projecting beyond the periphery of said drum with which the envelopes engage, and a stripper cooperating with said smooth member to press an envelope thereon.

1,506,424. AUTOMATIC STRAIGHTENING AND STRIPPING DEVICE FOR PUNCHING AND SHEARING MACHINES. RANDOLPH B. HANCOCK, Gary, Ind. Filed Mar. 10, 1922. Serial No. 542,679. 7 Claims. (Cl. 153—2.)

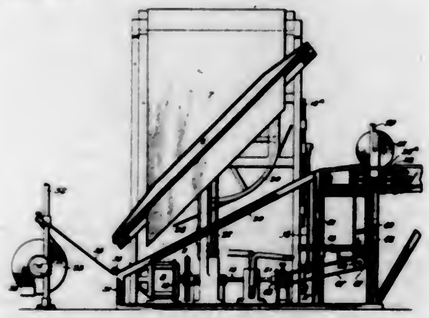
1. In combination, with a punching press a pivotally mounted stripping plate, a cylinder, a piston in said cylinder, operating connections between said stripping plate and said piston, and means whereby fluid pressure is admitted into and exhausted from said cylinder whereby said stripping plate is operated in synchronism with the punching head of the press.

1,506,425. LIBERATION OF OIL FROM OIL-CONTAINING DEPOLARIZERS. GEORGE W. HEISE, Elmhurst, N. Y., assignor to National Carbon Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 11, 1922. Serial No. 560,231. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—38.)



1. Process of liberating oil from an oil-containing depolarizer, comprising bringing into contact therewith water and a substance capable of expediting the liberation of the oil from the depolarizer.

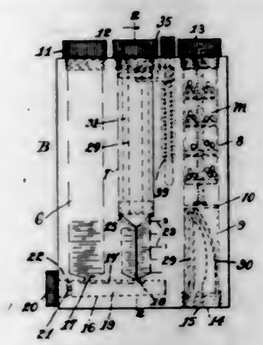
1,506,426. TYPEWRITER-KEYBOARD ARRANGEMENT. ROY E. HOKE, Birmingham, Ala. Filed June 16, 1922. Serial No. 568,792. 2 Claims. (Cl. 197—100.)



1. A typewriter keyboard having the printing keys arranged in parallel diagonal rows from front to back and interposing between the center rows a diagonal row of machine control keys lying in the same level with the other keys and forming a row parallel therewith.

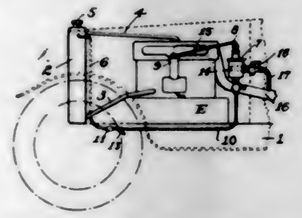
1,506,427. LOOP-TRANSFER MECHANISM FOR KNITTING MACHINES. KENNETH HOWIE, Norristown, Pa., assignor to Wildman Mfg. Co., Norristown, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 11, 1922. Serial No. 560,098. 17 Claims. (Cl. 66—22.)

1. A knitting machine for making rib and plain fabric having two sets of needles working in interspaced planes for making rib fabric, a set of transfer members for transferring the loops of one set of needles to the needles of the other set and arranged to work in the same planes with the set of needles which are to receive the transferred loops, means for shogging the first set of needles into line with said transfer members, means for reciprocating the said needles and transfer members, said transfer members taking the loops from the shogged needles and holding them in position to be taken therefrom by the other set of needles, substantially as described, said transfer members being latchless, substantially as described.



1,506,428. BIAS-CUTTING MACHINE. ROBERT IREDELL, Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 25, 1922. Serial No. 584,178. 8 Claims. (Cl. Aug. 25, 1922. Serial No. 584,178. 8 Claims. (Cl. 164—73.)

1. In a machine of the character set forth, the combination with a cutter and means for feeding fabric to the cutter in substantially a vertical plane, of a conveyor to receive the cut strips of fabric, said conveyor running in a path parallel to said plane.



1,506,429. POCKET MEDICAL CASE. ALFRED KAHN and CHARLES E. DRESSLER, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,079. 8 Claims. (Cl. 206—43.)

1. In a medical pocket case, a block of material arranged with recesses extending from the exterior to within the body of the block, removable closures for the open ends of the respective recesses to provide chambers within the block, constituting a liquid carrying chamber, a medicament mixing chamber having a connection with the liquid carrying chamber and arranged to carry a syringe therein, and a medicament carrying chamber, means in the connection of said liquid carrying and mixing chambers to shut off and open communication between said chambers, and a medicament carrier connected to and removable with the closure for the medicament carrying chamber.

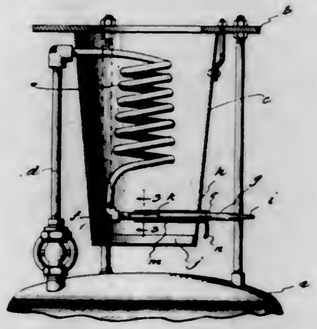
1,506,430. FUEL ECONOMIZER FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. CARL KECK, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 16, 1921. Serial No. 478,197. 3 Claims. (Cl. 123—25.)

1. In a device of the class specified, the combination with an internal combustion engine having a fuel intake, an exhaust outlet and water cooling jacket, and a liquid cooling radiator in circulation with the water jacket of the engine, of a casing having a chamber with an outlet connected to the fuel intake of the engine, and connections with the exhaust outlet and the radiator above the liquid level therein to draw moist vapor therefrom, and an air inlet to said latter connection for the purpose specified.



1,506,431. FLEXIBLE TRACTION APPARATUS. ADOLPHE KÉGRESSE, Paris, France. Filed Aug. 23, 1921. Serial No. 494,473. 19 Claims. (Cl. 305—9.)

1. In a tractor, the combination of an endless, flexible track belt; front and rear drums around which the belt passes; and a bearing train for said belt comprising a pivotally-mounted balance beam, a pair of cylinders connected side by side to each end of the beam, a spring-controlled plunger in each cylinder, and rollers supported by said plungers and arranged to bear upon the inner surface of the lower stretch of the belt.

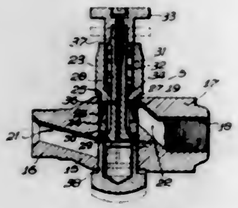
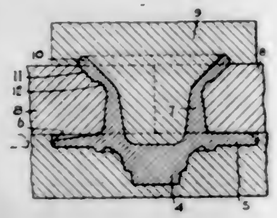
1,506,432. FIRE POT. HARRY B. KIMMEL, Highland Park, Mich. Filed Mar. 26, 1923. Serial No. 627,813. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—53.)



7. In a fire pot, the combination of a chimney provided with a priming trough, a preheating tube suspended within the chimney, a burner connected therewith and provided with a port through which the vapor generated in the preheating tube is ejected, and a guard for closing said port during the priming operation to maintain the port opening in the said burner free from carbon deposits, said guard projecting through the walls of the chimney so that the same may be actuated from without the chimney.

1,506,433. GEAR-ACTUATED VALVE. PAUL W. KNAUF, Cynwyd, Pa., assignor to Schutte & Koerting Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 19, 1920. Serial No. 352,497. 8 Claims. (Cl. 251—157.)

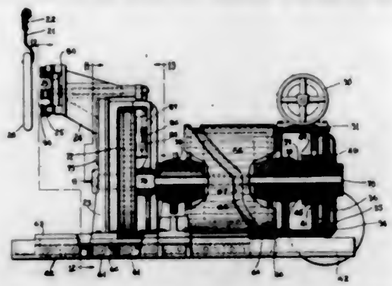


1. In a valve of large size substantially as described, a valve casing having an opening for the insertion of a valve and an annular seat surrounding said opining, in combination with a cover having an annular seat adapted to rest on the seat surrounding the opening, gear wheels for actuating the valve spindle supported on the cover, a clamping ring extending over the edge of the cover and means secured to the valve casing operating to draw said clamping ring down on the edge of the cover without rubbing contact.

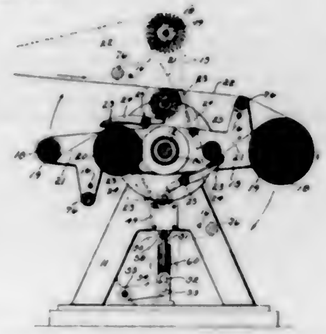
1,506,434. FLASH-IGNITER VALVE. OSCAR J. LEINS, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to Milwaukee Gas Specialty Company, Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Sept. 6, 1921. Serial No. 498,864. 3 Claims. (Cl. 158—115.)

3. In a device of the class described, the combination of a valve casing having a transverse well, admission and discharge passages opening into and from said well, a controlling member mounted in one end of said well and adapted for regulating the fuel supply thereto, a valve cage mounted in the opposite end of the well independently of said controlling member, and a valve mounted in said cage and affording with said cage means for supplying restricted and increased flows of fuel to the discharge passage.

1,506,435. METHOD OF FORMING FLANGED ARTICLES AND PRODUCT THEREOF. ARTHUR MARTIN, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Mar. 7, 1922. Serial No. 541,772. 6 Claims. (Cl. 29—159.)



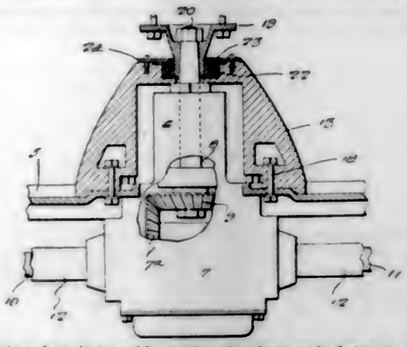
1. The method of forging flanged articles that comprises forging a blank to produce one of the flanges, partially forming another flange having a modified surface on the side toward said first-named flange, and finally forcing the said second flange into parallel relation with said first flange, the said modified surface being capable of production only at said partially formed stage.



5. As a new article of manufacture, a flanged metal article forged in one piece and having a plurality of flanges integral therewith, at least one of which has a modified surface on the side toward the adjacent flange.

1,506,436. CORE-HANDLING DEVICE. THOMAS MIDGLEY, Hampden, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Dec. 2, 1920. Serial No. 427,884. 8 Claims. (Cl. 154—9.)

1. A core handling device comprising a support, means for reciprocating the support horizontally, a head vertically movable in that support, means for causing vertical reciprocation of the head, core grasping elements mounted on said head, and means for expanding said elements to cause them to grasp a core.



1,506,437. WINDING DEVICE. THOMAS MIDGLEY, Hampden, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 12, 1921. Serial No. 491,730. 1 Claim. (Cl. 242—64.)

A winding mechanism comprising a frame with a rotatable shaft therein, spaced pairs of arms mounted on said shaft, a receiving spool and a liner-carrying spool positioned between each pair of arms, means to rotate the shaft to bring the spools successively into transfer position, means for holding the arms in the desired positions, means to rotate the winding spools individually while stationary or when changing positions, a guide roll on each arm holding the web out of contact with the mechanism when the active winding spool is in transfer position and acting as a guide until the web is severed, said mechanism being adapted to wind upon successive spools a continuous web of material passing above a fresh spool in its passage to a spool in transfer position, whereby when the web is severed the winding upon the fresh spool can be started immediately and without stopping the travel of the web.

1,506,438. MAIN-SHAFT CARRIER. ROBERT R. MONDAY, Fountain City, Tenn. Filed July 6, 1923. Serial No. 649,871. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—56.)

1. A motor vehicle drive construction comprising in combination with a fixed axle adapted to have the usual driving wheels journaled on the ends thereof and provided with a central opening, and a differential gearing embodying driving axles and a differential housing disposed rearwardly of said axle, said differential housing embodying a forwardly projected bearing housing extending through the opening of the fixed axle and having a rear main drive shaft section journaled therein with its rear end geared to the differential mechanism, of an auxiliary carrier attached to the axle and enclosing said bearing housing, said carrier further embodying a forward bearing for the rear drive shaft section forwardly of said bearing housing.

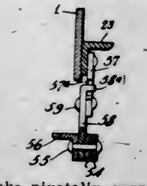
1,506,439. BRACELET HOOK. NELS T. NELSON, Attleboro, Mass., assignor to J. F. Sturdy's Sons Co., Attleboro Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 29, 1924. Serial No. 689,230. 5 Claims. (Cl. 24—233.)

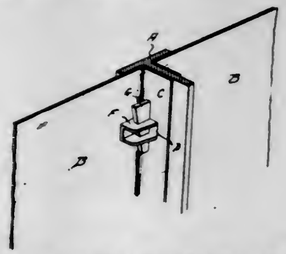
1. A bracelet hook having a hollow body portion with an elongated shank formed in hook shape at one end, a tongue member cooperating at its outer end with the hook to close it, the opposite end of the tongue having a resilient arm housed in said hollow portion and said arm being folded back upon itself and serving as a spring to normally hold the tongue in closed position.

1,506,440. SUPPORT FOR SEWING-MACHINE MOTORS. MARVIN L. NORRIS, Fort Wayne, Ind., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 27, 1920. Serial No. 384,733. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—26.)



1. A motor-supporting bracket adapted to support a motor in either of two positions comprising in combination, a pivotally mounted plate provided with a projecting arm at each end, a motor-supporting plate also provided with a projecting arm at each end, a hinge-pin connection between the projecting arms of said plates, a stop-lug on each of the projecting arms of said first mentioned plate, and a spring so arranged as to bias said motor-supporting plate toward said stop-lugs.

1,506,441. LEG-ELEVATOR-SUPPORTING MEANS FOR WASHING MACHINES. NEVVENS N. NUNN, Maplewood, Mo. Filed Feb. 11, 1921. Serial No. 444,155. 6 Claims. (Cl. 280—44.)



1. The combination with supporting standards of a washing machine, of arms arranged in pairs each pair being arranged substantially parallel with its cooperating pair of standards to which the outer ends of said pair of arms are pivotally connected, a pin pivotally interengaging the inner ends of each pair of arms, vertically disposed toggle links pivotally supported at one end by the frame of the machine and pivotally connected at its lower end to said pair of arms, casters mounted on said arms adjacent to their outer ends, and a pedal secured to said pin for actuating said arms.

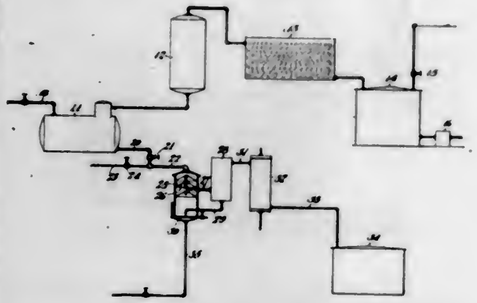
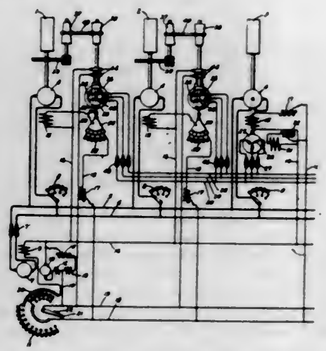
1,506,442. CONNECTION FOR METAL STRUCTURES. FRANK G. O'HARA, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Hydraulic Steel Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 26, 1921. Serial No. 456,029. 3 Claims. (Cl. 189—36.)



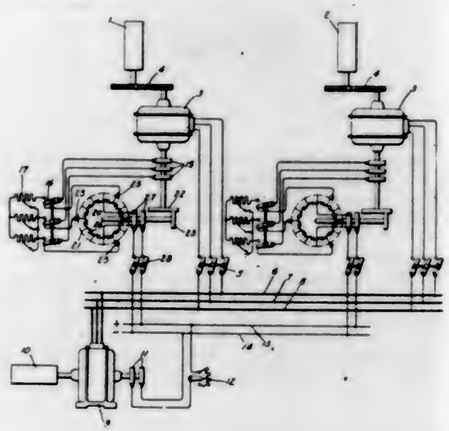
1. In a device of the kind described, the combination with a flanged bar, of a flanged plate, said bar and plate having registering openings, a double wedge projected through the said openings of said plate and bar, said double wedge having openings and a single wedge projected through the openings in the double wedge in a direction transverse to the line of direction of the first named wedge.

1,506,443. TEMPERATURE REGULATOR. ALBERT N. OTIS, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 25, 1922. Serial No. 539,270. 10 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)



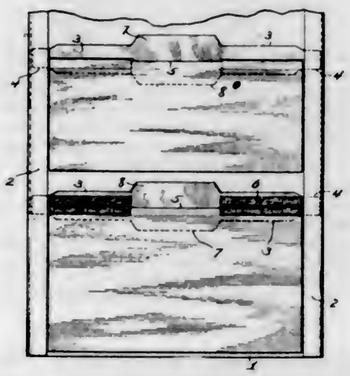
1. In a temperature regulator, the combination with a heated device, heating means therefor, and temperature responsive means for controlling said heating means so as to maintain said device at different mean temperatures depending on the conditions of operation.

1,506,444. PROCESS OF REFINING OIL. DANIEL PYZEL, Piedmont, Calif. Filed May 18, 1921. Serial No. 470,542. 1 Claim. (Cl. 196—47.)



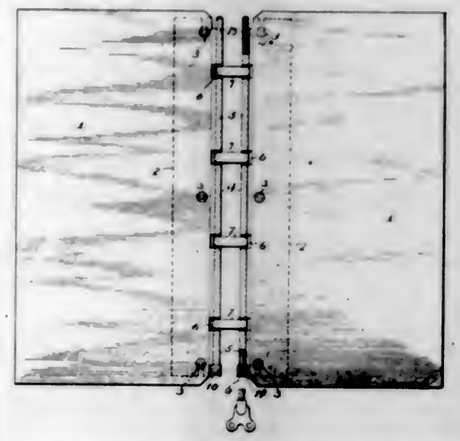
A process of cracking oil which comprises: maintaining a main body of oil at a cracking temperature and pressure; continuously taking off vapors therefrom; continuously supplying fresh oil to maintain the volume of said oil undergoing said cracking; continuously withdrawing oil from said body of oil for the purpose of preventing any increase of the free carbon therein over a predetermined proportion; injecting steam into the oil so withdrawn to form a foam, and thereafter spreading this foam in a thin film after relieving the pressure thereon and while the same is still at substantially the cracking temperature of said main body of oil; and continuously withdrawing vapors from the oil so withdrawn after said pressure has been relieved.

1,506,445. SEGREGATED DRIVE FOR PAPER MACHINES AND THE LIKE. HAROLD W. ROGERS, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 28, 1921, Serial No. 448,553. Renewed Apr. 19, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 172—293.)



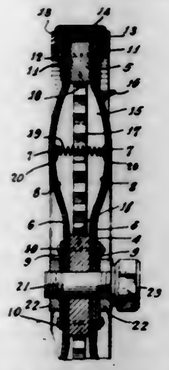
1. In an electric drive wherein a plurality of elements are required to run in fixed speed relationship and wherein a motor is arranged to drive each of a plurality of said elements, the combination of means for controlling the speed of each of a plurality of said motors, and means for actuating each of said speed controlling means to maintain the speed relationship of the motors fixed consisting of a member driven by the corresponding motor and a cooperating freely movable member, one of said members being arranged to provide magnetic poles of a fixed polarity and the other member being provided with a winding adapted to be connected to an alternating current source, and a common source of alternating current for supplying each of said windings.

1,506,446. SYSTEM OF MOTOR CONTROL. HAROLD W. ROGERS, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 12, 1922. Serial No. 560,484. 6 Claims. (Cl. 172—293.)



1. The combination with an alternating current driving motor having phase-wound rotor and stator elements, of means adapted to supply alternating current of a predetermined frequency to one winding of said motor, and means for determining the speed of said motor comprising a commutator for said motor, a resistance connected to segments of said commutator, means adapted to supply direct current to said resistance, brushes of a number corresponding to the number of phases of the winding on the other element of the motor mounted for relative rotation with respect to said commutator, and an adjustable speed mechanism for driving said commutator and brushes relatively from the motor shaft.

1,506,447. CARD INDEX. ROBERT C. RUSSELL, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Oct. 2, 1923. Serial No. 666,100. 2 Claims. (Cl. 129—167.)

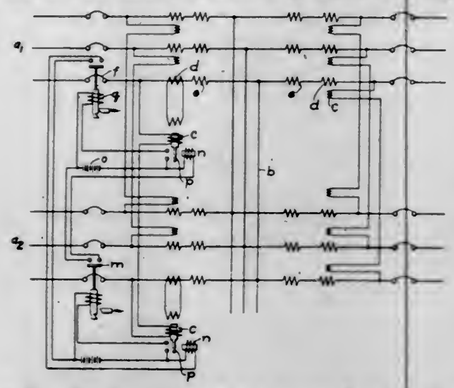


2. In a card index, a combined card and card support having hinged connection with each other and having a slot, said support being reversible whereby the card may be disposed to normally expose one or the other face of the card, said card support having tongues projecting from its respective longitudinal edges.

1,506,448. LOOSE-LEAF BOOK. ROBERT C. RUSSELL, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,664. 4 Claims. (Cl. 129—24.)

1. In a loose-leaf book, the combination of guide tubes, locking rods longitudinally movable in said guide tubes and removable therefrom, leaf links having pivotal connection with said locking rods, said locking rods provided at their inner ends with threaded portions having maximum diameter equal to the diameters of said rods, and enlarged housing sleeves on said guide tubes normally receiving said threaded portions of the rods.

1,506,449. PUNCTUREPROOF AUTOMOBILE WHEEL. THOMAS LABANIAN RUTH, Wilmington, N. C. Filed Aug. 1, 1921. Serial No. 489,114. 4 Claims. (Cl. 152—28.)



1. A resilient wheel comprising a hub member and a rim member surrounding the same, an airtight flexible casing extending from the hub member to the rim member and forming a single annular chamber for holding fluid under pressure, and a plurality of substantially radial springs extending from the hub member to the rim member and located directly in said chamber.

1,506,450. ELECTRICAL MULTIWIRE SYSTEM. PAUL SCHADE, Hermsdorf, near Berlin, Germany, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 3, 1922. Serial No. 558,222. 7 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)

1. A system of the class described wherein a bus bar is arranged to be interconnected with a plurality of conductors of the same polarity through a plurality of switches each adapted to control the connection between one of said conductors and said bus bar, characterized by the fact that means responsive to a drop in the voltage of a faulty conductor and to the current flowing in said conductor are provided for opening the switch by which said conductor is connected to said bus bar.

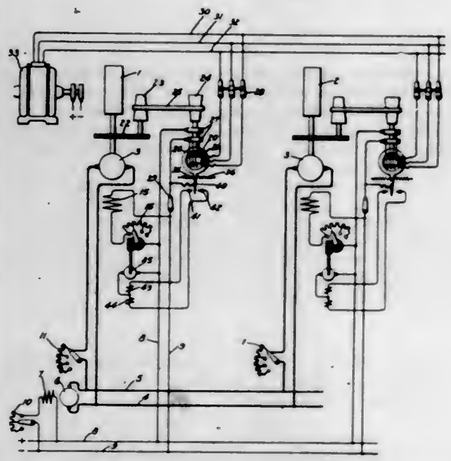
1,506,451. SHOW-CASE CORNER FASTENER. HARRY C. SCHLUETER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 553,595. 2 Claims. (Cl. 211—25.)

1. In a glass panel show case corner fastener, in combination, a triangular lower corner plate having flat walls, a show case floor member having a corner slot with one end open, and a bolt passing upwardly through the lower wall of the corner plate and directed upwardly through the slotted opening of the floor member and provided with a hoop at its upper end for securing the corner plate in its applied position, said corner plate being adjustable through the medium of the bolt and slotted opening for providing glass panel receiving sockets of the size desired between the walls of the corner plate and the side faces of the floor member.



1,506,452. VACUUM-CLEANER-HANDLE SWITCH. IRA R. SELTZER, Waterbury, Conn., assignor to The Gordon Electrical Mfg. Co., Waterville, Conn., a Corporation. Filed June 9, 1923. Serial No. 644,331. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—67.)

In a vacuum-cleaner handle switch, the combination with a hollow vacuum-cleaner handle, of a snap-switch mechanism located therein and comprising a sheet-metal frame formed with a shallow recess having side-walls parallel with the axes of the handle and frame, and a removable slide located within the said recess in which it is guided in its longitudinal movement, and comprising a body of insulating material removably connected with the snap mechanism for the actuation thereof and also comprising a metal plate applied to the said insulating body and formed with a boss projecting through an opening in the said handle at a point between the attachment of the ends of the said frame thereto, whereby the said projection is insulated from the switch mechanism.

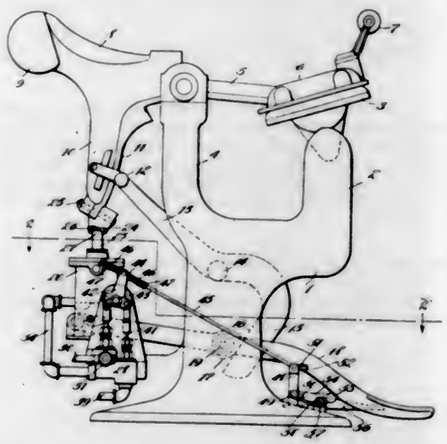
1,506,453. SEGREGATED DRIVE FOR PAPER MACHINES AND THE LIKE. CHARLES W. SHAIFER, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 28, 1921, Serial No. 448,545. Renewed Apr. 19, 1924. 9 Claims. (Cl. 172—293.)

1. In an electric drive wherein a plurality of elements are required to run in fixed speed relationship and wherein a motor is arranged to drive each of a plurality of said elements, the combination of means for controlling the speed of each of a plurality of said motors and means for controlling each of said speed controlling means to maintain the speed relationship of the motors fixed comprising a member driven by the corresponding motor and a cooperating independently rotatable member, one of said members being arranged to provide magnetic poles of a fixed polarity and the other member being provided with a winding adapted to be connected to an alternating current source, and a common source of alternating current for supplying said alternating current windings.



1,506,454. TRACER CONTROL FOR DIESINKING MACHINES. JOHN C. SHAW, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Keller Mechanical Engineering Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 6, 1920. Serial No. 356,766. 43 Claims. (Cl. 90—13.5.)

1. In a die sinking machine, the combination of a tracer and cutter, the tracer being provided with a universally movable point, means for feeding the tracer and cutter relatively to the pattern and work, clutches for controlling said feed, means for operating one of said clutches when said tracer point is out of contact with the pattern and the other when the point is moved by contact with the pattern, whereby the cutting of the die is automatically controlled by said tracer point.

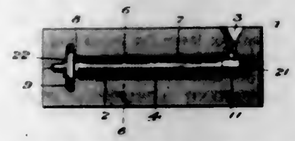
1,506,455. GARMENT PRESS. ARTHUR E. SNOW, Norwood, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, of one-half to Metropolitan Trust Company, trustee, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 16, 1920, Serial No. 358,924. Renewed Dec. 16, 1921. Serial No. 522,954. 14 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

1. A pressing machine, comprising a frame, a garment support, a pressing head, a swinging lever supporting said head and having a portion movable in a generally horizontal direction, and a power operated member movable vertically and immovable horizontally into and out of operative relation with said lever.



1,506,456. TIRE-MAKING MACHINE. WILLIAM C. STEVENS, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 2, 1920. Serial No. 348,903. 8 Claims. (Cl. 154—10.)

1. A machine for the purpose set forth comprising a core support, a pivoted framework, means for raising and lowering said framework, a tension roller in said framework, a fixed pulley located beneath the framework for supporting said framework in its lowermost position, and tension roller retarding means driven through said pulley.

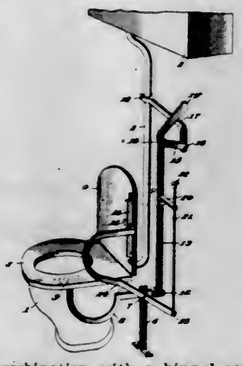
1,506,457. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING TIRE VALVE STEMS. WILLIAM C. STEVENS, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,557. 7 Claims. (Cl. 29—157.)

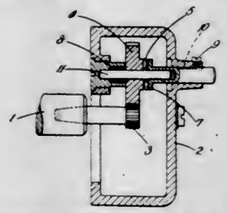


1. The process of manufacturing valve stems of the usual form for pneumatic tires, comprising die-casting a stem with screw-threads over the major portion thereof and with oppositely positioned flattened areas, forming the central air-passageway by means of removable cores and a supplementary tube, permitting the tube to remain in the valve stem as a permanent portion thereof.

1,506,458. FURNACE ARCH FOR BOILERS. CLARENCE A. STRACHOTA, St. Paul, Minn. Filed May 12, 1922. Serial No. 560,337. 6 Claims. (Cl. 110—99.)

1. In a furnace arch, laterally spaced beams, block hangers each slidable on a single beam, and arch-forming blocks underlying said beams and detachably interlocked to said hangers, said blocks having vertical clearance passages adapting them to be detached from and interlocked with said hangers without sliding said hangers out of the space normally occupied by said blocks.

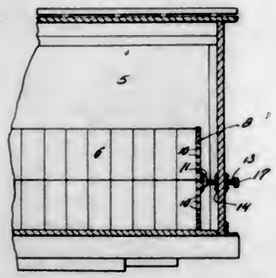
1,506,459. SEAT AND COVER OPERATING MECHANISM. WILLIAM H. STREET, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 28, 1923. Serial No. 683,243. 3 Claims. (Cl. 4—251.)



1. The combination with a hinged seat and cover, of intermediately pivoted levers, one end of one of said levers having sliding connection with the seat, and one end of the other lever having sliding connection with the cover, means attached to the other end of the seat-operating lever for actuating the same, a bracket carried by said operating means, and means attached to the other end of the cover operating lever for actuating the same, said latter means being guided in said bracket.

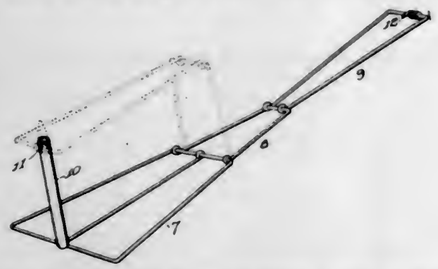
1,506,460. PREPARING ARSENOBENZENE DERIVATIVES WHICH ARE STABLE IN SOLUTION. KARL STREITWOLF, Frankfort on the Main, Germany, assignor to Farbwerke vorm. Meister Lucius & Brüning, Hochst on the Main, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Sept. 17, 1923. Serial No. 663,292. 1 Claim. (Cl. 260—15.)

The process of making arsenical preparations which are stable in solution, which comprises combining the silver-sodium salt of 4,4'-dioxy-3,3'-diamino-arsenobenzene with a formaldehyde-bisulphite compound of an arsenobenzene.



1,506,461. REVOLUTION COUNTER FOR ROTATING BODIES. KARL JOHAN SVENSSON and KARL AXEL PATRIK NORLING, London, England. Filed Aug. 13, 1923. Serial No. 657,175. 5 Claims. (Cl. 235—103.)

1. A revolution counter comprising gear wheels, a so-called "touch-peg" means for imparting to said touch-peg a pronounced impulse per revolution of a gear wheel in the mechanism when said "touch-peg" is pressed, means for bringing one of said gear wheels into engagement with its driving member only when pressure is applied to the "touch peg" and for disengaging said gear wheel from its driving member when the pressure applied to the "touch peg" is released, substantially as set forth.



1,506,462. BOX-PACKING DEVICE FOR FREIGHT CARS. GEORGE M. THOMPSON, Avon Park, Fla. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,198. 4 Claims. (Cl. 105—369.)

1. In combination with the body of a freight car, means for packing rows of boxes tightly within the car body when said boxes are placed from end to end of the latter, comprising a follower plate movable longitudinally of the car body upon the bottom of the latter and extending transversely from side to side of the car, and adjusting screws passing through an end wall of the car body and operable from the exterior of the latter for adjusting said follower plate.

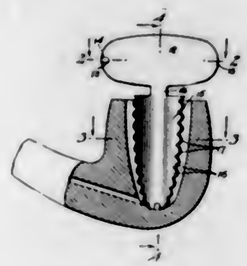
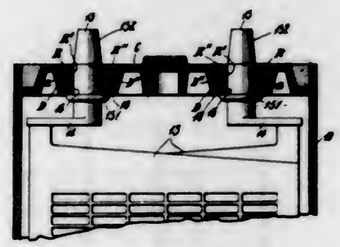
1,506,463. GROMMET TOWEL HOLDER. LEROY FREDRICK TURNBULL, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Oct. 14, 1922. Serial No. 594,668. 6 Claims. (Cl. 24—17.)



6. A grommet towel holder comprising a frame of skeleton formation, said frame consisting of a base section; a movably attached rear section; a movably attached top section; a towel supporting post over which the grommet ends of the towels are placed; and a fastening means for connecting the top section to the post, substantially as specified.

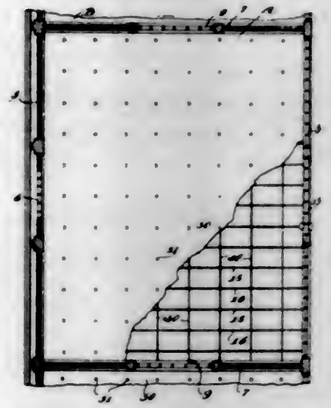
1,506,464. COLLAPSIBLE EASY CHAIR, COUCH, ETC. VICTOR GRAF v. ALTEN, Berlin-Wilmersdorf, Germany. Filed July 22, 1924. Serial No. 727,560. 4 Claims. (Cl. 155—119.)



1. In a chair of the character described, a folding frame including crossed supporting members the lower portions of which constitute legs, cross members connecting the legs, a pair of rotatably padded bolsters forming the upper cross members of the frame and connected with the upper ends of the supporting members, a hammock freely trained over the bolsters, and resilient means connecting the respective ends of the hammock to the leg portions of the cross members of the frame.

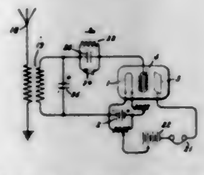
1,506,465. PIPE REAMER. DAVID M. J. WALL, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 14, 1921. Serial No. 437,228. 6 Claims. (Cl. 131—13.)

6. As a new article of manufacture, a reamer for tobacco pipe bowls, comprising a pair of substantially similar laminose members, each with a flat handle portion and an angulated blade portion, and means for securing said handle portions in parallel relation and said blade portions in radial relation.



1,506,466. TERMINAL-POST SEAL. ANTON WALTER, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to The Prest-O-Lite Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 15, 1921. Serial No. 500,788. 4 Claims. (Cl. 204—38.)

2. The method of securing a terminal post in an opening in a storage battery cover through which it projects that comprises forcing onto said post a hard rubber bushing that has a post-receiving passage initially of a cross-sectional size smaller than the part of said post which it finally engages, whereby said bushing is force-fitted on said post and said passage is enlarged, stressing the walls thereof so that said post is firmly gripped and held in place by said bushing.



1,506,467. BURGLAR ALARM. HOMER E. WATSON, Arnolds Park, Iowa. Filed Dec. 28, 1920. Serial No. 433,673. 3 Claims. (Cl. 177—304.)

1. The combination with a room having a cage therein, of a signalling system including a plurality of spaced positive and negative wires arranged in alternate relation, means for electrically connecting the positive and negative wires to the opposite terminals of a source of electrical energy and a signal incorporated in said means, a plurality of spaced bridge wires arranged below the first mentioned wires and adjacent to the upper end of the cage, and a movable false ceiling secured to said bridge wires.

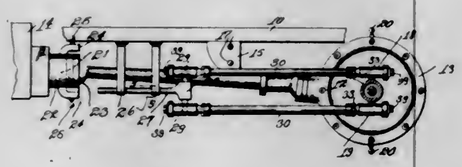
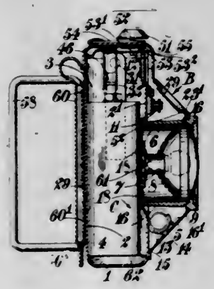
1,506,468. ELECTRON-DISCHARGE DEVICE. WILLIAM C. WHITE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 28, 1920. Serial No. 420,231. 10 Claims. (Cl. 250—27.)



10. A radio detector apparatus comprising a sealed container, a filamentary cathode of refractory material, an anode, a grid, said container and electrodes being deprived of gas, a filling of argon at a pressure of about 20 to 60 microns, a source of current at a voltage of about 18 to 23 volts connected between said cathode and anode and means for impressing radio signals on said grid.

1,506,469. SLACK-ADJUSTER ARRANGEMENT. LOREN L. WHITNEY, Hammond, Ind., assignor to American Steel Foundries, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 3, 1922. Serial No. 572,398. 4 Claims. (Cl. 188—197.)

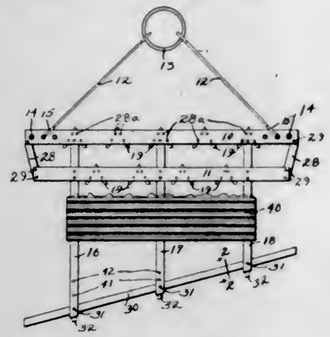


3. A slack adjuster including, in combination, an adjuster jaw, and an adjuster block comprising a main body portion and a pair of arms separate from said main body portion which are capable of being assembled after being brought within the jaw, said main body portion having pockets and said arms having projections received in said pockets for forming a connection between said parts, said block and jaw having cooperating portions for maintaining same in operative position.

1,506,470. TORSION ROD FOR AUTOMOBILES. LEE WHITCOMB, Plainfield, Ill. Filed Aug. 28, 1923. Serial No. 659,777. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—55.)

The combination with the chassis of an automobile and its cross members, of guides carried by the cross members, a T-shaped member having its stem angular and slidable in the guides, ball members carried by the ends of the head of the T-shaped member, ball members carried by the chassis, and torsion rods having resilient sockets in their ends connected respectively with the ball members of the T-shaped member and the ball members of the chassis.

1,506,471. ELECTRIC-BATTERY LAMP OR LANTERN. GEORGE ARTHUR HENRY WOOTTON, London, England. Filed Nov. 8, 1923. Serial No. 673,564. 7 Claims. (Cl. 240—85.)

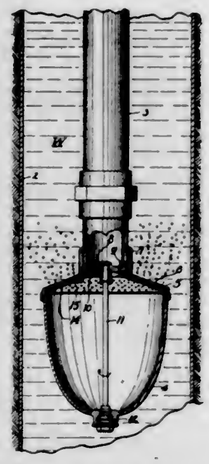


1. A lantern or lamp of the class described, comprising in combination a container for a battery, a casing mounted on the front wall of the container and constituting a compartment for the lamp switch, said casing comprising a hinged door, a holder for a spare lamp-bulb mounted on said door inside said compartment, a spring controlling said door and tending to hold the same closed and lever mechanism operatively connected with said door inside said casing and operable manually from outside said casing for opening the door sufficiently only to expose said holder and lamp bulb.

1,506,472. METHOD OF PRODUCING DULL-FINISHED ENAMEL SURFACES. JOHN W. WUERTZ, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to Pratt & Lambert, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 22, 1922. Serial No. 570,259. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)

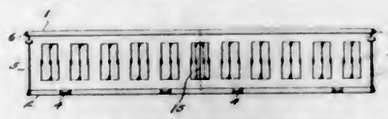
1. A dull finished enameled surface consisting of a coat of gloss enamel, and powdered talc applied to said enamel.

4. The hereindescribed method of producing a dull finished enamel surface which consists in first applying a gloss enamel to the surface, then permitting said enamel to dry so that the same is no longer tacky but is slightly adherent, then dusting talc upon the enamel, and then removing the surplus talc from the enamel.



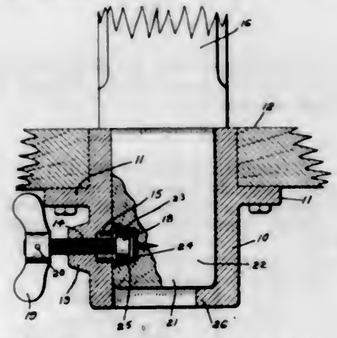
1,506,473. ROAD-SURFACE MAINTAINER. EMIL BERN and WALTER G. WERTS, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed June 15, 1921. Serial No. 477,707. 3 Claims. (Cl. 37—153.)

1. In a road surface maintainer, a pair of rigid members spaced from each other fore-and-aft in the device, V-shaped drag shoes secured to said members, the shoes being staggered on the respective members, each shoe comprising a single sheet of metal folded to a V-shape and having its upper edge folded over horizontally with a notch provided at its forward portion so that the edges of the horizontal portions fit together.



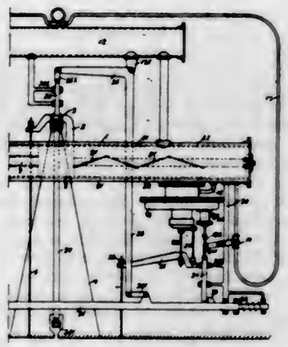
3. In a road surface maintainer, a pair of fore-and-aft spaced members rigidly connected together, a plurality of scraper shoes on each member, the shoes of the respective members being staggered with relation to each other, frame members extending rearwardly from said first member, a drag member mounted at the rear end of said last-described frame members and inclined across the path of travel of the machine, a frame mounted on wheels, means for supporting said road maintaining structure on said frame with the scraping and dragging blades in substantially the same plane, and means mounted on said frame for adjusting the position of said road maintaining device.

1,506,474. AIR LIFT. WILLIAM I. BETTIS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 25, 1923. Serial No. 614,760. 11 Claims. (Cl. 103—232.)



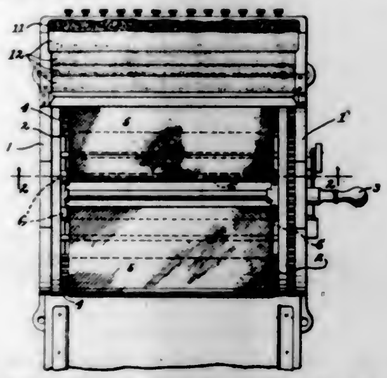
1. Air lift apparatus comprising an automatic valvular means for intermittently discharging small independent volumes of air into the liquid to be lifted.

1,506,475. CEMENT-BLOCK MOLD. GROVER F. BURKHOLDER, Newark, Ohio. Filed Nov. 15, 1923. Serial No. 674,842. 2 Claims. (Cl. 25—121.)



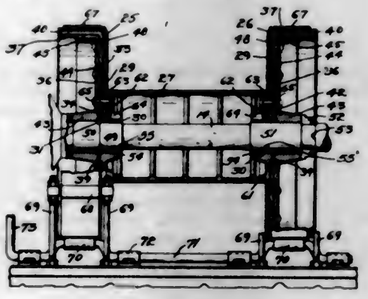
1. A mold of the class described comprising a bottom having ridges formed therein, plates having similar ridges formed thereon detachably interlocked with the ridges on said bottom, sides and ends hingedly connected with the bottom, and means for interlocking the sides and ends.

1,506,476. STAKE HOLDER. THOMAS F. CULLINAN, Providence, R. I. Filed Apr. 14, 1922. Serial No. 552,773. 4 Claims. (Cl. 296—43.)



1. A stake holder comprising a socket member having means by which it may be attached to a vehicle frame, and a clamp screw threaded through the wall of said socket, in combination with a stake adapted to be positioned in said socket, the same having a locking recess with a tapered wall therein to be engaged by said screw to force the stake downward.

1,506,477. WEIGHING SCALE. FRIEDRICH AUGUST ALBERT ESSMANN, Altona-Othmarschen, Germany. Filed Mar. 21, 1923. Serial No. 626,682. 10 Claims. (Cl. 265—56.)

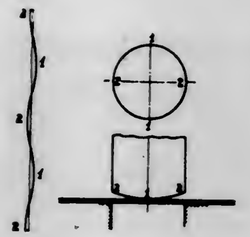


1. A weighing scale comprising a hollow cylinder to form a weigh beam, a movable weight, a pressure fluid cylinder, the weight being adapted to move along the beam by the aid of compressed fluid, two valve devices communicating with the said cylinder, one adapted to allow fluid to escape from one side of the cylinder when the beam oscillates in one direction and the other adapted to allow fluid to escape from the other side of the cylinder, when the beam oscillates in the other direction, and means to feed the opposite side of the cylinder with compressed fluid to cause movement of the weight until equilibrium is obtained and means to operate the valves on the weigh beam passing through the position of equilibrium.

1,506,478. PROCESS OF DUPLICATING TYPEWRITING AND THE LIKE. JOSEPH J. GAHN, CHARLES R. WILKES, Jr., and JOHN P. DAVIS, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 20, 1920. Serial No. 411,633. 1 Claim. (Cl. 101—426.)

The herein described method of printing letterheads and facsimile letters in one operation which consists in mounting the type for the letterhead firmly and solidly on a printing drum and in mounting the type for the body of the letter loosely in the drum so as to slightly yield during the printing operation, covering the type for the body of the letter with a sheet of silk which has previously been washed to remove the gloss and lint, fastening the ends of the silk to the drum to hold it stationary relative to the body of type covered thereby, applying ink direct to the type of the letterhead and, also, to the portion of the silk covering the type for the body of the letter, and then pressing the inked parts against the surface to be printed thereby.

1,506,479. COMBINED BRAKE AND SPOOLING DRUM. EDWIN W. GOESER and WILLIAM D. DAVIDSON, Los Angeles, Calif., assignors to Emsco Tool Co., a Corporation of California. Filed Mar. 29, 1924. Serial No. 702,791. 21 Claims. (Cl. 188—218.)



1. In a combined brake and spooling drum organization comprising means for connecting a shaft with a brake drum, the combination of: a web carrying a brake rim, and a pair of flanges engaging opposite sides of said web.

17. In a construction of the class described, the combination of: a shaft; a pair of brake wheels mounted on said shaft; a spooling drum supported between said brake wheels; a shoulder formed on said shaft engaging one of said brake wheels; and a collar arranged to engage the other of said brake wheels, said shoulder and said collar arranged to prevent the spreading of said construction.

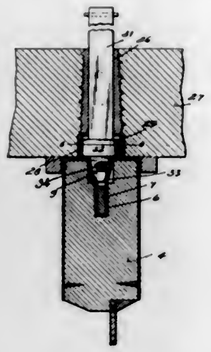
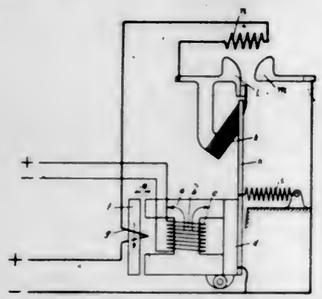
1,506,480. PUNCH. HANS GRADE, Bork, Germany. Filed Feb. 6, 1923. Serial No. 617,324. 3 Claims. (Cl. 164—124.)

3. A punch having a working face, a cutting edge on said punch coextensive with the face periphery, said face being a part of a cylindrical surface.



1,506,481. CRAMPING DEVICE. WALTER S. GRAFFAM, Shrewsbury, Mass. Filed Aug. 7, 1923. Serial No. 656,256. 1 Claim. (Cl. 144—304.)

In a cramping device shaped like the letter C, the combination of a frame made from a single piece of sheet metal, with a central opening having flanges drawn up around the sides of said central opening; the metal folded back upon itself so as to leave two cylindrical shaped openings the axes of which lie in the same straight line; the two halves of the folded metal held together as one piece by rivets or other commonly used methods; an anvil inserted into one of the cylindrical shaped openings; a screw threaded into the other of said cylindrical openings; a cupped washer attached loosely to the end of said screw; all substantially as described and set forth.



1,506,482. WINDOW GUARD. HIRAM C. GRAY, Bucyrus, Ohio. Filed Apr. 23, 1923. Serial No. 633,841. 2 Claims. (Cl. 20—71.)

1. The combination with a window frame, of a sash slidably associated therewith, bars slidable in the upper rail of the frame, ferrules carried by said upper rail, means carried by the bars for frictionally engaging the ferrules to hold said bars in elevated positions, and means carried by one rail of the sash for detachably interlocking the sash with the bars to cause the bars to move at times with the sash.

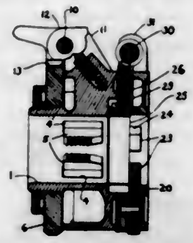
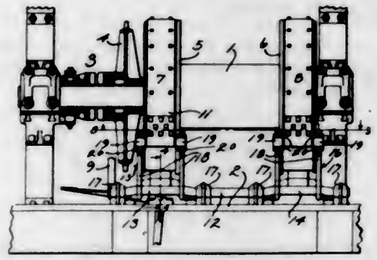
1,506,483. EXCESS-CURRENT CUT-OUT. LEONHARD HAAG, Berlin-Zehlendorf, Germany, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 11, 1922. Serial No. 560,216. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—94.)



4. An interrupter for electric circuits comprising a switch member biased to the open position, an electromagnet having a shunt winding and a magnetic structure therefor having two poles, a magnetic movable member connected to the said switch member and cooperating with the said poles for holding the switch member in the closed position, a part of magnetic material disposed between the said poles and between the said magnetic movable member and the said winding and separated from the said magnetic structure by an air gap, and a coil energized responsively to the current through the switch disposed on the said part of magnetic material for reducing the flux through the said magnetic member to permit the switch member to open in accordance with its bias, the said part of magnetic material being normally in an unsaturated condition and so proportioned as to become saturated when the current in the said coil exceeds a predetermined value.

1,506,484. DIESTOCK. LOUIS F. HART, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Hart Manufacturing Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 27, 1921. Serial No. 495,981. 3 Claims. (Cl. 10—122.)



1. In mechanism of the character described, the combination with a main body-member and dies adjustably held therein; of an annular member detachably secured to said body-member, radially adjustable guide blocks in said annular member, and a cam-plate for positioning said blocks, said cam-plate being rotatably mounted on the face of said annular member designed to contact with said body-member so as to be held between said two members.

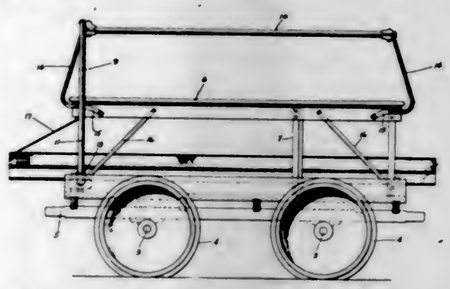
1,506,485. EQUALIZING DEVICE. ARTHUR J. HODGE, Lomita, Calif., assignor to Union Tool Company, Torrance, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Feb. 8, 1923. Serial No. 617,675. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—204.)

2. In an equalizing device, the combination of a pair of brake wheels mounted to rotate on the same axis, a brake-band corresponding to each wheel, an equalizing shaft extending longitudinally with respect to the axis of the wheels and having a crank connected with the tight end of one of the brake bands, a second crank on the shaft on the opposite side thereof connected with the tight end of the ober brake band and controlling means for tightening one of the brake bands, said shaft operating to produce an equalizing force in tightening the bands.

1,506,486. ELECTRIC OSCILLATOR. ALBERT W. HULL, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 1, 1920. Serial No. 362,483. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—36.)

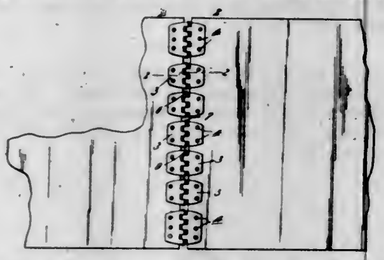


1. An apparatus for producing electrical oscillations comprising an electron discharge device having an anode, an electron emitting cathode and a discharge controlling member, said cathode being located between said anode and said discharge controlling member and being relatively closer to said anode, circuit connections between said cathode and anode and between said cathode and discharge controlling member, said circuit connections being coupled together to permit the production of oscillations, and means for maintaining said control member during the entire time that oscillations are being produced at a potential which varies between the potential of the cathode and a potential which is negative with respect to the cathode.

1,506,487. MEANS FOR LOCKING ELECTRIC-LIGHT-GLOBE ATTACHMENTS TO HOLDERS. ERIC WILLIAM HUTCHINGS, Miramar, Wellington, New Zealand. Filed Sept. 14, 1922. Serial No. 588,263. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—356.)

1. In combination, a socket member provided with a fastening element, an electric light bulb having a cap member provided with a fastening element adapted to engage the fastening element of the socket member for connecting said members together, one of said members being provided with an abutment element, a locking sleeve adjustably mounted on the socket member and having its lower edge engaging said bulb for preventing any instrument from being inserted between the sleeve and the bulb, and a resilient locking element secured to said sleeve and engageable with said abutment element for preventing disengagement of the fastening elements from one another until said bulb is broken away from the cap member.

1,506,488. RAILWAY HAND CAR. WALTER F. KASPER, Fairmont, Minn., assignor to Fairmont Gas Engine & Railway Motor Car Company, Fairmont, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Nov. 7, 1921. Serial No. 513,489. Renewed Feb. 5, 1923. 10 Claims. (Cl. 105—162.)



1. A railway hand car having a platform and supporting wheels and a hand rail arranged transversely of said platform, the lower portion of said rail being extended inwardly toward the middle portion of the car, thereby providing an unobstructed loading and unloading space between said rail and the car wheels.

1,506,489. BELT FASTENER. MARTIN KIEFER, Elmhurst, Ill. Filed Apr. 12, 1923. Serial No. 631,518. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—33.)

A belt fastener including a plurality of hinged members connected with opposite ends of the belt for securing said ends together, the hinged connections of said members being arranged in axial alignment, the hinged members connecting said belt intermediate the side edges being of uniform size and the end hinge members adjacent the side edges of the belt having increased connecting sections adapted to receive the increased stresses at the side edges of the belt.

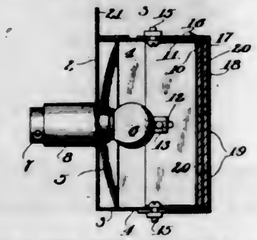
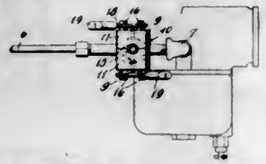
1,506,490. AUTOMATIC TAKE-UP DEVICE FOR BRAKES. CLOYD LELAND KINDER and HAROLD D. COOPER, Denver, Colo., assignors, by direct and mesne assignments, to The A. C. Smith Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Colorado. Filed Aug. 28, 1922. Serial No. 584,744. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—196.)



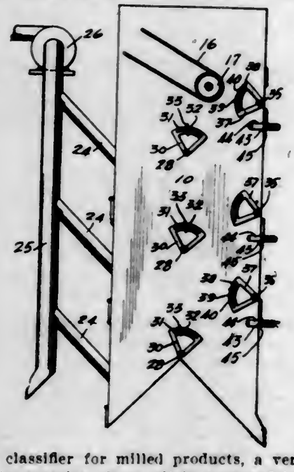
2. In combination a transmission band having lugs at each end thereof, an adjusting means associated with one of said lugs, said means comprising a member having a channel-shaped cross section, the flanges of which are adapted to fit the sides of the lug, an opening in the web of said member, a pawl pivoted thereto and a spring connected to said pawl and said web for moving said pawl about its pivot.

1,506,491. DEPOSIT-RECEIVING MACHINE. HAROLD B. KLINE, Utica, N. Y., assignor to National Automatic Teller Corporation, Utica, N. Y., a Corporation. Filed May 12, 1922. Serial No. 560,433. 40 Claims. (Cl. 234—1.)



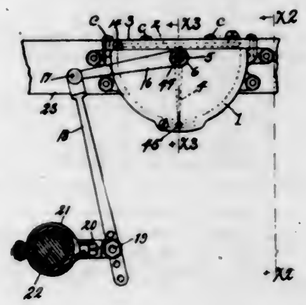
1. A machine for receiving deposits comprising a safety receptacle having an opening thereinto, a compartment over said opening for receiving an envelope having an outwardly extending tab, mechanism for impressing a character indicating the amount deposited to complete a receipt upon a part of said tab and mechanism for severing said receipted part from the envelope whereby said receipt may be withdrawn by the depositor while the envelope containing the money passes into the safety receptacle.

1,506,492. LICENSE PLATE AND HOLDER. MADS M. LARSEN, Colton, Calif. Filed Sept. 25, 1923. Serial No. 664,701. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—132.)



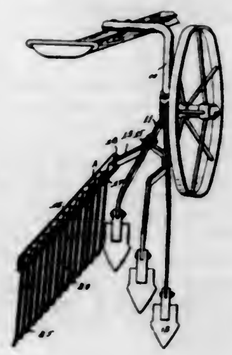
1. A license plate device comprising, in combination, a box, inner and outer supporting frames adjustably mounted upon the box and having inwardly extending flange portions, a license plate supported between the said flange portions, and means in the box for effecting an illumination of the license plate to render the characters thereon conspicuous.

1,506,493. AUTOMOBILE LOCK. WILLIAM F. LEVISON, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Feb. 11, 1924. Serial No. 692,009. 6 Claims. (Cl. 251—6.)



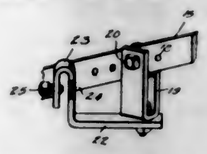
1. In an automobile lock, the combination of a valve arranged in the fuel supply line, a two-part housing for the valve, a pair of legs carried by each part of the housing, each part having openings, and said legs being adapted to be received in the openings and means to lock the legs in said openings.

1,506,494. CLASSIFIER FOR MILLED PRODUCTS. LYCURGUS LINDSAY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 6, 1921. Serial No. 505,774. 6 Claims. (Cl. 83—40.)



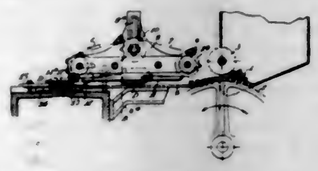
1. In a classifier for milled products, a vertically disposed chute, a series of oppositely arranged inclined partitions within said chute, which partitions divide the space within said chute into a series of chambers, means comprising separate educts and separate air inlets, one of these being adjustable for producing a suction of air through said chambers, and a pair of adjustable vanes located in the upper portion of some of the chambers.

1,506,495. SHOCK ABSORBER. THOMAS MACRAE, Florence, Ariz. Filed Sept. 27, 1921. Serial No. 503,560. 12 Claims. (Cl. 188—89.)



1. A shock absorber comprising a cylinder and piston operating therein, said cylinder being provided with by-pass bores of different lengths, said bores communicating with the chamber of the cylinder on opposite sides of the piston under ordinary conditions, said piston being adapted to pass a port of one of said bores when the shock absorber is subjected to greater shocks.

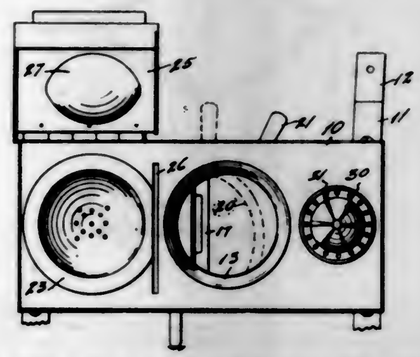
1,506,496. FENDER ATTACHMENT FOR CULTIVATORS. ABRAHAM F. MATTHEWS, Pocahontas, Iowa. Filed Mar. 12, 1923. Serial No. 624,400. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—188.)



A pair of fender attachments for cultivators and the like, each comprising a channel iron frame fixed at one end to the gang of the cultivator and extended rearwardly therefrom, a plurality of inverted U-shaped members mounted in said frame at their connecting portion, said channel iron frame having a plurality of openings in one of its flanges through which the inverted U-shaped members are extended, the other flange of the channel iron frame being bent over the connecting portion of said inverted U-shaped members for anchoring them to said frame and the flange being bent over between the inverted U-shaped members as specified.

1,506,497. DISK SHARPENER. CLARENCE E. MEYER, near Van Meter, Iowa. Filed Jan. 9, 1924. Serial No. 685,156. 1 Claim. (Cl. 76—85.)

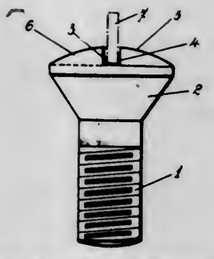
In a disk sharpener, a lever, a sharpener blade secured to one end thereof, a U-shaped yoke having its arms pivoted to said lever, a bar pivoted to the central portion of said yoke, a channel-shaped bracket on said bar offset therefrom and opening substantially at right angles thereto.



1,506,498. APPARATUS FOR FEEDING AND COLLATING CIGARETTES AND OTHER SMALL ARTICLES. WALTER EVERETT MOLINS, London, England. Filed Aug. 20, 1923. Serial No. 658,470. 8 Claims. (Cl. 226—5.)

1. In apparatus for feeding articles such as cigarettes and in combination a hopper, a moving conveyor adjacent to the discharge opening of the hopper, a plate having forked ends engaging grooves in the moving conveyor, a second moving conveyor arranged above the plate and projections on the second conveyor adapted to engage articles passed from the hopper to the plate.

8. In apparatus for feeding articles such as cigarettes in combination a hopper, a moving conveyor adjacent to the discharge opening of said hopper, said conveyor being provided with circumferential grooves, means engaging in said grooves for removing articles from said conveyor, a second moving conveyor arranged above said means and projections on said second conveyor adapted to engage articles removed from said hopper.



1,506,499. FRUIT CUTTER. HENRY M. PITMAN, Dallas, Tex. Filed Aug. 31, 1922. Serial No. 585,405. 2 Claims. (Cl. 146—3.)

1. In a device of the character described, the combination of an elevated support, a flanged opening in said support, a keeper on said flange, a fruit severing knife removably mounted in said keeper and having a blade extending across said opening, a gauge arm mounted on said flange and adapted to swing into said flanged opening for supporting fruit of various sizes.

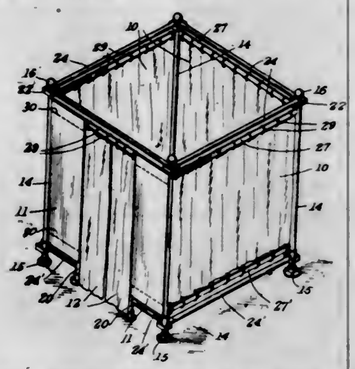
1,506,500. SAFETY SCREW. ETTORE RIPAMONTI and ENRICO PEIRANO, Milan, Italy. Filed July 23, 1920. Serial No. 398,600. 1 Claim. (Cl. 85—45.)



A screw having a head circular in cross-section and provided with a flat upper surface extending diametrically entirely across the head and having its intermediate portion enlarged to form a circular area, a plurality of semi-annular segments arranged on opposite sides of said flat surface, forming part of the head and having their centers coaxial with the axis of the screw, each of said segments having a substantially vertical end wall extending radially from the axis of the screw, the upper face of each segment being inclined gradually downwardly from its own end wall to said flat surface.

1,506,501. BEVERAGE. LEO FREDERICK RETTGER and HARRY ASHER CHEPLIN, New Haven, Conn. Filed Dec. 17, 1921. Serial No. 523,021. 4 Claims. (Cl. 99—11.)

2. As a new product, acidophilus milk, of cream like consistency.

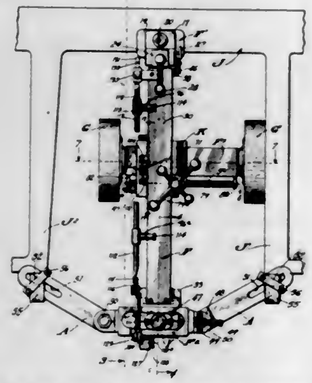
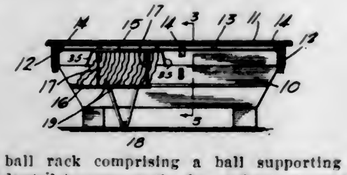
3. The method of producing a sour milk product which comprises inoculating milk with strains of Bacillus acidophilus which develop rapidly therein, and permitting such strains to develop until coagulation of casein takes place.

1,506,502. SECTIONAL BOOTH. ALOIS J. RHEINBERGER, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 8, 1922. Serial No. 599,618. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—3.)



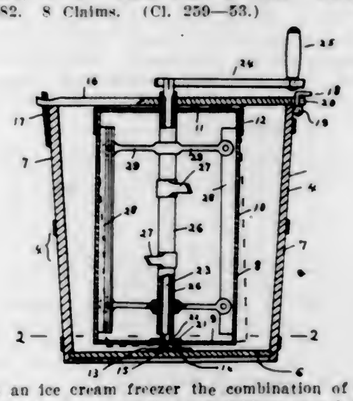
1. A booth comprising a plurality of tubular uprights having removable caps, transverse tubular beams removably engaged with said uprights, rectangular bars interengaged with said uprights, said bars being spaced in parallel adjacently below said tubes, and textile fabrics adjustably suspended from said bars to form the walls of the booth.

1,506,503. MATCH HOLDER. SAMUEL ROBERT, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 11, 1923. Serial No. 679,969. 11 Claims. (Cl. 206—20.)



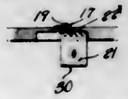
1. A match book holder comprising a supporting member, and a holding member normally parallel with the supporting member and pivotally mounted upon one side of the supporting member for swinging movement with respect thereto, said holding member constructed to receive the stub end of a match book and support and retain the same against one side of said supporting member to prevent the bodily removal of said book, when the holding member is parallel with the supporting member.

1,506,504. MACHINE FOR FINISHING JOURNAL FRAMES. JOSEPH B. RUATTI, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Dec. 14, 1921. Serial No. 522,393. 11 Claims. (Cl. 51—249.)



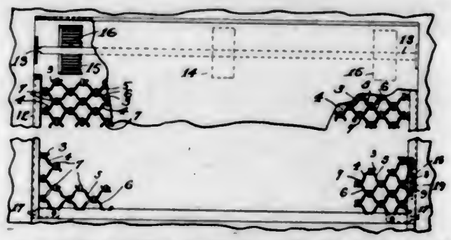
1. A grinding machine comprising a frame, a carriage movable vertically on the frame, grinding elements sustained on the carriage, means carried by the frame for continuously rotating the grinding elements irrespective of the position of the carriage, feeding means for effecting a lateral adjustment of the grinding elements, and means for moving said carriage first in one direction and then the other on said frame, both of the last mentioned means being controllable by the movement of the carriage.

1,506,505. MOVABLE BALL RACK FOR POCKET-BILLIARD TABLES. PAUL J. SAXER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 6, 1921. Serial No. 505,780. 19 Claims. (Cl. 46—12.)



1. A ball rack comprising a ball supporting frame, means adapted to support the frame for horizontal movement upon a table, and means for connecting the frame to said means to permit of the frame being swung upwardly in overlying position with respect to the table to discharge the balls in the frame on the table.

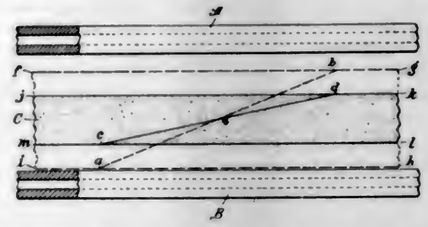
1,506,506. ICE-CREAM FREEZER. NET F. SHARP, Mohawk, N. Y. Filed June 5, 1923. Serial No. 643,582. 8 Claims. (Cl. 259—53.)



1. In an ice cream freezer the combination of an ice receptacle, a cream container revolubly mounted in said ice receptable with the axis of rotation of said container eccentric of said container, means for rotating said container, dashers within said cream container and means for securing relative movement between said dashers and said cream container.

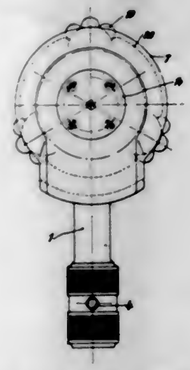
1,506,507. FRET-LOCK SYSTEM. CHARLES H. SIEGMUND, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Sept. 6, 1922. Serial No. 586,428. 8 Claims. (Cl. 84—315.)

1. In a musical instrument, the combination of a neck, a string, a movable fret normally lying flat on the finger board, and manually operable means for rocking said movable fret in contact with said spring.



1,506,508. ROLLING DOOR. FELIX L. STERCHELE, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 5, 1922. Serial No. 586,094. 4 Claims. (Cl. 189—56.)

1. A lattice rolling door composed of a series of lateral rods, each rod bent in the plane of the door alternately in opposite directions in the form of a sinusoid, links connecting adjacent portions of the rods so that each rod is hinged to the next rod above it and also below it in a staggered relation across the door, a block fast to each end of the rods and means to pivot the blocks together.



1,506,509. METHOD OF JOINING PULPBOARD. DANIEL MANSON SUTHERLAND, Jr., Trenton, N. J., assignor to The Agasote Millboard Co., Ewing Township, Mercer County, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 7, 1919. Serial No. 329,123. 4 Claims. (Cl. 154—42.)

1. In the art of making pulp board that improvement which includes overlapping two edges of portions of substantially uncompressed spongy, and therefore incomplete, pulp board, applying a layer of a suitable cement between said two edges and then subjecting such edges to the action of a hot press so as to provide both heat and pressure sufficient materially to decrease the thickness of, and thus to compact, such portions into completed pulp board while simultaneously joining such portions.

1,506,510. APPARATUS FOR SKINNING ANIMALS. JULES URBAIN THUAU, Paris, France, assignor to Societe Industrielle de Depouille Mecanique des Animaux, Paris, France. Filed June 7, 1923. Serial No. 643,875. 1 Claim. (Cl. 17—22.)

A motor driven skinning tool comprising a handle and a smooth substantially circular rotating disc having non-cutting projections along its periphery, and adapted to set up no currents of air when rotating.

1,506,511. METHOD AND MEANS FOR FASTENING PARTS. HIRAM L. WALKER, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to Chandler Motor Car Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 28, 1923. Serial No. 628,256. 6 Claims. (Cl. 113—112.)

1. In the art of welding to produce a unitary structure, the method of welding a tubular member to a solid member provided with notches having spaced apart walls which consists in reinforcing the joint by means of an annular metal ring placed on the side of the tubular member opposite the solid member, then directing the welding arc to fuse the metal of the tubular member and portions of the solid member and the reinforcing ring to form a seam, said seam being formed in an irregular line corresponding with the outlines of said notches.

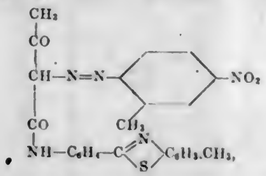
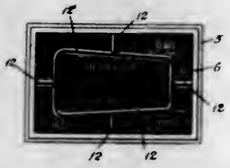
1,506,512. SEAL PRESS. HERMAN H. WENTHE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Meyer & Wenthe, Chicago, Ill., a Copartnership consisting of Gustave A. Meyer and Herman H. Wenthe. Filed July 23, 1923. Serial No. 653,126. 5 Claims. (Cl. 101—3.)

1. In a seal press, a body having spaced horizontal upper and lower arms, a die on the lower arm, the upper arm having a vertical bore and a chamber extending laterally from the bore, a die-carrying plunger slidable in the bore, a finger fixed to the plunger and extending within the chamber, a lever for operating the plunger, and a spring carried in its entirety by the upper arm and disposed within the chamber and engaged with and between the finger and the bottom wall of the chamber.



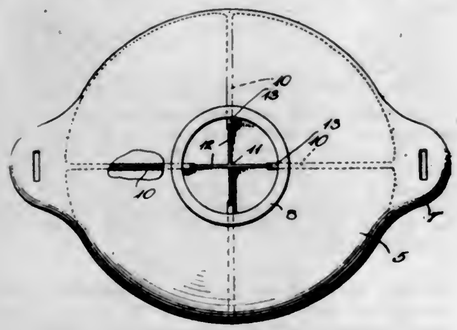
1,506,513. BEARING LUBRICATION. CHILDE HAROLD WILLS, Marysville, Mich. Filed Dec. 20, 1920. Serial No. 431,806. 16 Claims. (Cl. 64—24.)

3. A bearing adapted to be associated with a rotating shaft, an oil duct in the shaft opening to the bearing, and an oil duct in the bearing adapted to coact with the shaft duct, the axis of the bearing duct being upon a chord of the shaft.



1,506,514. AZODYESTUFFS INSOLUBLE IN WATER AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. ARTHUR ZITSCHER, Offenbach-on-the-Main, Germany, assignor to Corporation of Chemische Fabrik Griesheim-Elektron, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed Apr. 14, 1923. Serial No. 632,136. 12 Claims. (Cl. 260—86.)

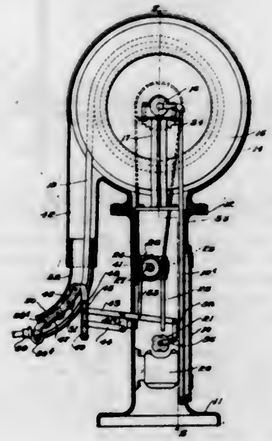
10. As new product the azodyestuff, insoluble in water, of the type:



which dyestuff is, when dry an orange powder, soluble in sulfuric acid to a yellow solution, which can be used for the production of vaulable pigment colors and gives, when produced on the fiber, reddish yellow shades of an excellent fastness to washing.

1,506,515. APPARATUS FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF PULPBOARDS. JOHN CORMIE, Ewing Township, Mercer County, N. J., assignor to Agasote Millboard Co., Trenton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 2, 1922. Serial No. 598,518. 3 Claims. (Cl. 92—61.)

1. In apparatus for the manufacture of pulp boards, a mold adapted to receive liquid-containing pulp, means for expelling liquid from said pulp, and means removably positioned in said mold for weakening the pulp board therein coincidentally with the expression of the liquid, along predetermined lines without however severing the pulp board, to permit sections thereof to be subsequently readily removed and returned to the pulp supply, substantially as and for the purpose described.



1,506,516. ICE CAP. LEON A. CRAIG, Cambridge, Ohio. Filed Mar. 19, 1923. Serial No. 626,123. 6 Claims. (Cl. 150—1.)

4. An ice cap composed of flexible rubber top and bottom walls having a plurality of radial partition walls having their edges connected with the top and bottom walls of the cap and intersecting each other so as to divide the bag into a plurality of non-communicating compartments, said top wall having a filling mouth, the partitions intersecting each other under said mouth so that access to any or all of said compartments can be had through said mouth, said partitions comprising inner and outer portions, and the inner portions of the partitions being of a size adapted to be inserted through said mouth.

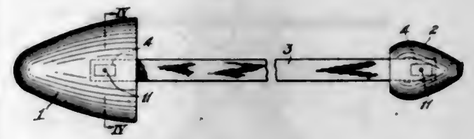
1,506,517. AUTOMATIC HOSE REEL. ANTONE. DOWBELIO, Crockett, Calif. Filed Feb. 11, 1924. Serial No. 691,979. 5 Claims. (Cl. 242—86.)

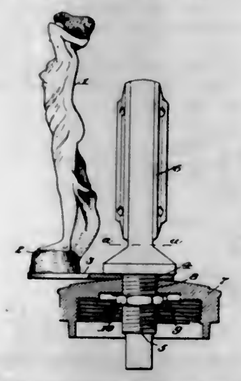


1. An automatic hose reel comprising a frame, a drum rotatably supported thereby, a hose reeled on said drum, a driving motor carried by the frame and operatively connected to said drum for driving the same in a direction tending to reel said hose on the drum, a normally open switch in the circuit of said motor, a movable hose guide through which the hose is led, said hose guide being adapted to be operated by said hose, said hose guide being operatively connected to said switch whereby successive movements of the hose guide in one direction caused by tension being placed on the hose will successively close and open said switch.

1,506,518. BUMPER. WAYNE E. DUNSTON, Kalamazoo, Mich., assignor to The C. G. Spring & Bumper Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 23, 1922. Serial No. 602,688. 8 Claims. (Cl. 292—55.)

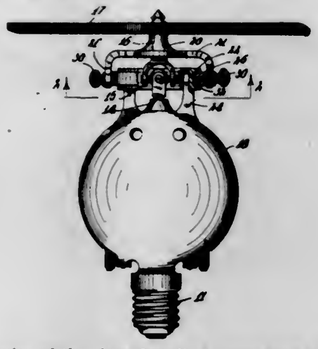
1. A clamping device for securing together the vertically spaced impact bars and the intermediate and laterally spaced auxiliary bar of a bumper, said device comprising a member having upper and lower seating portions, for the adjacent edges of the main bars, a pair of members each having a portion adapted to engage an impact bar and form a seat therefor with the cooperating seating portion of the first member, each of the last two members also having a seat for an edge of the intermediate auxiliary bar, and means intermediate of the ends of the last two members for adjusting the same toward each other.

1,506,519. SHOE-TREE. WILLIAM R. ENGLAND, Galion, Ohio. Filed Aug. 13, 1921. Serial No. 491,929. 2 Claims. (Cl. 12—128.6.)



1. In a shoe tree, the combination of a wooden toe and wooden heel form; a flat elastic steel band having its end portions rigidly embedded in said forms respectively, said end portions being each provided with a hole; and a nail driven into each of said forms and passing through said holes respectively.

1,506,520. CLAMPING MEANS. ALFRED L. EUSTICE, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 10, 1922. Serial No. 559,763. 10 Claims. (Cl. 24—19.)

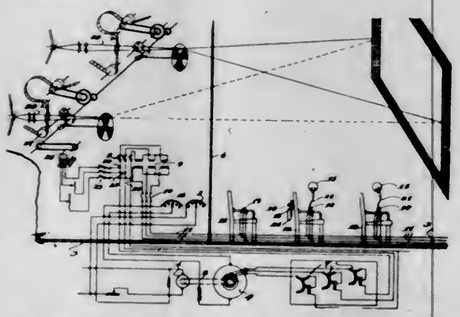


2. A clamping member comprising an elongated band having an upturned end portion and a hole adjacent to said end portion, said band also having a reduced end portion at the other end thereof, said reduced end portion being adapted to extend through said hole to form an enclosure, said band being provided with outwardly extending catch members, bolt means cooperating with said upturned end portion and a nut engaging one of said catch members to draw said clamping member to clamping position.

1,506,521. MOUNTING FOR AUTOMOBILE ORNAMENTS. IRVING FLORMAN, New York, N. Y. Original application filed Mar. 12, 1923. Serial No. 624,675. Divided and this application filed Feb. 9, 1924. Serial No. 691,856. 5 Claims. (Cl. 248—20.)

1. A mounting for an automobile ornament comprising a shock absorber made of a plate of resilient material, means whereby the ornament may be rigidly secured to said shock absorber, and means whereby said shock absorber may be secured between the radiator cap and a temperature indicating device of an automobile.

1,506,522. PORTABLE ELECTRIC FAN. HENRY GANSEL, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 28, 1923. Serial No. 621,757. 4 Claims. (Cl. 230—1.)



1. A device of the class described comprising an electric motor having rigid therewith a plug adapted for connection to a light socket, a fan driven by the rotor of the said motor, and a universal joint connection between the fan shaft and the rotor shaft, and a support for the fan shaft adapted to hold the latter at varying angles with respect to the rotor shaft, said support comprising a bracket in which the fan shaft is journaled, a ring rotatable on the motor, a pair of diametrically opposed arms projecting rigidly from said bracket and pivotally connected at their ends with said ring, and means for rigidly attaching said arms to said ring.

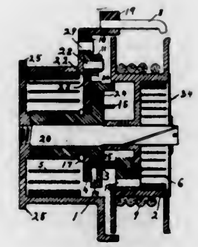
1,506,523. PUTTER-CLUB HANDLE. ALEXANDER HUNTLY GORDON, Fontainebleau, France. Filed Sept. 27, 1921. Serial No. 503,605. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—4.)

1. An improved putter consisting of a putter head and a handle, said handle comprising a shaft having its upper portion terminating in an enlarged substantially rectangular grip portion, having the edges thereof slightly rounded, one of the flat faces of said rectangular grip portion being located in a plane perpendicular to the plane of the striking face of the putter head and being provided with a longitudinally extending open groove in which the thumbs of the player may be longitudinally inserted to steady the club and prevent shifting or deviation thereof while the player is stroking the ball.

1,506,524. STEREOSCOPIC MOTION-PICTURE DEVICE. LAURENS HAMMOND, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Teleview Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 29, 1922. Serial No. 564,406. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—16.6.)

1. In connection with a process of exhibiting motion pictures with stereoscopic effect wherein each spectator is provided with an electrically operated viewing instrument, in combination, projection apparatus adapted to project each picture in the movement series alternately and more than once, individual viewing instruments for each spectator through which such spectator may view the projected pictures with resulting stereoscopic effect, and an alternating current generator the current of which operates said apparatus and instruments in timed relationship.

1,506,525. BED. ANDRÁS HEGEDÜS, Selby, S. Dak. Filed May 21, 1923. Serial No. 640,319. 3 Claims. (Cl. 5—62.)



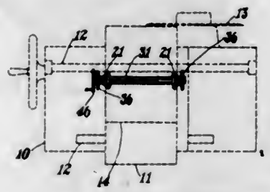
1. In combination, a main bed frame, an auxiliary frame, pivoted at one end to said main frame, and means for adjusting the opposite end of said auxiliary frame vertically, said means comprising gear sectors fixed to the main frame, a transverse shaft carried by the auxiliary frame, and gears on said transverse shaft engaging said fixed gear sectors, and ratchet and pawl means for locking said shaft, said ratchet and pawl means comprising a pawl mounted upon said auxiliary frame, and a ratchet barrel slidable along said shaft and adapted to effect operative engagement and disengagement with said pawl by sliding movement along said shaft.

1,506,526. MANIKIN TOY. IWAN HORNASTAJ, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Nov. 2, 1922. Serial No. 598,492. 1 Claim. (Cl. 46—45.)

A mechanical toy comprising a wagon, a movable manikin thereon, a tension spring connected at one end to said wagon and at its other end to the manikin and adapted to move the manikin in one direction, a running wheel, an axle on which said wheel is freely mounted, a disk also freely mounted on said axle adjacent said wheel, a bar connected at one end to said disk eccentrically thereof and at its opposite end to said manikin whereby during rotation of said disk said manikin is moved in an opposite direction to that in which it is moved by the said spring, a pin projecting from said disk, and a pair of arcuately spaced pins on said wheel between which the first mentioned pin projects.

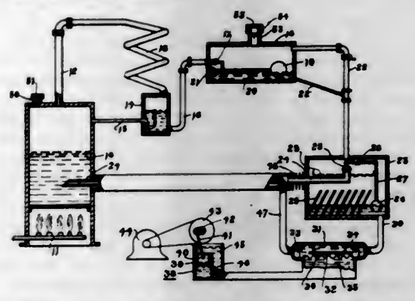
1,506,527. TROLLEY RETRIEVER. ARTHUR J. HOULE, Holyoke, Mass. Filed Jan. 22, 1924. Serial No. 687,833. 16 Claims. (Cl. 191—93.)

1. A rotary retriever member adapted to be limited in its rotation in both directions being provided with a concentrical guide with an engaging tooth therein to normally hold the free end of a dog toward the center of revolution when normally held with said tooth in an upwardly position and permit a dog to drop into engagement with said tooth when rotated to a predetermined different position.



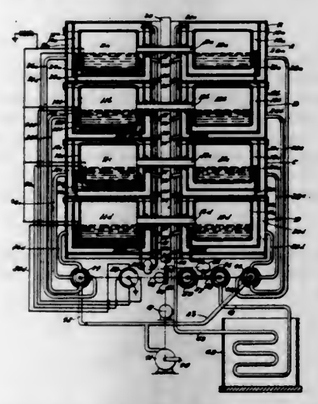
1,506,528. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR TREATING FOODS. FREDERICK A. HOYER, Reedley, Calif. Filed Nov. 25, 1922. Serial No. 603,293. 15 Claims. (Cl. 99—5.)

1. The provess of treating foods such as fruit and the like, which consists in placing segregated portions of the food and its surrounding liquid directly upon a heated surface, and moving these portions over the heated surface.



4. A container, means for heating a surface of the container, a compartment having an apertured bottom for segregating material to be treated, and means for sliding the compartment on the surface of the heated container.

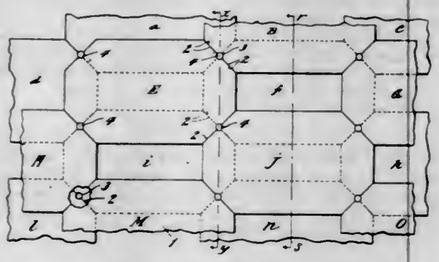
1,506,529. ATTACHMENT FOR MEAT-SLICING MACHINES. JAN JAROSZ, Lowell, Mass. Filed May 6, 1924. Serial No. 711,326. 5 Claims. (Cl. 146—27.)



1. In a meat slicing machine, a meat gripping attachment comprising a frame, a fixed jaw element thereon, a screwshaft mounted in said frame, and a nut threaded on said shaft and having a projecting jaw thereon which cooperates with the said fixed jaw, a second fixed jaw element on said frame, a clamping bar mounted on said frame to move at right angles to the said movable jaw, and toward and away from said second fixed jaw, and releasable means forming an operative connection between said clamping bar and the said screw-shaft.

1,506,530. REFRIGERATOR. ALEXANDER T. KASLEY, Essington, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 4, 1921. Serial No. 442,497. 6 Claims. (Cl. 62—119.)

2. The process of refrigeration which comprises applying heat to a strong caustic solution in a container, whereby water vapor is driven off, condensing the water vapor, returning to the container any excess of condensate, expanding the condensed vapor by spraying into a region of low absolute pressure, withdrawing a portion of the strong caustic solution into a separate vessel, cooling the solution withdrawn during its withdrawal, absorbing the expanded vapor in the cooled caustic solution, returning the weakened solution to the original container and heating the weakened solution during its return passage, the cooling of the strong solution and the heating of the weakening solution being effected by a counter flow heat exchange between the fluids.



1,506,531. REFRIGERATION APPARATUS. ALEXANDER T. KASLEY, Essington, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 12, 1921. Serial No. 521,871. 3 Claims. (Cl. 62—5.)

1. In combination in a refrigerating apparatus, a plurality of hollow dumb-bells, each hollow dumb-bell having a still-absorber chamber and an evaporator-absorber chamber adapted to contain a refrigerant and an absorbent and connected by a conduit above the normal level of the contents of said chambers, a double-walled receptacle in which each still-absorber chamber is inclosed and which forms an inner compartment and an outer compartment, means connecting the several inner compartments for the circulation of a heat-conveying medium successively therethrough in a closed circulating system, a heating means in each inner compartment, means for filling and emptying the outer compartments with a cooling medium, means for successively energizing the heating means in the several inner compartments, means for controlling the flow of the heat-conveying medium in such manner that the same portion of the said medium is contained within any inner compartment during a heating period therein, thereby producing in the heat-conveying medium a zone of highly heated medium and zone of relatively cool medium, means for passing a cooling medium through each outer compartment during the period in which the relatively cool heat-conveying medium is being circulated through the corresponding inner compartment, thereby increasing the temperature difference between the hot and cool zones of the heat-conveying medium means for continuously circulating a refrigerating agent in successive heat-exchanging relations to the evaporator-absorbers, means for controlling the flow of refrigerating fluid in such manner that the same portion of the fluid is brought into heat-exchanging relation contact with each evaporator-absorber during periods corresponding to the periods in which the zones of high heated and relatively cool heat-conveying mediums traverse the inner compartments in which an associated still-absorber is located, whereby a certain portion of the refrigerating fluid is successively reduced in temperature.

1,506,532. SHEET CONSTRUCTION AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. JOHANNES KJEKSTAD, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 29, 1921. Serial No. 518,783. 5 Claims. (Cl. 78—54.)

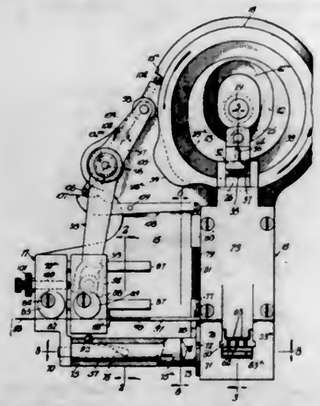
1,506,533. SAFETY RAZOR. CHARLES KLECKA, Astoria, N. Y. Filed June 20, 1921. Serial No. 478,858. 3 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)



1. In a safety razor, a bed plate having its opposite portions extending in downwardly diverging relation, a cutting blade bendable transverse on the median line thereof and adapted to be positioned on the under side of said bed plate, a guard plate adapted to be positioned beneath said cutting blade, means carried by said bed plate and adapted to engage said cutting blade and said guard plate at the opposite ends thereof to retain the same in fixed superposed relation, and a handle detachably connecting said bed plate for retaining the same, said cutting blade and said guard plate in operative relation.

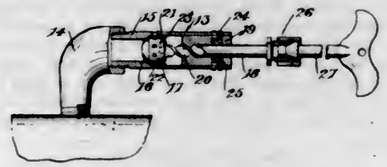
1,506,534. GLASS SCRAPER. JOSEPH S. KNIGHT, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Jan. 31, 1923. Serial No. 616,134. 1 Claim. (Cl. 195—97.)

A scraper comprising a spring barrel split lengthwise at one side and having spaced apart longitudinal openings in its opposite side, a pair of jaw members having outer end portions adapted to fit between the edges of said spring barrel and normally urged together thereby into parallelism, one of said end portions having a recess therein intersecting the split and the other one of said end portions having a depression therein to provide a projection at one side adapted to enter said recess of the first end portion and a cavity at its other side, said barrel having a locking lug at one edge of the split adapted to enter said cavity and lock the jaw members to the barrel, said jaw members having diverging handles on their inner ends extending through said longitudinal openings in the barrel and being offset outwardly from each other within said barrel to maintain said outer end portions substantially in parallelism at all adjustments, and a blade removably fitting between said outer end portions of the jaw members and having a recess therein for receiving said projection to lock the blade between the jaws.

1,506,535. AUTOMATIC MACHINE FOR MAKING AND APPLYING METALLIC BINDING CLIPS TO WEBBING. FRANK J. KOTZICH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 20, 1922. Serial No. 555,792. 20 Claims. (Cl. 153—1.)

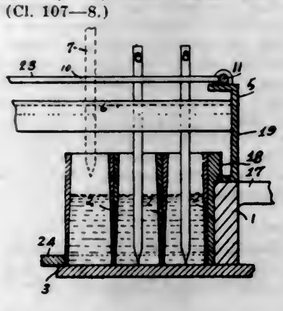
1. In a machine of the kind described, an intermittently rotative anvil member, means providing a V-shaped forming pocket in said anvil member extending parallel to its rotative axis, said means consisting of a fixed wing part and of a folding wing part, blank cutting dies and a forming die associated with said anvil in one position of said forming-pocket, a punching member associated with said anvil at another position of said forming-pocket, spaced from the first position, said punching member being adapted to operatively engage the folding wing of said forming pocket, means for intermittently feeding a continuous blank forming strip to said blank cutting dies and for rotating said anvil member, and means for actuating said cutting and forming dies and said punching member in proper timed relation.

1,506,536. ATTACHMENT FOR SHOE-SOLE-STITCHING MACHINES. ALESSANDRO LALLI, Berwyn, Pa. Filed Feb. 19, 1923. Serial No. 619,856. 5 Claims. (Cl. 112—40.)



1. In a shoe sole stitching machine, an awl and a needle, a wall element extending from front toward the rear of the machine, an arm projecting from said wall element into the patch of said awl and needle, and a guard plate secured both to said wall element and to said arm, the means for securing the said guard plate to said arm comprising a U-atrap straddling the arm and secured at its ends to the said guard plate.

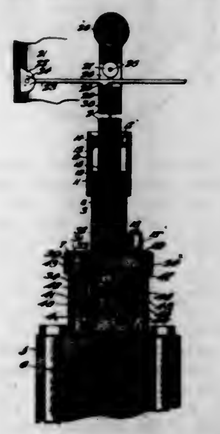
1,506,537. PROCESS OF PURIFYING GRAPHITE. MAX LANGHEINRICH, Munich, Germany, assignor to Graphitwerk Kropfmühl A. G., Munich, Bavaria, Germany. Filed Aug. 24, 1921. Serial No. 494,871. 1 Claim. (Cl. 204—65.)



A process of purifying graphite by electric-current-heating in which the graphite is mixed with coal and heated to temperatures of more than 2200 degrees Celsius, the gangue connected with the graphite being at the same time subjected to sublimation, individually separating the sublimating-compounds at different temperatures, and the further treating each of the said substances separately.

1,506,538. AUXILIARY AIR VALVE. ALBERT E. LEGGETT, Santa Rosa, Calif. Filed June 8, 1921. Serial No. 475, 904. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—43.)

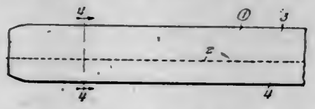
In a device of the character described comprising a tubular casing having lengths of different internal diameters whereby a valve seat will be formed at the juncture thereof, a valve plunger normally positioned upon said valve seat; a plurality of perforations through the side wall of the casing adjacent said plunger and opposite the eduction end of the casing; a nut in the outer end of the casing; a quick acting valve stem extending through said nut; means for rotating the same; and friction members carried by the nut to engage the circumference of the stem; and screws simultaneously holding the nut in position relative to the casing and exerting a desired pressure upon the friction members.



1,506,539. CANDY-MAKING MACHINE. LESTER MCCOY, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and GORDON WITZKE, Denver, Colo. Filed July 22, 1922. Serial No. 576,806. 4 Claims. (Cl. 107—8.)

1. A candy making machine comprising a batch frame, said frame being open top and bottom; a mold frame carrying a plurality of molds adapted to set into said batch frame and a stick carrying frame arranged to be placed upon said batch frame and register a stick over the center of each of the molds in said mold frame, said stick carrying frame having means for holding said sticks suspended over said molds, said means being arranged to simultaneously release all of said sticks in said stick carrying frame.

2. A candy making machine comprising a batch frame, said frame being open top and bottom; a mold frame carrying a plurality of molds adapted to set into said batch frame and a stick carrying frame arranged to be placed upon said batch frame and register a stick over the center of each of the molds in said mold frame, said stick carrying frame having means for holding said sticks suspended over said molds, said means comprising end members slidably mounted on said stick carrying frame, cross members secured to said end members, each cross member being arranged to engage the side of a row of sticks; a spring acting on said members to hold said cross members in contact with said sticks, and a handle on each of said end members for manually drawing said cross members away from said sticks.



1,506,540. COMPENSATING CONNECTING ROD FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. TAYLOR MATSON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 27, 1923. Serial No. 654,084. 10 Claims. (Cl. 123—78.)

5. In a device of the character stated, an engine piston, a cylinder therefor, a crank shaft, and a compensating extensible connecting rod, interposed between said piston and crank shaft, said rod being composed of telescoping tubular upper and lower members, said upper member telescoping within said lower member and serving as a hollow piston rod, a compensating piston attached to said piston rod, a cylinder for said compensating piston carried by said lower member and secured to said crank shaft, a pair of centrally located valves carried by said compensating piston, the upper of said valves seating upwardly and the lower of said valves seating downwardly, a valve stem for said upper valve, cam actuated devices controlled by the piston for unseating said upper valve, means for varying the spring tension on the lower valve according to the compression desired, and a third spring pressed upwardly seating valve carried by said compensating piston.

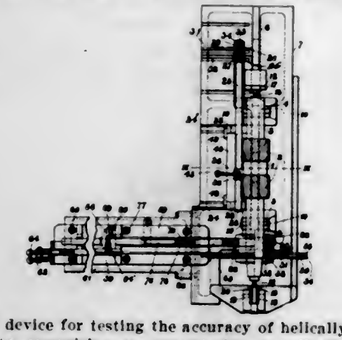
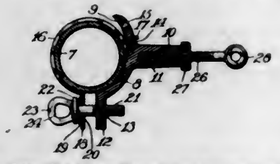
1,506,541. MANUFACTURE OF SAUSAGE CASINGS. SOLOMON MAY, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 29, 1923. Serial No. 671,439. 5 Claims. (Cl. 17—45.)



1. The method of providing casings of predetermined cross-sectional dimensions consisting of providing a casing of larger cross-sectional dimension, stitching same longitudinally and severing the elongated receptacles provided by said stitching.

1,506,542. GLOBE BRACKET FOR INCANDESCENT LAMPS. HARRY J. MAYNARD, Yonkers, N. Y. Filed Feb. 21, 1922. Serial No. 538,257. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—125.)

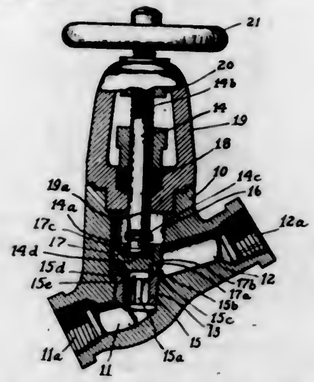


1. A light diffusing device for electric lamps, said device comprising a globe; a reflector: means comprising a band around the upper end of the neck of the lamp and a plurality of arms secured at their upper ends to said band and extending in the line of the neck for substantially the length of the neck, the arms having means engaging the sides of the lamp at the lower end of the neck for supporting said means on the lamp and maintaining said band and the upper portions of the arms spaced away from the sides of the neck, the arms below said engaging means being bent outwardly and provided at their free ends with means for engaging the upper edge of the globe and the lower edge of the reflector for supporting the globe and reflector around the lower portion and neck of the lamp in positions spaced away from the sides of the lamp; and resilient means for retaining in engagement with the sides of the lamp, said means engaging the sides of the lamp at the lower end of the neck.

1,506,543. TESTING DEVICE FOR MEASURING THE TEETH OF HELICALLY-TOOTHED ELEMENTS. HOLBERRY MENSFORTH, Bowdon, and FREDERICK ARTHUR COWELL, Sale, England, assignors, by mesne assignments, to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 20, 1921. Srial No. 471,291. 20 Claims. (Cl. 33—199.)

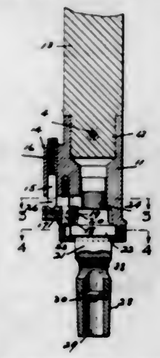
2. A device for testing the accuracy of helically-toothed elements comprising a support for a helically-toothed element, a member movable parallel to the element axis, a tooth contactor or feeler movable with respect to said member, an indicator connected to the contactor or feeler, means for setting the member in a predetermined position, and means for adjusting the toothed element angularly until the indicator gives a desired reading.

1,506,544. GUIDE FOR TANK-FLUSHING VALVES. CLAUD J. MICK, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed May 20, 1921. Serial No. 471,205. 1 Claim. (Cl. 4—57.)



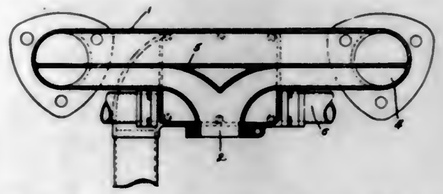
The herein-described appliance consisting of a curved segmental guide base member having a concavely curved seat portion and also a relatively shorter lock portion extending from one end of the seat portion, the seat portion extending to the opposite end of the base member and being nonelastic to insure a solid bearing against a stand-pipe, the convex side of the base member having a guide stem member fixed thereon adjacent to the middle of the length thereof, said lock portion having separate apertures therein, a screw-threaded ear fixed to said base member at said opposite end of said seat portion, a curved flexible clamp section to embrace a portion of the stand-pipe and having such length as to extend between the stand-pipe and said lock portion to variably extend said seat portion lengthwise, a lug fixed on one end of said clamp section to enter one of said apertures, an ear fixed to said clamp section opposite to the ear on said base member, and a clamp bolt connected to said ears.

1,506,545. PERYLENTETRACARBOXYLIC ACIDS AND THEIR DERIVATIVES AND PROCESS OF MAKING THEM. MAXIMILIAN P. SCHMIDT and WILHELM NEUGEBAUER, Biebrich-on-the-Rhine, Germany, assignors to the Firm Ralle & Co., Aktiengesellschaft, Biebrich, Rhine, Germany. Filed Sept. 1, 1922. Serial No. 585,819. 4 Claims. (Cl. 260—108.)



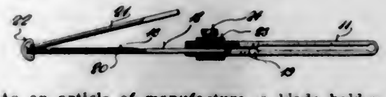
4. As new products the monoimids of the perylentetracarboxylic acids of the following formula being red to brown powders soluble with an intense red color in diluted alkaline solutions from which they are precipitated by means of salts, soluble in concentrated sulfuric acid with a bluish-red color and strong scarlet-red fluorescence, in which solution they are transformed into the anhydride of the perylentetracarboxylic acids when heated at a higher temperature.

1,506,546. VALVE. OLAF E. OLESON, East Chicago, Ind. Filed July 20, 1922. Serial No. 576,176. 8 Claims. (Cl. 251—28.)



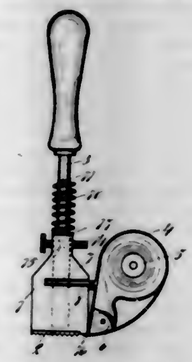
1. In a valve, the combination of a casing having inlet and outlet passageways, two valve members co-operating to establish and interrupt communication between said passageways as desired, and means for moving one of said members towards and away from the other of said members, a first one of said members being tubular and rigidly mounted in said casing in communication with one of said passageways and having an annular inclined valve seat, an annular flange and a groove between said seat and flange, said casing having a bore co-axial with the axis of said first member, and said second member being cylindrical and fitting said bore, the second one of said members having an annular inclined valve seat and a cylindrical projection for co-operation with the flange on said first member to interrupt the major part of the flow before engagement of the valve seats with each other and leaving sufficient flow across said valve seats to keep them clean during closing, there being a slight clearance between said valve members and said valve seats converging towards the inlet passageway whereby the pressure in the inlet passageway is communicated to said clearance and said groove when said valve seats are closed and tends to expand one of said seats against the other to hold them tightly in engagement with each other.

1,506,547. TOOL HANDLE. JOHN PEYER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Jan. 19, 1923. Serial No. 613,624. 6 Claims. (Cl. 145—76.)



1. A tool handle comprising a grip portion, a chuck head rotatively connected thereto, a member pivotally and eccentrically mounted on said grip portion to engage said chuck head for ratchet action with the grip portion, and slidably mounted on said grip portion to engage said chuck head for positive direct action with said grip portion.

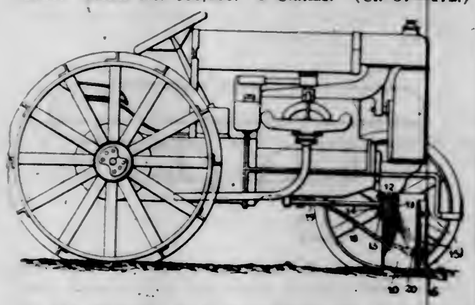
1,506,548. APPARATUS FOR SUPPLYING FUEL TO INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. SAMUEL J. PINGREE, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Pingree Patents, Incorporated, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Nov. 25, 1921. Serial No. 517,649. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—52.)



1. An intake manifold comprising a single piece tubular member having a partition wall arranged therein for dividing the interior of said member into two compartments, said compartments having inter-communicating exit ports adapted to communicate with the combustion chambers of an engine and said member having independent inlet ports for said compartments and adapted to be connected to corresponding carbureters.

1,506,549. RAZOR-BLADE HOLDER. CONSTAN E. RANG, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 17, 1922. Serial No. 537,211. 3 Claims. (Cl. 30—25.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a blade holder comprising a handle member, a blade securing member carried thereby and slidable to be housed therein, the blade securing member being adapted to have a cutting blade secured therein when said member is extended from the handle member, and clamping means carried by the handle member for frictionally securing the blade in the last mentioned member, and for holding said member in extended position in said handle member.



1,506,550. STAM-APPLYING DEVICE. NILS PAUL REHNQVIST, Norrkoping, Sweden. Filed May 28, 1923. Serial No. 641,855. 3 Claims. (Cl. 216—33.)

1. A stamp affixing device consisting of a punch for affixing a stamp in position, a piston slidingly mounted in said punch, a plate within a groove in said punch engaging said piston, a stamp holder pivotally secured to said plate, means for limiting the vertical movement of said holder on its pivot and means connected with said piston and holder for imparting an upward pivotal and torsional movement to said stamp holder.

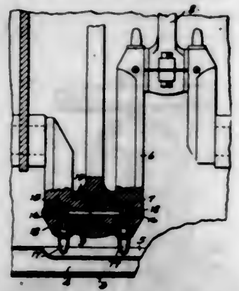
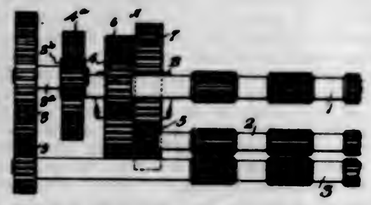
1,506,551. LEVELER ATTACHMENT TO VEHICLES. DANIEL E. ANDERSON, Yuba City, Calif. Filed July 9, 1923. Serial No. 650,408. 3 Claims. (Cl. 37—172.)

1. An attachment for a vehicle comprising a V-shaped member having oppositely directed upper portions at the rear and directed at right angles to the longitudinal axis of the member, and means adapted to connect said lateral portions to the axle of the vehicle.



1,506,552. RESISTANCE METER. DONALD J. ANGUS, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed May 14, 1921. Serial No. 469,734. 20 Claims. (Cl. 171—95.)

5. An alternating-current resistance meter, comprising two pairs of fingers, main exciting means for producing alternating fluxes in such fingers, a secondary coil on one finger of each pair, one of said secondary coils being arranged to have connected in circuit therewith the resistance of which the value is to be measured, and a movable member having eddy-current-carrying means cooperating with both pairs of fingers so that the reactions produced by the two pairs of fingers tend to move said movable member in opposite directions respectively, said eddy-current-carrying means associated with at least one of said pairs of fingers being arranged to decrease the conductance of the eddy-current path when the effect of that pair of fingers predominates and vice versa.



1,506,553. OILING SYSTEM FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. JAMES GRANVILLE BALDWIN, Asheville, N. C. Filed Feb. 8, 1923. Serial No. 617,852. 1 Claim. (Cl. 184—13.)

In an oiling system for internal combustion engines, a shaft including a crank pin having a longitudinal passage therethrough and radially disposed ports extending from said passage intermediate the ends thereof, dippers mounted in said crank pin laterally of said longitudinal passage and having openings communicating with said passage, and means mounted in the ends of said passage for closing said ends and engaging said dippers to retain the same in operative position to permit of lubricant being fed through the dippers and passage into said ports.

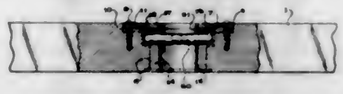
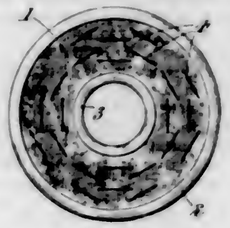
1,506,554. DRAW FRAME. ERNESTO BASSO, Vigevano, Italy, assignor to The Società Italiana Brevetti per Filatura, Bertuletti & C., Milan, Italy, a Company of Italy. Filed Oct. 21, 1921. Serial No. 509,412. 1 Claim. (Cl. 19—130.)



In a drawing frame, the combination with the roller-carrying shafts, of a pinion on the third shaft, a driven gear wheel meshing with the pinion, a pinion carried by the gear wheel, two gears of unequal size on the first shaft and with the larger one of which the pinion carried by the driven gear wheel meshes, a counter shaft, two gears of unequal size on the counter shaft and with the smaller one of which the smaller gear wheel of the first shaft meshes, and a pinion on the second shaft and with which the larger gear wheel of the counter shaft meshes.

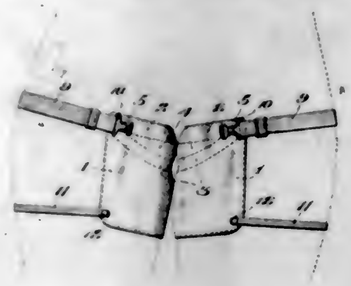
1,506,555. REVOLVING SCOOP OR DITCH CLEANER. GEORGE BEDWELL and PERCY WEHR, Sacramento, Calif. Filed June 14, 1923. Serial No. 645,362. 1 Claim. (Cl. 37—139.)



In a device of the kind described, a draft beam having its rear portion bifurcated and turned down to form a pair of laterally spaced legs, a shaft connecting the lower ends of said legs, a dual scoop rotatably mounted on said shaft, and consisting of a cylindrical member having a partition intermediate its ends, opposite side portions of said member being removed on opposite sides of said partition, and means to hold said scoop releasably in selected positions.

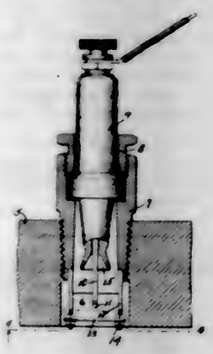
1,506,556. ADJUSTABLE SPIRIT LEVEL. CHARLEY D. BENEDICT, Marion, Ind. Filed Sept. 8, 1922. Serial No. 586,865. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—213.)

A combined level and plumb comprising an elongated parallelepiped shaped body provided at a point midway between its ends with a circular opening which extends from face to face of the body, an annular plate inserted in said opening and having its outer surface flush with one side face of the body, the said plate being provided upon its exposed surface with radially disposed degree lines and also being provided at opposite peripheral portions with arcuate slots, securing devices passing through the said slots and entering the body, the said securing devices being located at the opposite sides of the opening in the body and positioned in alinement with the median longitudinal dimension of the body and in alinement with the diameter of the opening in the body, the said securing devices engaging the body whereby the plate may be adjusted circumferentially in the opening to the extent of the length of the slots, an open-ended cylinder turnably mounted in the opening of the body, means for restraining the cylinder against axial movement within the opening and including a flange which is held between the plate and body, and a bubble tube disposed transversely across the interior of the cylinder and observable from either of the ends thereof.



1,506,557. ANTIVIBRATION SUSPENSION DEVICE. WILLIAM BIRD, St. Albans, England. Filed Apr. 19, 1922. Serial No. 555,649. 10 Claims. (Cl. 248—30.)

1. An anti-vibration suspension comprising a supporting member, a supported member, and a resilient member of woven material extending between the supporting and the supported members, said resilient member having cuts therethrough transverse to the direction of those strands of the woven material extending between the supporting and the supported members, the respective ends of said cuts overlapping so that no complete strand connects the supported and supporting members.



1,506,558. CHAFING SHIELD. DESS BOWERS BOLLS, Washington, D. C. Filed Dec. 13, 1922. Serial No. 606,662. Renewed June 23, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 128—149.)

1. In a chafing shield, a flexible body shaped to engage over the inner side of the legs of the wearer, a reinforcing tape secured to the upper side of the body, a second tape secured along a curved line to the body and below the first named tape, and having its ends secured to the end parts of the first named tape, elastic secured to one of the ends of the tapes and engageable about the limb, means to detachably connect the opposite end of the elastic to the opposite ends of the tapes, a second elastic fastening secured at one end to one end of the body below the upper side of the latter, and means to detachably secure the opposite end of the second elastic to the opposite end of the body.

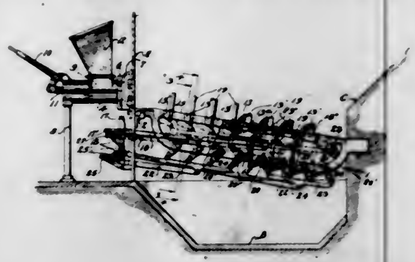
1,506,559. SPARK PLUG. AIMÉ BOURCHEIX, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Sidney E. Hann, Sheepshead Bay, N. Y. Filed Sept. 30, 1921. Serial No. 504,385. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—169.)



In combination with a motor block having a spark plug opening, a spark plug adapted to be positioned within said opening, said spark plug comprising a shell and having electrodes of a length which when the spark plug is positioned in the spark plug opening of the motor block, will occupy a position within the confines of said spark plug opening, a pair of diametrically opposed legs dependent from the spark plug shell, a plate provided with diametrically opposed openings adapted to receive said legs, and a plurality of nuts carried by each of said legs and adapted to grip the plate therebetween, said nuts being adjustable on the legs whereby the plate may be adjusted with respect to the electrodes of the spark plug.

1,506,560. HAND-OPERATED STOKER MECHANISM FOR FURNACES. JOHN J. BRIDGEFORD, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Keystone Refractories Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Dec. 14, 1922. Serial No. 606,855. 7 Claims. (Cl. 110—37.)

1. In furnace stoker mechanism of the class described, an inclined grate comprising a plurality of rocking shaking bars arranged in series and projectible toward the lower end of the grate, means for operating the bars of said series at will, a plurality of plungers arranged at spaced intervals below the plane of the grate bars and mounted to penetrate vertically above said plane, and means for imparting substantially vertical movement to the plungers to cause the same to pass upwardly into the fuel bed.

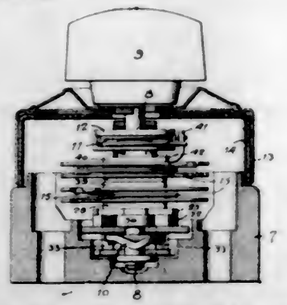
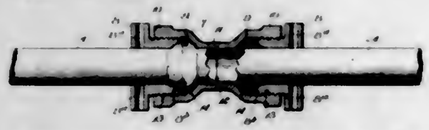
1,506,561. SEPARATOR FOR STORAGE BATTERIES. ELBERT G. BURTON, Columbia, Tenn. Filed Mar. 27, 1923. Serial No. 628,072. 1 Claim. (Cl. 204—29.)



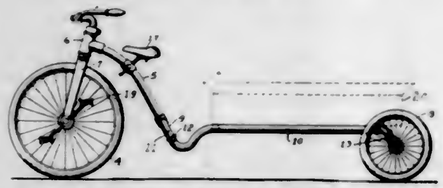
A storage battery having edge and intermediate separators in the form of narrow strips, said intermediate strips being substantially U-shaped and adapted to be positioned to straddle the plates and have their bight portions engage the upper edges of the plates, said intermediate separators having their ends terminating flush with the lower edges of the plates, said end strips folded intermediate their longitudinal edges and adapted to fit the vertical edge portions of the plates, the folded portions being connected at their upper edges to engage the top edges of the plates and support the separators and the lower end of said edge separators terminating flush with the lower ends of the plates.

1,506,562. SOUND-REPRODUCING DEVICE. LEROY R. BUTTON, Kittanning, Pa. Filed Dec. 20, 1919. Serial No. 346,373. 1 Claim. (Cl. 214—26.)



The combination with a phonograph case, a diaphragm carrier consisting of a comparatively large disc-like member having a small central opening, means for mounting the carrier on top of said case, a diaphragm mounted within the opening of the carrier, an arm, means for mounting one end of said arm on the top of said case directly below the center of the diaphragm to permit free lateral swinging movement of the arm, a second arm mounted on the first arm for vertical swinging movement of the free end of said second arm, an armed needle holder pivotally and adjustably mounted in the outer end of the arm, and a flexible member connecting an arm of the needle holder with the diaphragm.

1,506,563. ELECTRIC SWITCH. JOHANNES R. CARLSON, Hartford, Conn., assignor to The Arrow Electric Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Dec. 7, 1922. Serial No. 605,437. 11 Claims. (Cl. 200—63.)



1. In an electric switch, a switch blade carrier comprising a top web apertured to afford a spindle bearing and having integral arms offset therefrom to form a polygonal carrier body, certain of said arms having outwardly offset foot pieces, in combination with a bottom plate apertured to afford a spindle bearing and operatively connected to said offset foot pieces.

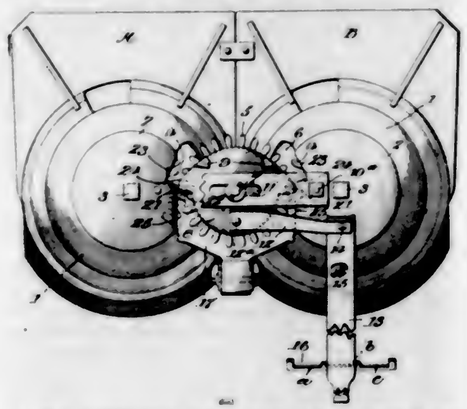
1,506,564. PIPE COUPLING. ALBINO CATTONI, Bradford, Pa. Filed May 19, 1923. Serial No. 640,184. 1 Claim. (Cl. 285—166.)

A pipe coupling comprising a body portion or casing having an opening therethrough the central portion of which corresponds in diameter with the external diameter of the sections of pipe to be coupled and the end portions of said opening being of larger diameter and threaded; the inner annular end wall of each enlarged portion of the opening having a plain concave surface; together with convex packing rings fitting in the enlarged portions of the opening in the body portion or casing and adapted to receive the ends of the pipe sections through them, said packing rings being of resilient material and fitting against the aforesaid concave end walls and flanged compression collars threaded into the ends of the body portion and having plain openings through the same for the pipe sections, said openings being flared outward convexly at their inner ends to cooperate with the aforesaid concave walls in compressing the packing rings to form a tight joint.

1,506,565. VELOCIPEDE. WILLIAM E. CLATWORTHY, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,170. 4 Claims. (Cl. 208—113.)

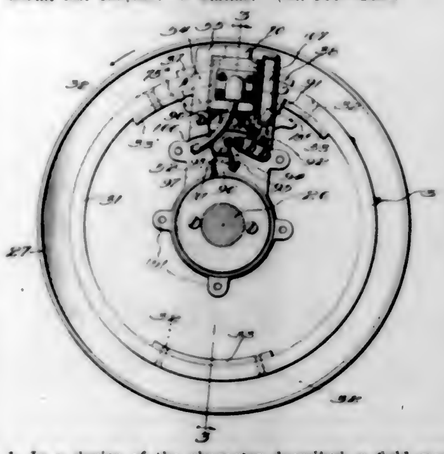
1. A velocipede frame having a front steering and propelling wheel and including a removable horizontal carrier section having detachable supporting wheels at its rear end, and means adapted to unite said wheels to said frame, when said horizontal carrier section is removed.

1,506,566. REMOVABLE LINING FOR CLOSETS. WILLIAM RICHARDSON COFFEE, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Sept. 18, 1922. Serial No. 588,898. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—1.11.)



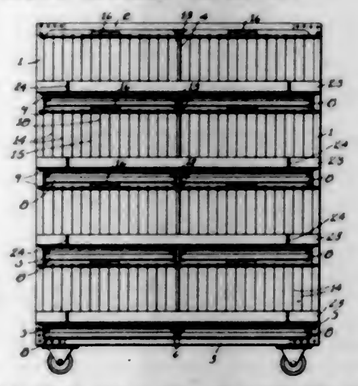
As a new article of manufacture, a removable lining for closets and the like, including a plurality of hingedly connected frames combined to form a unit insertable into a closet and engageable with the side and rear walls thereof, and a panel for each frame formed of insect repelling material.

1,506,567. BABY'S RATTLE. IRWIN E. COHN, New York, N. Y. Filed May 31, 1924. Serial No. 717,078. 6 Claims. (Cl. 46—46.)



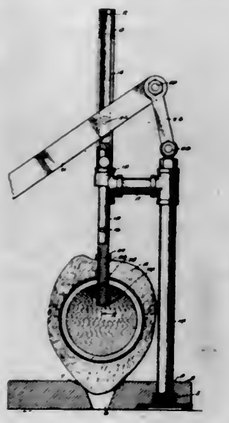
1. In combination, a rattle comprising a hollow body, a stem therefor, and a rattle element within the hollow body, and a collapsible sound-producing device within the hollow body, adapted to be collapsed by the stem, the said rattle element operating against the interior of the hollow body and against the said sound-producing device.

1,506,568. GEAR-POSITIONING MECHANISM. EUGENE M. COLE, Charlotte, N. C. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,614. 19 Claims. (Cl. 74—58.)



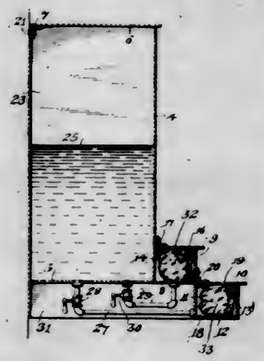
1. The combination with a fixed and a movable gear, of means for shifting the latter into and out of mesh with the former, and means in addition to said shifting means and independent of but shiftable with said movable gear for automatically arresting the travel of the movable gear at a certain definite point, while permitting it to be shifted beyond such point.

1,506,569. MAGNETO ELECTRIC GENERATOR. HENRY G. COX, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 9, 1921. Serial No. 499,465. 9 Claims. (Cl. 171—209.)



1. In a device of the character described, a field magnet, an armature coil, a core in the armature coil, one end of the armature core having a single-faced head and the other end having a double-faced head, said single-faced head lying opposite the double-faced head, and means for passing the poles of the field magnet between the heads of the armature core to bridge the poles of the field magnet through the armature core first in one direction and then in the reverse direction.

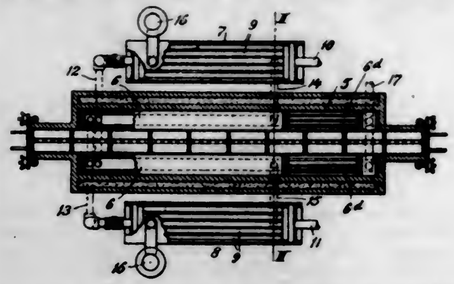
1,506,570. POULTRY COOP OR CRATE. GEORGE E. DEAN, Albion, Mich., assignor to Union Steel Products Company, Albion, Mich. Filed Jan. 15, 1924. Serial No. 686,264. 11 Claims. (Cl. 119—17.)



1. In a poultry coop or crate, the combination of angle iron corner uprights disposed with their angles facing outwardly, an intermediate upright, floor supporting ledges secured to the inwardly projecting legs of said corner uprights, wall panels comprising horizontal bars having laterally turned ends disposed through the outwardly projecting legs of said corner uprights and secured thereto, said bars having offsets opposite said intermediate upright, vertical slats secured to said horizontal bars, and eye bolts disposed through said intermediate upright and engaging said offsets in said horizontal bars.

1,506,571. APPARATUS FOR EXTRACTING MILK FROM COCONUTS. EMIL DEREMBERG, Pensacola, Fla. Filed Oct. 19, 1923. Serial No. 669,639. 5 Claims. (Cl. 146—7.)

1. An apparatus for extracting milk from coconuts comprising a coconut supporting base, tubular means for puncturing the coconut and operating means for said tubular puncturing means, said tubular puncturing means being detachable with respect to its operating means to provide a drain for the coconut.



1,506,572. LIQUID-SUPPLY DEVICE FOR TOILET PURPOSES. CHARLES DIONNE, Lowell, Mass. Filed Apr. 23, 1924. Serial No. 708,484. 3 Claims. (Cl. 4—1.)

1. A liquid supply device for toilet purposes comprising a liquid cleansing medium reservoir, a water reservoir, a water chamber arranged forwardly of said reservoirs, a liquid cleansing medium chamber arranged forwardly of said reservoirs, one of said chambers arranged above the other and forwardly with respect thereto, a pipe connection between said water reservoir and water chamber for supplying water to the latter, and a pipe connection between said cleansing medium reservoir and the cleansing medium chamber for supplying a cleansing medium thereto.

1,506,573. TUNNEL KILN. PHILIP DRESSLER, Zanesville, Ohio, assignor to American Dressler Tunnel Kilns, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 22, 1919. Serial No. 272,420. 3 Claims. (Cl. 25—142.)

1. In a tunnel kiln the combination of heating means therefor comprising internal combustion chambers, means for supplying fluid material to said chambers to maintain combustion therein and means comprising a plurality of outlets from said combustion chambers for regulably preheating said material by products of combustion withdrawn from said chambers.

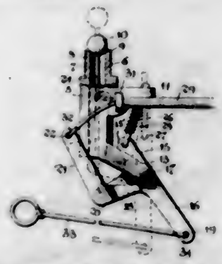
1,506,574. PROCESS FOR TREATING WHEAT. JACK H. DUNN, Lexington, Ky., assignor to The Dunn Wheat Company Inc., Lexington, Ky., a Corporation of Kentucky. Filed Sept. 11, 1922. Serial No. 587,578. 3 Claims. (Cl. 99—8.)

3. A process of treating matured grain which consists in successively cleaning, steaming, thoroughly drying and then polishing the grain, then placing the grain into a receptacle with the addition of a composition formed of water, sugar and salt and in the proportion of one ounce of grain to two and one-eighth ounces of water, one-twenty-fourth ounce sugar and one-seventy-second ounce of salt, then permanently sealing the container air and steam tight and allowing the contents of the permanently sealed container to set for a period of ten hours, then sterilizing the permanently sealed container and its contents while the permanently sealed container is stationary for two hours at about atmospheric pressure, then increasing the steam pressure from five to eight pounds for a period of one hour while the permanently sealed container is stationary, and then allowing the permanently sealed container and its contents to cool whereby the liquid will be absorbed and the grain swollen.

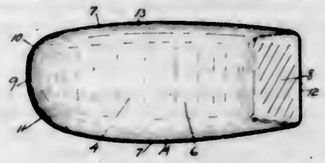
1,506,575. MANUFACTURE OF RAT POISON. LOUIS A. EBERHARDT, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 11, 1922. Serial No. 606,253. 2 Claims. (Cl. 167—6.)

1. A method of preparing rat poison, which consists in first immersing squill bulbs in paraffin oil, and then comminuting the bulbs and paraffin.



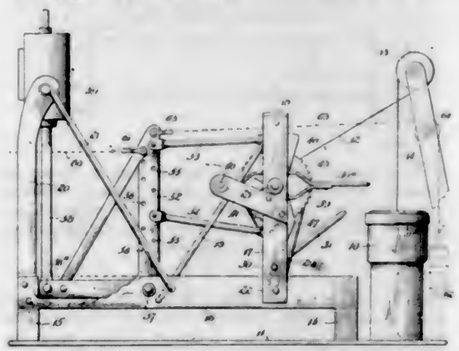
2. A rat poison containing squill bulbs and paraffin.

1,506,576. ELECTRICAL INDICATING MARKER. CLARENCE G. GARRIGUS, Bristol, Conn. Filed Nov. 6, 1922, Serial No. 599,281. Renewed July 12, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—2.)



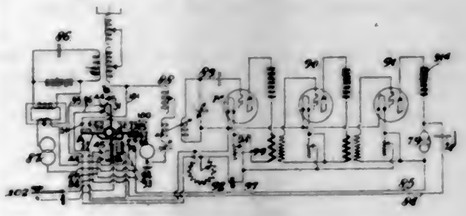
In an indicating marker for electrical apparatus, a metallic disc having a convex upper surface and a flat under surface, a rim depending from the edge of said under surface, a concentric rim at the center of said under surface and surrounding a recess extending upwardly into said disc, a pin under said disc, said pin having a head seated in said recess, the central rim having its sides bent inwardly and swaged over around the head of said pin to fasten the pin rigidly to the disk, said pin being adapted to be driven into the electrical apparatus adjacent the point to be marked.

1,506,577. DRAIN COCK. WILLIAM B. GEORGE, Tulia, Tex. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,675. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—139.)



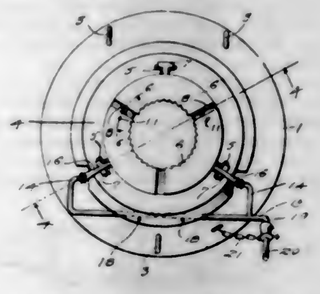
A drain cock comprising a barrel provided with a drainage passage, a valvular element seating on one end of said barrel for opening and closing said passage, a valve stem carrying said element and extending through and projecting from said passage, a three-arm lever pivotally supported from said barrel and having one of its arms pivotally connected with the projecting end of said stem, an operating means for said lever connected to one of the other arms of said lever, that arm of said lever pivotally connected with said stem provided with an extension, an operating means for said lever connected with said extension, and a controlling element connected to the remaining arm of said lever and slidably connected with said barrel and constituting means for maintaining the valvular element in open and closed position.

1,506,578. SHEET-METAL-WORKING TOOL. NILS E. GRANDAHL, Hartford, Conn. Filed July 16, 1920. Serial No. 396,820. 7 Claims. (Cl. 81—15.)



1. A sheet metal working tool comprising a body having curved sides and with an end curved in transverse directions, each of said transverse curves gradually merging into the curves of the sides, and also gradually increasing in radii from one point to another.

1,506,579. PULLING MACHINE. FRANK H. HALL, Bradford, Pa. Filed Apr. 13, 1923. Serial No. 631,894. 3 Claims. (Cl. 254—146.)

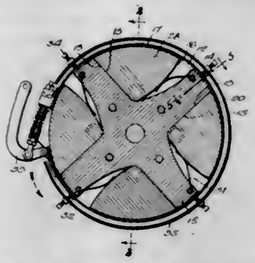


1. A pulling machine comprising a supporting frame, a main shaft mounted therein, a drum fixed to the shaft and around which drum the hoisting and lowering cable is wound, a sleeve loosely mounted on the shaft and carrying a clutch-member fixed thereto, a ratchet-wheel fixed to the sleeve to rotate therewith, yoke-members loosely mounted on the sleeve and projecting in opposite directions from each other, and spring-actuated pawls carried by the yoke members to engage the teeth of the ratchet-wheel; together with a clutch member slidably connected to the shaft to engage the aforesaid clutch-member on the sleeve for connecting said sleeve and shaft, and means for oscillating the yoke-arms.

1,506,580. QUICK-ACTING, AMPLIFYING BREAK KEY FOR WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY. HENRY EMMANUEL HALLBORG, Norfolk, Va., and HAROLD REDMORE MILLER, Washington, D. C. Filed Oct. 25, 1920. Serial No. 419,231. 12 Claims. (Cl. 250—13.)

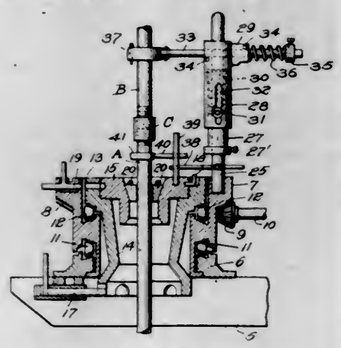
7. Radio telegraph apparatus comprising the combination of a vacuum tube detector with an associated circuit embracing telephones and a source of current, a condenser bridging the telephones, and a break key having a closed and open position, and a condenser shunting the telephones when the key is closed to prevent disturbance of the steady thermionic current, but when open, to cut out the condenser so that an incoming signal pulse may be imposed on said current and result in a response by the telephones.

1,506,581. DEEP-WELL-CASING CLAMP. ELTON P. HALLEY, Sanderson, Tex. Filed Nov. 3, 1923. Serial No. 672,605. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—263.)



1. A casing clamp comprising a base including a guide having its inner wall upwardly flared, casing gripping jaws disposed within said guide and having their outer sides inclined to conform to the flare of the inner wall of the guide, jaw operating means having positive connection with two of the jaws, and connecting means between an intermediate jaw and the adjacent positively operated jaw, the same comprising an arm pivoted at one end to one of the jaws and having its opposite end entering a recess of the adjacent jaw.

1,506,582. BRAKE. KARL P. HANGL, New York, N. Y. Filed June 16, 1923. Serial No. 645,856. 12 Claims. (Cl. 188—77.)



3. A brake for vehicle wheels, comprising a casing for mounting on the vehicle wheel, said casing having a plurality of pockets therein, a brake band encircling said casing, and members mounted in the casing pockets, said members being so constructed that they swing outward against the brake band when engaged by the latter.

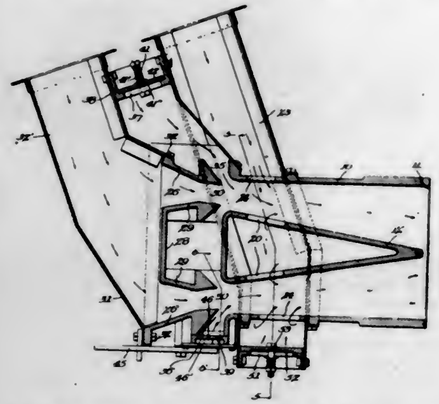
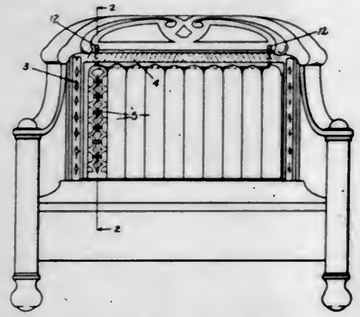
1,506,583. PIPE-COUPLING ATTACHMENT FOR ROTARY DRILLING MACHINES. GEORGE W. HOFFMAN, Houston, Tex. Filed Dec. 21, 1920. Serial No. 432,340. 10 Claims. (Cl. 255—23.)



1. A tong holding device for rotary drilling machines comprising a post adapted to be supported on the machine, a bushing adjustable on said post, a tool holding member slidable on said post, and a spring between the bushing and tool holding member for yieldably supporting the latter.

1,506,584. MEDICAL APPLIANCE. JOHN G. HOMAN, Steubenville, Ohio, assignor to Electrothermal Company, Steubenville, Ohio, a Firm composed of John G. Homan and William J. Kirk. Filed Dec. 17, 1919. Serial No. 345,508. 5 Claims. (Cl. 128—192.)

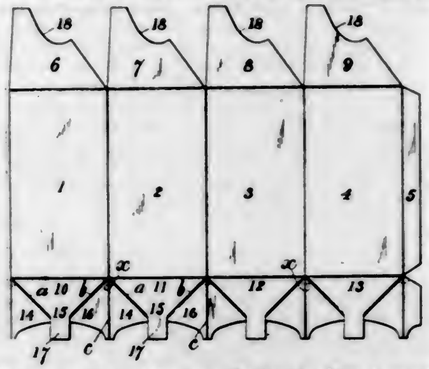


1. An inhaling device comprising an elongated hollow body having an outlet opening at one end thereof, a connecting plug at the other end thereof, a longitudinally extending supporting member on the plug projecting into the body out of contact with the walls thereof, and an electric heating means on said supporting member for heating air admitted to the interior of the body and before it passes through the outlet.

1,506,585. BURNER. HOWARD HOWIE, Rockwood, Tenn., assignor to Roane Iron Company, Rockwood, Tenn., a Corporation of Tennessee. Filed Dec. 10, 1923. Serial No. 679,840. 9 Claims. (Cl. 158—118.)

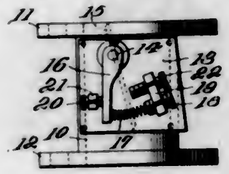
1. A gas burner comprising a casing, an obstruction extending transversely of said casing and having two surfaces which diverge from an open combustion end of the casing inwardly toward opposite walls forming narrowing passages between the obstruction and the walls of the casing, the casing having a series of air inlet openings adjacent the narrow portion of said passages, means for directing a forced air draft through said openings and into the passages, the casing being provided with additional air inlet openings for induced air adjacent the widest portion of said obstruction, means for regulating the size of said last mentioned openings, and fuel jets positioned rearwardly of said obstruction adapted to direct fuel through said passages.

1,506,586. GAS HEATER. HUBERT R. HUMPHREY, Kalamazoo, Mich., assignor to General Gas Light Company, Kalamazoo, Mich. Filed Feb. 7, 1924. Serial No. 691,179. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—92.)



4. In a gas stove, the combination with a casing, of a fireback, radiants disposed in front of said fireback, and a retaining rod engageable with said radiants for removably supporting them position and having lateral arms arranged through said fireback.

1,506,587. BOX OR CARTON FOR HOLDING ELECTRIC LAMPS AND OTHER FRAGILE ARTICLES. ROWLAND HUNT, London, England. Filed Sept. 28, 1923. Serial No. 665,421. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—37.)



A box to hold an electric lamp comprising four integral sides each of which has an extension at one end said extensions being integral with the sides and unseparated from each other, each extension being divided into three parts by creases in the extensions and each extension bent inwardly on the creases into the box to form a support for one end of a lamp, said sides each having at its opposite end means for holding the other end of the lamp.

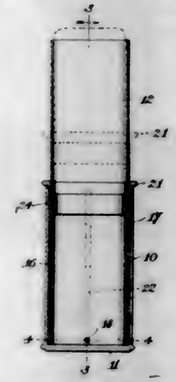
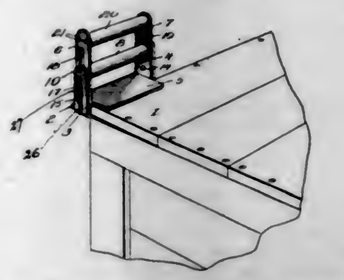
1,506,588. GOVERNOR. JAMES HURST, San Francisco, Calif. Filed July 8, 1920. Serial No. 394,852. 7 Claims. (Cl. 137—152.)



1. A governor of the character described comprising a casing, a shaft extending transversely through the casing, a butterfly valve connected to said shaft within the casing and having its wings in alignment, an external arm secured to said shaft, a spring having one end engaging and pressing against said arm, an external lug carried by the casing and having an abutment for the other end of said spring, a stop positioned exteriorly of the casing to limit movement of said arm under the influence of the spring, whereby the valve when open is held at an angle to the bore of the casing, and a second stop adjustably mounted in said external lug and positioned to limit movement of the arm in the other direction, whereby closing movement of the valve may be interrupted at any desired point.

1,506,589. TWIN-COMPACT VANITY CASE. SIMON A. JAROSLAWSKI-FIORET, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 28, 1923. Serial No. 677,536. 3 Claims. (Cl. 132—83.)



1. A vanity case comprising a pair of outer compact carrier sections each having an open end and a closed end hingedly connected at the open ends for contiguous closed relation, an intermediate mirror carrying section hingedly connected to one of the outer sections and adapted when the case is closed to extend partially into the open end of each outer section for frictionally retaining said sections in closed relation, and means spaced inwardly from the open end of each of the outer sections constituting stops for engaging the opposite sides of the intermediate section to limit the projection of the same into the end of said outer sections.

1,506,590. COSMETIC HOLDER. SIMON A. JAROSLAWSKI-FIORET, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 28, 1923. Serial No. 677,537. 2 Claims. (Cl. 206—56.)

1. A holder for a cosmetic stick or pencil, comprising a tubular body having a closed lower end and an open upper end, a sleeve within said body having its walls spaced from the inner surface of the walls of the body and extending from the closed lower end through the body and projecting from the open end, a follower member consisting of inner and outer tubular sections fitting respectively around the sleeve and within the sleeve and adapted to receive within the inner section at the upper end the cosmetic stick or pencil, said follower member being longitudinally movable with respect to the body and sleeve for the purpose of projecting or retracting the free end of the pencil or stick for exposing the same from the end of the sleeve, and a cover having a closed end and an open end adapted for telescopic association with the exposed portion of the sleeve, said cover being adapted to coact with the outer section of the follower member for automatically retracting the exposed end of the pencil upon application of the cover.

1,506,591. BOX OPENER. OLLIE A. KARHU, Greybull, Wyo. Filed Apr. 22, 1924. Serial No. 708,218. 4 Claims. (Cl. 145—21.)

4. A box opening tool, comprising in combination a pair of substantially rectangular strip-like members each having a hand grip at one side thereof and one of said members being adapted to slide within the other of said members, each of said members carrying a flat plate member at an end opposite each hand grip, one of said flat plate members extending on either side of the other of said flat plate members and having a bladed edge and a hammer edge opposite thereto, and resilient means for normally holding said plate members spaced apart whereby said plate members may be moved together when said hand grips are drawn together and said extended flat plate member driven under a box cover in the process of opening the box.

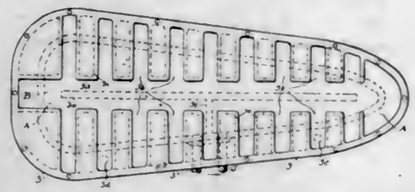
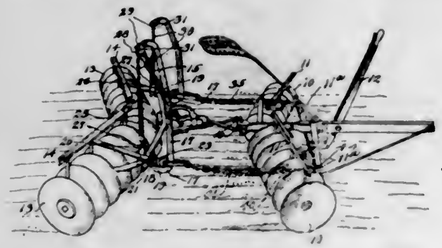
1,506,592. RUFFLED CRÊPE PAPER. LESTER C. LEACH, Framingham, Mass., assignor to Dennison Manufacturing Company, Framingham, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 22, 1923. Serial No. 664,245. 13 Claims. (Cl. 92—69.)



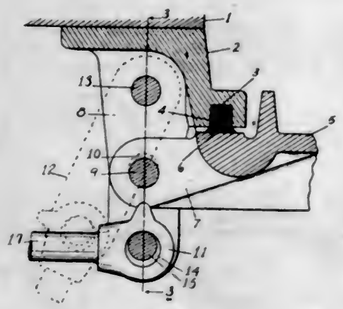
1. A sheet of crêped material having an integral row of uncrêped ruffles on one side thereof.

1,506,593. ADJUSTER BAR. JOHN DELL LEMEX, Tulsa, Okla. Filed May 5, 1921. Serial No. 466,880. 7 Claims. (Cl. 255—18.)



1. An adjuster for transmitting motion from a walking beam to a pump operating rod comprising an integral stirrup having side members and a cross member connecting the upper ends of the side members, means for holding the lower ends of the side members in fixed spaced relation, and spaced apart flexible extensions of greater length than the side members of the stirrup depending from the spacing means, and having clamping means at the lower ends thereof, said clamping means being coaxially alined with the spacing means, said spacing means providing the upper limit to which a pump rod engaged in the clamp may reach, whereby the pump rod with which the adjuster is used will always be well below the stirrup to provide clearance for a walking beam.

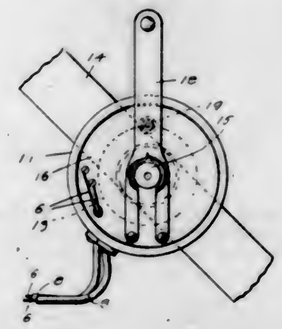
1,506,594. CLOTHES-PRESSING MACHINE. CHARLES H. LEWIS, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Oct. 27, 1922. Serial No. 597,383. 5 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



1. A clothes pressing machine including a buck and a presser head, one of said elements embodying a normally heated chamber and an intermittently heated chamber, and a pressing face having intermingled portions heated by the two chambers.

1,506,595. DISK HARROW. HENRY H. LOHMEYER, Ambrose, N. Dak. Filed Mar. 9, 1923. Serial No. 623,918. 15 Claims. (Cl. 55—83.)

1. In a harrow, the combination with front and rear gang frames, of means pivotally mounting said frames at one end, and normally rigid draft means intermediate of said frames constructed to flex upon abnormal tension thereon and extend the length of the draft means in the line of draft.



1,506,596. DOOR OR CLOSURE. FRANCIS J. MCMURDIE, Kalamazoo, Mich. Filed Nov. 8, 1923. Serial No. 673,627. 5 Claims. (Cl. 220—55.)

1. In a structure of the class described, the combination of a door frame provided with a gasket projecting beyond its face, pairs of spaced ears disposed in opposed relation on said frame, a door provided with opposed arms projecting between said ears, removable pintles for said arms engaging said ears for limited lateral movement, clamping cams adapted to be engaged with said arms, supporting links for said cams pivotally mounted on said pintle ears, and eccentric pivots for said cams adjustably mounted on said links whereby the clamping action of the cams may be varied.

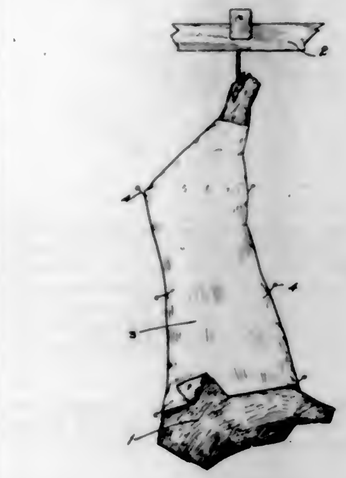
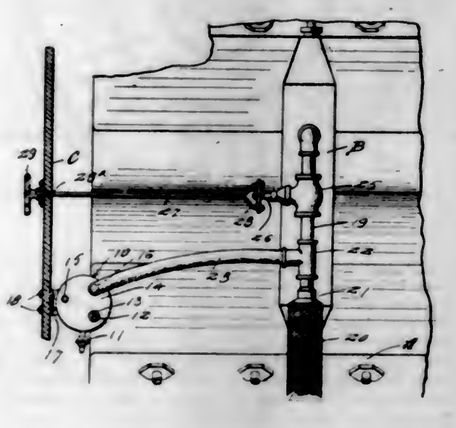
1,506,597. VEHICLE TRAFFIC SIGNAL. ALOYS N. MALLER, RAYMOND J. MALLER, and NORBERT J. MALLER, Oelwein, Iowa; said Raymond J. Maller and Norbert J. Maller assignors to said Aloys N. Maller. Filed Apr. 8, 1922. Serial No. 550,664. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)



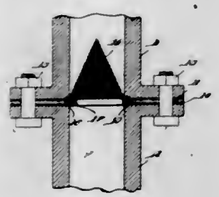
1. In a signalling mechanism, a casing having spaced sections, an axle extending from one of the sections, the other section being fastened to the axle, a pulley journaled on the axle, means trained about the pulley for actuation to operate signal means, an arm bifurcated to straddle said axle and secured to the pulley, said arm being movable intermediate the sections, one of the sections having teeth engageable by said arms, said pulley having a recess, the arm having a projection adapted to enter said recess when it is disengaged from said teeth, and a spring anchored in said recess and projecting therefrom and normally urging said member into engagement with said teeth.

1,506,598. TOP SPINNER. PAUL MELEG, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Apr. 12, 1923. Serial No. 631,603. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—32.)



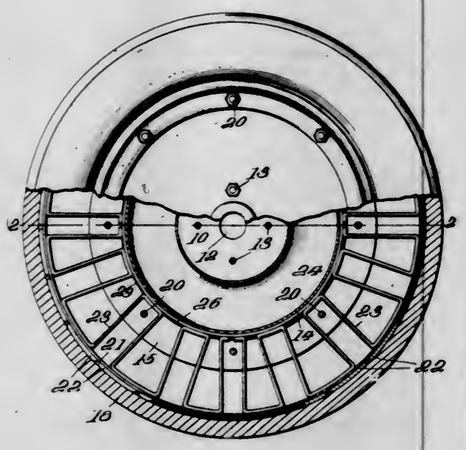
1. In a top spinner of the type described, a bar having end opening sockets formed in the opposite ends thereof and having a pair of axially alined openings formed in the wall of each socket, a top in each pair of axially alined openings, and a single cord having its opposite ends inserted into the end opening socket and wound around the different tops in such a manner that when the intermediate portion of the cord is pulled upon the said tops will be projected from their respective openings for permitting them to spin.

1,506,599. METHOD OF WRAPPING BEEF. JOSEPH PAUL MURPHY, Denver, Colo., assignor to Blayney-Murphy Company, Denver, Colo., a Corporation of Colorado. Filed Apr. 19, 1924. Serial No. 707,627. 4 Claims. (Cl. 99—1.)



4. The herein-described method of treating carcasses, which consists in applying to the outside thereof while still warm, a thin covering of cloth saturated with salt brine, the said covering being held in place until the carcass cools.

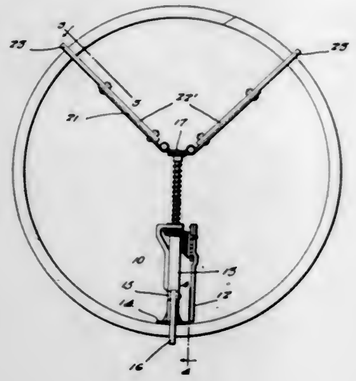
1,506,600. HUMIDIFYING ATTACHMENT. HENRY NAGEL, New Orleans, La. Filed May 10, 1922. Serial No. 559,971. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—25.)



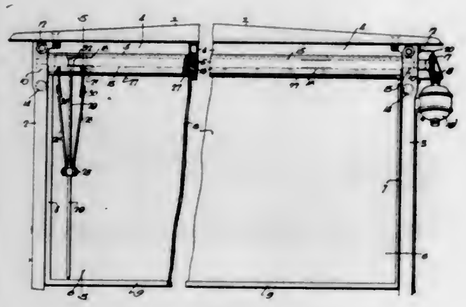
1. In a humidifying attachment, a conduit for communication with the fuel intake means of an internal combustion engine, a water container, a conduit in communication with said conduit and with said container, means on the container communicating with the atmosphere for passage of air through the water and thence through the second mentioned conduit, the second mentioned conduit being in communication with the atmosphere beyond its junction with and at an angle to the first mentioned conduit.

1,506,601. MIXING DEVICE. JOHN ENAR NELSON, Bucyrus, N. Dak. Filed Feb. 25, 1922. Serial No. 539,197. 1 Claim. (Cl. 48—180.)

A mixing device of the character described comprising a pair of spaced associated plates provided with aligned openings, a flange rising from the edge of the opening of one of said plates, a conical shaped foraminated member rising from the marginal edge of the opening of the other of said plates and said flange being bent upon the edge of said member as and for the purpose specified.



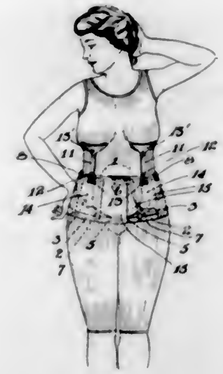
1,506,602. VEHICLE WHEEL. HENRY NICHOLS, New York, N. Y. Filed May 17, 1922, Serial No. 561,656. Renewed Apr. 8, 1924. 14 Claims. (Cl. 152—29.)



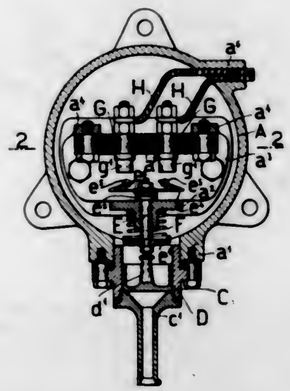
9. A wheel of the character described comprising a body, a pneumatic cushion enclosed within said body, a tire shoe secured to the periphery of said body, a band-like equalizing spring encircling said cushion, a similar equalizing spring located within the tread portion of said shoe, and a convolute equalizing member interposed between and engaging both of said equalizing springs, the equalizing spring within the tire shoe having segmental pads bearing against the inner surface of the tread of said shoe.

1,506,603. COMBINATION AUTO JACK AND RIM TOOL. WILLIAM B. NICHOLSON, Chapman, Kans. Filed Mar. 25, 1922. Serial No. 546,655. 1 Claim. (Cl. 254—100.)

A combination jack and rim tool comprising a base, a hollow standard rising therefrom, a screw operating in said standard, means for operating said screw, a plate carried by the upper end of the screw, swinging members hingedly connected upon the opposite sides of said plate, a relatively long arm carried by each member and arranged parallel therewith, a hook like portion projecting laterally from the outermost end of each arm and adapted to engage said rim, spaced parallel lugs projecting from said jack standard at a point adjacent the base, a pivoted hook like member mounted between said lugs and arranged to engage the rim at a point immediately beneath said base as and for the purpose specified, the arms being adapted to be swung downwardly upon opposite sides of the base and engaged with the ground to serve as balancing legs for the device when used as a jack.

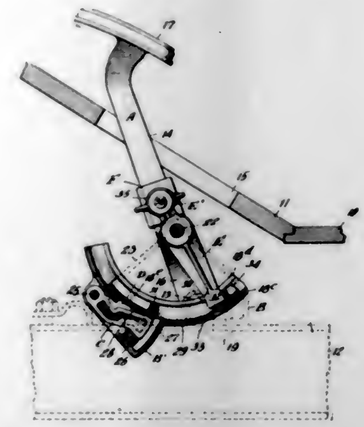


1,506,604. WINDSHIELD CLEANER. ALBERT S. NOONAN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Foss-Hughes Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. Filed Nov. 9, 1921. Serial No. 513,989. 3 Claims. (Cl. 15—253.)



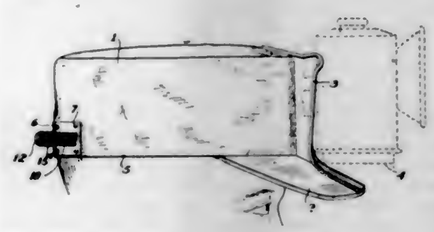
1. The combination of a wind shield having a hollow frame member formed with a longitudinally extending slot; a traveling member mounted in said frame member; a motor; mechanism driven from said motor for reciprocating said traveling member in the frame member; a cleaning member operative on the windshield, one or more spring elements connected to the cleaning member and extending through the slot of the frame member and connected to the traveling member for transmitting movement therefrom to the cleaning member.

1,506,605. ABDOMINAL SUPPORTER. FOLKE FREDRICK NORDEN, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 22, 1921, Serial No. 463,497. Renewed July 12, 1924. 9 Claims. (Cl. 2—30.)



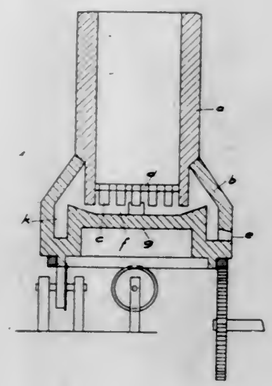
1. An abdominal support comprising a band of resilient but non-extensible material consisting of a plurality of parts adjustably connected in such manner as to allow the band to be flexed.

1,506,606. ELECTRICAL SWITCH. WALTHER AKEMANN, Essen, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Sept. 3, 1920. Serial No. 408,068. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—82.)



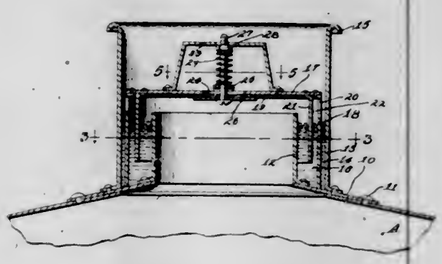
1. A mouth operated electric switch comprising a casing, fixed and movable switch contacting means within said casing, said movable contacting means being carried on a plunger reciprocably mounted in said casing, a spring tending to hold said movable contact means in spaced relation to said fixed contacting means, a cylinder attached to said casing in substantially axial alinement with said plunger, a piston in said cylinder and projecting in said casing through an aperture provided in the latter whereby said piston abuts said plunger, and a mouth-piece on said cylinder whereby air being blown into said mouth-piece said movable contacting means is urged against said fixed contacting means; said mouth-piece, cylinder and piston being detachable as a unit from said casing, and said plunger being so disposed as to lie entirely within said casing when said detachable unit is removed.

1,506,607. CLUTCH CONTROL MECHANISM. HARLEY E. ANDERSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor of one-third to William L. Kellogg, Chicago, Ill., and one-third to William H. Miner, Chazy, N. Y. Filed Aug. 7, 1922. Serial No. 579,975. 10 Claims. (Cl. 74—81.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a speed control lever movable to two different operative positions and an intermediate neutral position; of a spring controlled detent for checking movement of the control lever when the latter arrives at the neutral position; a movable holding element directly engaging said detent for retaining it in inoperative position; and means carried by and movable in unison with said control lever for positively moving said holding element into the latch retaining position during movement of the lever to one of its operative positions, to thereby permit free movement of the latter to the other of is two operaive positions.

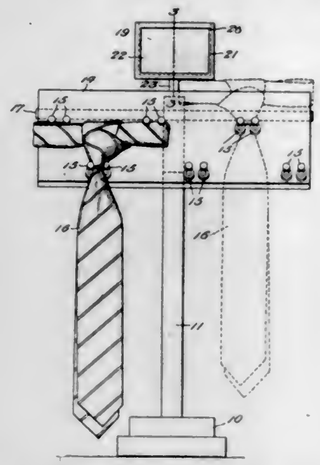
1,506,608. ATTACHMENT FOR MINERS' CAPS. FRANK BAYER, Majestic, Ky. Filed Dec. 31, 1923. Serial No. 683,772. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—197.)



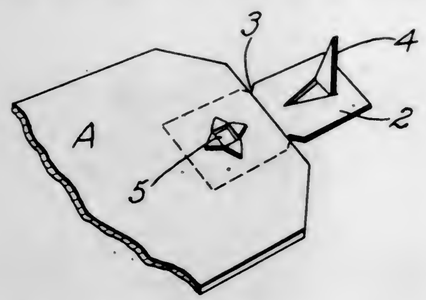
1. An attachment for caps comprising a member adapted to be secured to the exterior of the band of said cap, said member having a longitudinal series of spaced seats, and a coiled spring secured at one end to the band of the cap in spaced relation to said member and having its other end formed into a hook for engagement with one of the seats of the member.

1,506,609. METHOD OF CONVERTING ZINC POWDER INTO FLUID ZINC. EDWARD SALOMON BERGLUND, Djursholm, Sweden. Filed Feb. 2, 1922. Serial No. 533,702. 4 Claims. (Cl. 266—19.)

1. A method of converting zinc powder into fluid zinc which consists in simultaneously stirring the powder as it comes from a condenser pipe, and subjecting the said powder to centrifugal force, where by conversion to the fluid state and cohesion of the fluid particles is effected as well as separation of oxide from the fluid metal formed.



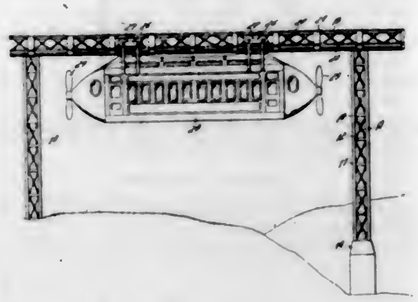
1,506,610. MANHOLE COVER FOR OIL TANKS. PERLEY O. BOOTH, Ivan, Tex. Filed July 20, 1923. Serial No. 652,807. 4 Claims. (Cl. 220—45.)



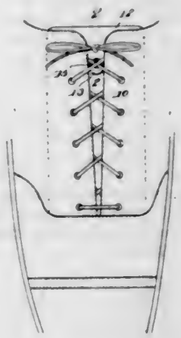
1. A manhole cover for tanks, comprising a base ring adapted to be mounted upon a tank dome at the manhole therein, an upstanding shell rising from the inner periphery of said ring, an outer shell rising from the ring in spaced relation to said inner shell and defining an annular chamber for containing liquid, and a cover located within said outer shell and including a top and an outer wall and further including a depending skirt spaced from the wall, the wall and skirt of the cover fitting within said annular chamber.

1,506,611. DISPLAY RACK. ALFRED D. BOWEN, Suffolk, Va. Filed May 6, 1921, Serial No. 467,332. Renewed Dec. 28, 1923. 2 Claims. (Cl. 211—24.)

1. A display rack comprising a base, a standard rising therefrom, a display panel carried by the standard and spaced pins extending from the panel, said pins being arranged in spaced pairs to receive articles to be displayed, with the pairs arranged in staggered relation and in horizontal rows.



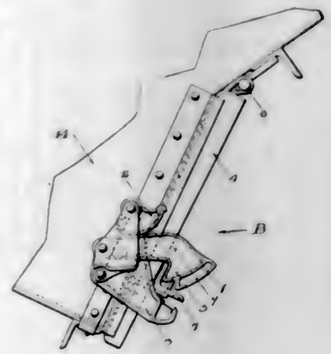
1,506,612. CLIP. WILLIAM F. BUSCHARDT, Baltimore, Md. Filed June 2, 1922. Serial No. 565,386. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—22.)



A clip of the class described formed from a blank having notches at the centers of its side edges so as to facilitate folding of the blank at the center, one-half of the clip having a hole therein forming a tongue which is adapted to be bent over to hold the clip to a card and the other half having a V-shaped tongue punched therefrom to engage the hole when one half of the clip is bent over upon the other half to hold the tag on the package.

1,506,613. AERIAL TRANSPORT SYSTEM. ONOFRE CAMP, Barranquilla, Colombia. Filed Dec. 1, 1923. Serial No. 678,066. 1 Claim. (Cl. 104—93.)

An overhead trackway for aerial transport systems comprising vertical supports provided with laterally extending arms at their upper ends, pairs of spaced horizontally arranged angle beams, the inner ones of which being secured to the arms, brace elements arranged in truss formation between the angle beams, L-shaped track supporting members supported by the outer angle beam and having their lower legs resting on the lower outer angle beam and extending laterally therefrom, a plate arranged in opposed relation to the vertical leg of each of the track supporting members and having their ends disposed within the inner angle beam, fastening elements extending through the vertical legs of the track supporting members, brace members and plate, and a trackway supported by the lateral legs of the U-shaped supporting members.

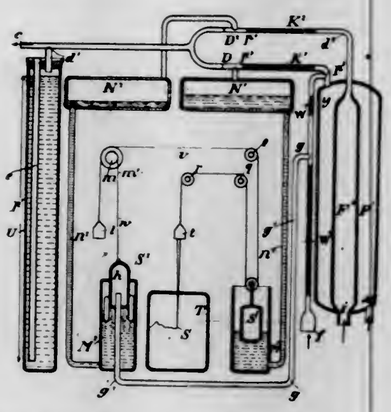


1,506,614. SHOE-TONGUE HOLDER. WILLIAM F. COOK, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Sept. 18, 1922. Serial No. 588,940. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—117.)

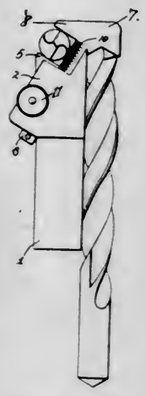
A disk for use on the tongue of a shoe having a concentrically arranged sleeve extending therefrom adapted to be inserted through an opening in the tongue and to be upset or riveted upon the inside of said tongue, said disk also having a plurality of hollow rolled projections formed integrally of the disk and extending in opposed relation to said sleeve.

1,506,615. METHOD OF CONSTRUCTING RAILWAY CARS. WILLIAM F. CREMEAN, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Dec. 22, 1923. Serial No. 682,261. 4 Claims. (Cl. 105—308.)

1. In constructing railway cars, the method of applying to a car, having hinged doors, a door locking mechanism involving engagable relatively movable cooperating members one of which is carried by the car body and the other by the door, which consists in mounting upon the car body in normal assembled relation thereto the said locking member which is carried by said body; movably securing the cooperating locking member to the door in a position enabling it to engage said locking member carried by the car body; causing said door to assume a position approaching final closure and effecting an engagement of the said locking members carried respectively by the car body and the door so as to prevent said door from executing an opening movement; causing said door to assume its normal position of final closure while the locking member carried by said door is maintained in door locking relation to the said locking member carried by the car body; and thereafter, while said door is in said normal closed position and said locking members are in said locking relation, securing to the door in final assembled relation thereto the locking member carried thereby.



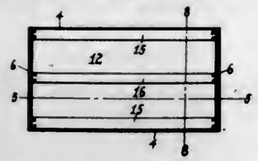
1,506,616. METAL-BUILDING CONSTRUCTION. THOMAS F. DOHERTY, Terre Haute, Ind. Filed Dec. 16, 1922. Serial No. 607,384. 1 Claim. (Cl. 72—48.)



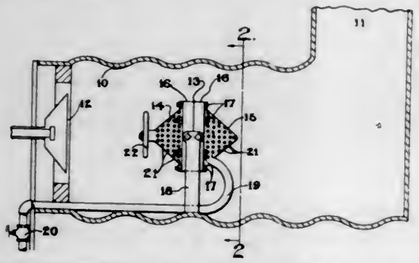
In a building construction, a foundation wall, a frame resting therein and including floor beams, horizontal angle beams, and vertical members connecting the foundation wall and angle beams, vertically disposed spaced rods arranged upon the inner and outer sides of the frame and certain of the rods being provided with inverted U-shaped saddles at their upper ends which embrace the angle beams and terminate in eyes, the remaining rods being formed with eyes at their upper ends which are received in the first mentioned eyes, having their lower ends anchored in the foundation wall, metal lathing secured to the rods, a covering of plastic material for the lathing to provide inner and outer spaced walls and means connecting the upper and lower portions of the inner and outer walls to provide a dead air space.

1,506,617. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR TESTING GAS MIXTURES. OTTO DOMMER, Karlsruhe, Germany. Filed Oct. 11, 1920, Serial No. 416,280. Renewed July 8, 1924. 23 Claims. (Cl. 23—3).

8. The method of testing gases which consists in submitting the gas at different stages to reactions operating upon the gas by its viscosity and by its specific gravity respectively, and determining the change produced in the gas between the said stages.



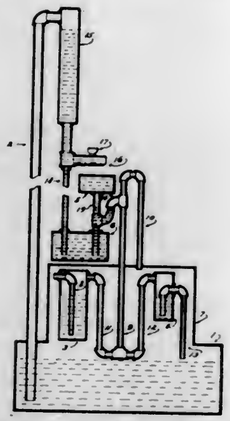
1,506,618. TOOL. BYRON H. DURHAM, Mulliken, Mich. Filed July 14, 1923. Serial No. 651,677. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—201.)



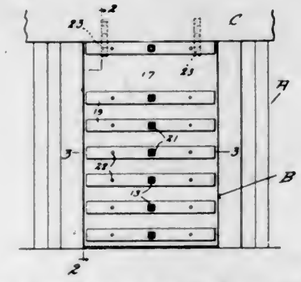
A tool of the class described comprising a body having an enlarged part having a slot therein and a substantially V-shaped recess, a projection on the body extending into the recess and forming a stationary jaw, a movable member comprising a shank and a head, said shank engaging said slot and having a scale thereon and the head forming at one side a jaw for cooperating with the first mentioned jaw and having a recess on the opposite side of substantially V-shape and forming a gage and a bolt for locking the movable member in adjusted position.

1,506,619. SHIPPING BOX. EDWARD T. DYSON, Oakland, Calif. Filed Jan. 21, 1920. Serial No. 353,046. 11 Claims. (Cl. 217—17.)

1. A box including end walls of substantial thickness, a bottom and sides of light material secured to said end walls, slats on the outside of said bottom secured to said end walls, flanges on the ends of said bottom bent up against the outside of said end walls, and slats secured to said end walls against said flanges.

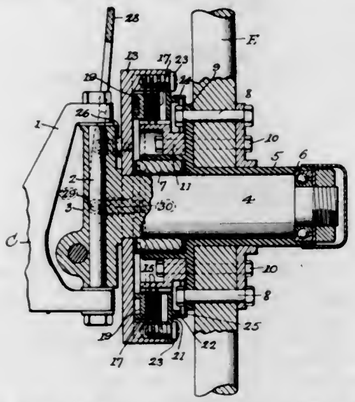


1,506,620. COMBUSTION-PROMOTING DEVICE. DADI EGGERTSON, Baltimore, Md. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,801. 1 Claim. (Cl. 110—75.)



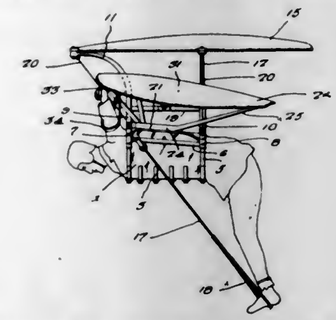
In the combination with a furnace having a burner disposed therein in a manner so that it will play its flame horizontally, vertically disposed brackets arranged within said furnace, hollow perforated conical shaped members having therein bases secured together and means supported by the brackets in a manner to be arranged in alignment with the burner, means for supplying air to the members and a deflector plate arranged between the burner and the members as and for the purpose specified.

1,506,621. STATIONARY CHEMICAL-MIXING FIRE-EXTINGUISHING SYSTEM. JOHN W. ENRIGHT, New Orleans, La. Filed Oct. 7, 1920. Serial No. 415,275. 2 Claims. (Cl. 169—8.)



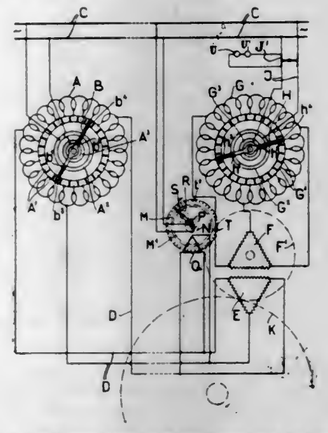
1. In a chemical mixing fire extinguisher system, a carbonate solution tank, an acid receptacle positioned in operative relation to said tank having the upper part thereof closed to form an air chamber, a siphon affording communication between said receptacle and said tank, a pressure equalizing pipe communicating with said tank and having an upwardly turned branch communicating with said air chamber, said pipe normally being open throughout its length for balancing the pressure on both sides of the body of acid in said receptacle, but adapted upon occasion to receive and sustain an unbalancing liquid column, an elevated reservoir normally containing sufficient liquid to form said unbalancing column, a pipe having an upward bend connecting said reservoir and pressure equalizing pipe, said bend being normally filled with mercury forming a seal, a distributing system including a stand pipe communicating with said mercury seal and maintaining the level of the mercury therein sufficiently high to prevent discharge of the liquid contained in said reservoir into said pressure equalizing pipe, a sprinkler head communicating with said distributing system, said mercury seal being lowered, upon the depletion of the column of liquid in said distributing system through said sprinkler head, sufficiently to permit discharge of the liquid from said reservoir into said pressure equalizing pipe, forming an unbalancing column of sufficient height to initiate the siphonic discharge of acid from said acid receptacle into said carbonate solution tank.

1,506,622. HOG DOOR. HENRY FINTEL, Paullina, Iowa. Filed Nov. 10, 1923. Serial No. 674,021. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—16.)



1. A door of the character described comprising a sheet of fabric, a pair of chains disposed against said sheet, a plurality of pairs of slats located against opposite sides of the assembled sheet and chains, clamping bolts passing through the slats at one side of the sheet and passing through said chains, and clamping bolts passing through the slats of each pair and through the fabric sheet.

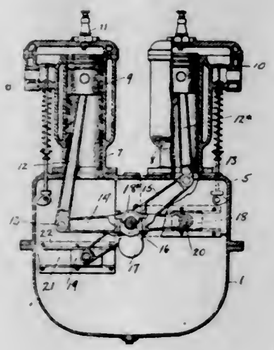
1,506,623. DISK BRAKE. JOHN C. FLICKINGER, Lehighton, Pa., assignor of one-half to John A. Engesser, Mauch Chunk, Pa. Filed Oct. 30, 1923. Serial No. 671,783. 4 Claims. (Cl. 188—72.)



2. A disk brake for automobiles comprising an inner drum attached to a wheel, an outer stationary drum, a stop ring attached thereto, a movable pressure ring, friction disks between the two rings, an operating member pivoted on the outer drum, and means connecting the operating member directly to the pressure ring.

1,506,624. FLYING APPARATUS. MICHELE FORCHIONE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 19, 1923. Serial No. 633,157. Renewed July 7, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 244—17.)

A flying machine comprising a fabric belt designed to be strapped around the body of an aviator, spaced posts secured to and projecting upward from the belt, a stabilizing plane and rudder secured to the posts, a reinforcing bar between the said posts, flexible elements connected to the sides of the belt and having stirrups for the feet of the aviator, a central reinforcement on the belt, aligned knuckles on the central reinforcement of the belt, wings having the inner members of their frame provided with knuckles to interengage with the first mentioned knuckles and with each other, a single pintle passing through the knuckles and pivoting both wings in place, anti-frictional elements carried by the pintle for engagement with all of the knuckles, hand grips on the wings engageable by the hands of the aviator, spring means secured to said reinforcing bar and the wings and influencing the wings in an upward direction, and means carried by said reinforcing bar and extending laterally thereof for limiting the movement of said wings in such direction.



1,506,625. ELECTRIC LONG-DISTANCE CONTROL. RUDOLF FÖRSTER, Essen, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Sept. 7, 1920. Serial No. 408,741. 6 Claims. (Cl. 89—41.)

1. In an apparatus for transmitting rotary movements to a distance, the combination of a source of current, a transmitter connected to said source, a receiver having a stator member and a rotor member, electric connections between the transmitter and one of said members, electric connections with disconnecting means between the other of said members and the said source, a second similar receiver having a stator and a rotor, one of said members being in constant conection with said transmitter and the other member with said source and means for indicating the relative angular positions of said rotors.

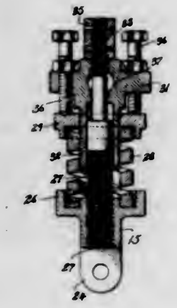
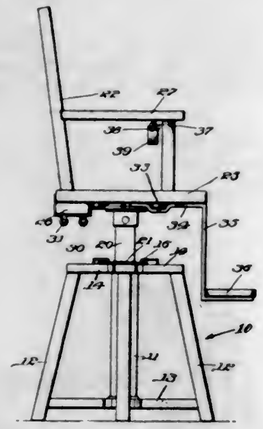
1,506,626. MECHANICAL MOVEMENT. FRANK L. FREER, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 23, 1923. Serial No. 627,176. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)



1. A mechanical movement for internal combustion engines in combination with a crank shaft and connecting rods therefor, pivotally connected levers attached to the ends of the connecting rods and mounted on the crank shaft of the engine and sliding blocks attached to the opposite end of the levers for movement therewith in opposite directions upon the reciprocation of the connecting rods.

1,506,627. CRATE. EDGAR A. FRANCIS and WILLIAM SALOW, Marshalltown, Iowa. Filed Jan. 23, 1923. Serial No. 614,415. 6 Claims. (Cl. 220—6.)



1. A crate comprising a plurality of struts, a plurality of hoops each of said hoops comprising a plurality of segments having their ends movably connected one to each of said struts whereby said hoops may be folded upon themselves, and floor sections for the said crate, said sections being movably connected to said struts, and means for normally retaining the parts of said crate in extended positions with respect to each other.

1,506,628. PRESSURE COMPENSATOR FOR PRESSES. PETER EDUARD GELDHOF, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The New York Trust Company, trustee, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 6, 1920, Serial No. 415,104. Renewed July 24, 1924. 4 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

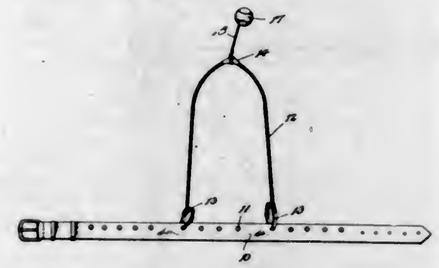
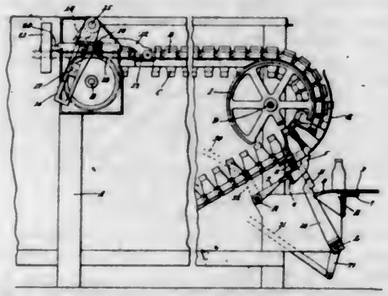
1,506,629. HIGH CHAIR. GEORGE H. GIFFIN, Miami, Fla. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,883. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—115.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a pedestal having a hollow standard, an adjustable post disposed in the standard, means for retaining said post in adjusted position, a sectional seat swiveled to said post, a pair of filler blocks adapted to be positioned between the sections of said seat, means for supporting the blocks when the outer sections of said seat are in closed position, means for supporting said blocks when the outer sections are in open position, a back secured to the center section of said seat and adjustable side arms supported upon the outer sections of said seat and hinged to said back.

1,506,630. HIGHWAY-CROSSING SIGNAL FOR RAILWAYS. CARL R. GRAVES, Clarion, Iowa. Filed Apr. 5, 1922. Serial No. 549,777. 6 Claims. (Cl. 246—294.)

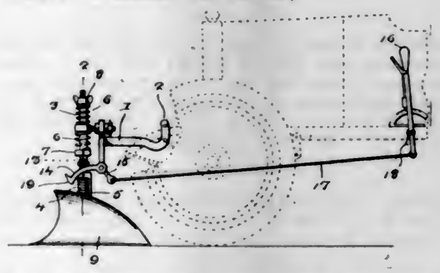


1. In a signal, a shiftable signal member and actuating means therefor including a pivoted arm operatively connected to the signal and movable to affect the same, a pair of pivoted arms independent of each other and associated with the first named arm, the movement of either of the second named arms in one direction acting to shift the first named arm in a direction to affect the signal but not affecting the other of the second named arms, and separate train actuated means operatively connected to the second named arms.

1,506,631. EXERCISING DEVICE. ROY A. GROVER, Seattle, Wash. Filed July 20, 1922. Serial No. 576,377. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—69.)

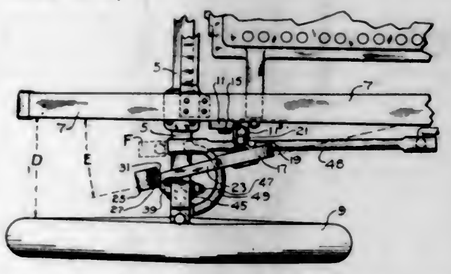
2. An exercising device including a resistance member, a sleeve slidable thereon, a handle, and a flexible connection between the handle and said sleeve.

1,506,632. DISCHARGE MECHANISM. JOHN R. GRUETTER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Sept. 30, 1922. Serial No. 591,623. 29 Claims. (Cl. 198—20.)



1. In a discharge mechanism for bottles, the combination of a support having a fork-shaped edge providing a slot between said forks smaller in cross section than the bottom of a bottle, and means reciprocating toward and from said forks, and including a portion small enough to enter said slot for depositing a bottle on said edge and over said slot.

1,506,633. METHOD OF MAKING LEAD PEROXIDE. MAX GRUNBAUM, New York, N. Y. Filed June 26, 1923. Serial No. 647,914. 5 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)

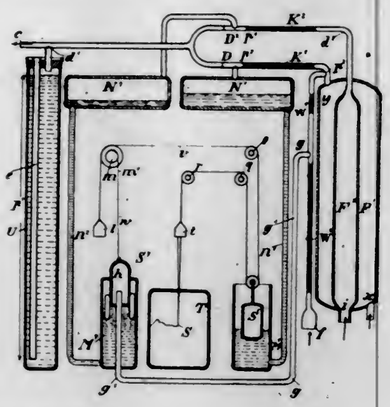


1. The herein described method of making lead peroxide which comprises heating lead sulfate in a solution of a caustic alkali, and simultaneously admitting chlorine gas to the solution.

1,506,634. PLOW. CHARLES ALBERT HARTSHORN, Orogrande, N. Mex. Filed Nov. 4, 1922. Serial No. 599,074. 2 Claims. (Cl. 32—44.)

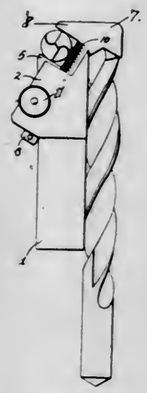
1. An attachment for a motor vehicle comprising a bracket adapted to be connected with the vehicle at each side of the front thereof, a two-part stem yieldingly supported by each bracket, spring means for normally holding the two parts of the stem in vertical alignment and a plow connected with the lower end of each stem and arranged in front of each front wheel of the vehicle.

1,506,635. SHOCK-ABSORBER MOUNTING FOR VEHICLES. ROBERT H. HASSLER, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed June 5, 1922. Serial No. 565,814. 5 Claims. (Cl. 267—9.)



1. In a device of the class described, in combination with a frame element, an axle element, and a spring element supporting the frame element, a shock absorber, an actuator arm outwardly disposed from said shock absorber and connected to the axle element, and pivotal means for mounting the shock absorber on the frame element, said means being adapted to permit a lateral movement of said actuator arm and said shock absorber in a horizontal plane.

1,506,636. FUEL-INJECTING MEANS FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. KNUT JONAS ELIAS HESSELMAN, Saltsjo-Storangen, Sweden. Filed Apr. 11, 1922. Serial No. 551,705. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—32.)



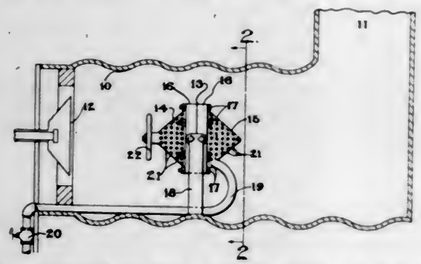
1. In an internal combustion engine, the combination with a cylinder, of a piston therein, a cylinder cover, a piston head, and fuel introducing means, said cover

1,506,617. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR TESTING GAS MIXTURES. OTTO DOMMER, Karlsruhe, Germany. Filed Oct. 11, 1920, Serial No. 416,280. Renewed July 8, 1924. 23 Claims. (Cl. 23—3).

8. The method of testing gases which consists in submitting the gas at different stages to reactions operating upon the gas by its viscosity and by its specific gravity respectively, and determining the change produced in the gas between the said stages.

1,506,618. TOOL. BYRON H. DURHAM, Mulliken, Mich. Filed July 14, 1923. Serial No. 651,677. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—201.)

A tool of the class described comprising a body having an enlarged part having a slot therein and a substantially V-shaped recess, a projection on the body extending into the recess and forming a stationary jaw, a movable member comprising a shank and a head, said shank engaging said slot and having a scale thereon and the head forming at one side a jaw for cooperating with the first mentioned jaw and having a recess on the opposite side of substantially V-shape and forming a gage and a bolt for locking the movable member in adjusted position.



1,506,619. SHIPPING BOX. EDWARD T. DYSON, Oakland, Calif. Filed Jan. 21, 1920. Serial No. 353,046. 11 Claims. (Cl. 217—17.)

1. A box including end walls of substantial thickness, a bottom and sides of light material secured to said end walls, slats on the outside of said bottom secured to said end walls, flanges on the ends of said bottom bent up against the outside of said end walls, and slats secured to said end walls against said flanges.

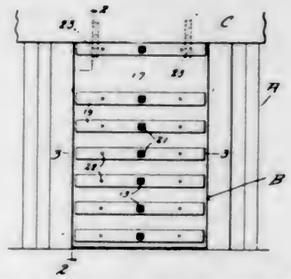
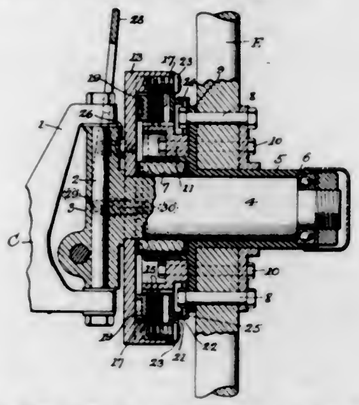
1,506,620. COMBUSTION-PROMOTING DEVICE. DADI EGGERTSON, Baltimore, Md. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,801. 1 Claim. (Cl. 110—75.)



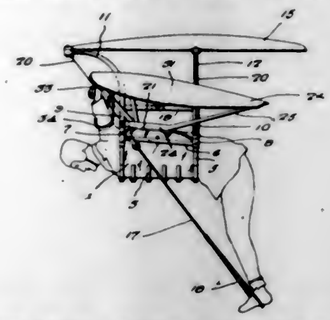
In the combination with a furnace having a burner disposed therein in a manner so that it will play its flame horizontally, vertically disposed brackets arranged within said furnace, hollow perforated conical shaped members having therein bases secured together and means supported by the brackets in a manner to be arranged in alignment with the burner, means for supplying air to the members and a deflector plate arranged between the burner and the members as and for the purpose specified.

1,506,621. STATIONARY CHEMICAL-MIXING FIRE-EXTINGUISHING SYSTEM. JOHN W. ENRIGHT, New Orleans, La. Filed Oct. 7, 1920. Serial No. 415,275. 2 Claims. (Cl. 169—8.)



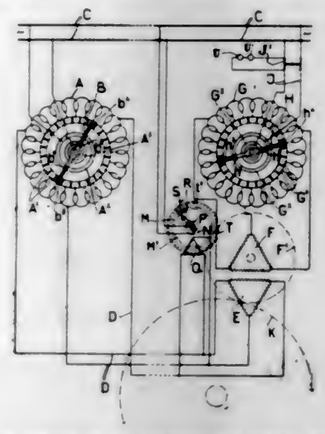
1. In a chemical mixing fire extinguisher system, a carbonate solution tank, an acid receptacle positioned in operative relation to said tank having the upper part thereof closed to form an air chamber, a siphon affording communication between said receptacle and said tank, a pressure equalizing pipe communicating with said tank and having an upwardly turned branch communicating with said air chamber, said pipe normally being open throughout its length for balancing the pressure on both sides of the body of acid in said receptacle, but adapted upon occasion to receive and sustain an unbalancing liquid column, an elevated reservoir normally containing sufficient liquid to form said unbalancing column, a pipe having an upward bend connecting said reservoir and pressure equalizing pipe, said bend being normally filled with mercury forming a seal, a distributing system including a stand pipe communicating with said mercury seal and maintaining the level of the mercury therein sufficiently high to prevent discharge of the liquid contained in said reservoir into said pressure equalizing pipe, a sprinkler head communicating with said distributing system, said mercury seal being lowered, upon the depletion of the column of liquid in said distributing system through said sprinkler head, sufficiently to permit discharge of the liquid from said reservoir into said pressure equalizing pipe, forming an unbalancing column of sufficient height to initiate the siphonic discharge of acid from said acid receptacle into said carbonate solution tank.

1,506,622. HOG DOOR. HENRY FINTEL, Paullina, Iowa. Filed Nov. 10, 1923. Serial No. 674,021. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—16.)



1. A door of the character described comprising a sheet of fabric, a pair of chains disposed against said sheet, a plurality of pairs of slats located against opposite sides of the assembled sheet and chains, clamping bolts passing through the slats at one side of the sheet and passing through said chains, and clamping bolts passing through the slats of each pair and through the fabric sheet.

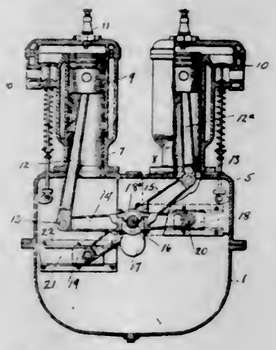
1,506,623. DISK BRAKE. JOHN C. FLICKINGER, Lehighton, Pa., assignor of one-half to John A. Engesser, Mauch Chunk, Pa. Filed Oct. 30, 1923. Serial No. 671,783. 4 Claims. (Cl. 188—72.)



2. A disk brake for automobiles comprising an inner drum attached to a wheel, an outer stationary drum, a stop ring attached thereto, a movable pressure ring, friction disks between the two rings, an operating member pivoted on the outer drum, and means connecting the operating member directly to the pressure ring.

1,506,624. FLYING APPARATUS. MICHELE FORCHIONE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 19, 1923. Serial No. 633,157. Renewed July 7, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 244—17.)

A flying machine comprising a fabric belt designed to be strapped around the body of an aviator, spaced posts secured to and projecting upward from the belt, a stabilizing plane and rudder secured to the posts, a reinforcing bar between the said posts, flexible elements connected to the sides of the belt and having stirrups for the feet of the aviator, a central reinforcement on the belt, aligned knuckles on the central reinforcement of the belt, wings having the inner members of their frame provided with knuckles to interengage with the first mentioned knuckles and with each other, a single pintle passing through the knuckles and pivoting both wings in place, anti-frictional elements carried by the pintle for engagement with all of the knuckles, hand grips on the wings engageable by the hands of the aviator, spring means secured to said reinforcing bar and the wings and influencing the wings in an upward direction, and means carried by said reinforcing bar and extending laterally thereof for limiting the movement of said wings in such direction.



1,506,625. ELECTRIC LONG-DISTANCE CONTROL. RUDOLF FÖRSTER, Essen, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Sept. 7, 1920. Serial No. 408,741. 6 Claims. (Cl. 89—41.)

1. In an apparatus for transmitting rotary movements to a distance, the combination of a source of current, a transmitter connected to said source, a receiver having a stator member and a rotor member, electric connections between the transmitter and one of said members, electric connections with disconnecting means between the other of said members and the said source, a second similar receiver having a stator and a rotor, one of said members being in constant conection with said transmitter and the other member with said source and means for indicating the relative angular positions of said rotors.

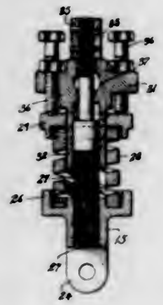
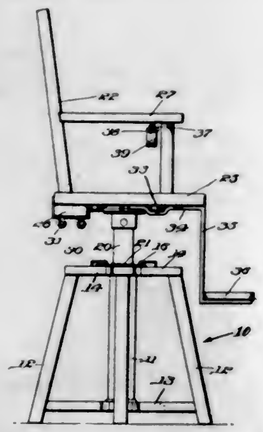
1,506,626. MECHANICAL MOVEMENT. FRANK L. FREER, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 23, 1923. Serial No. 627,176. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)



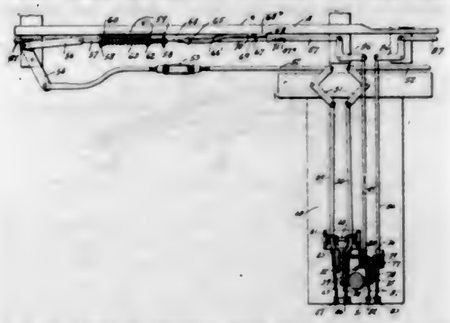
1. A mechanical movement for internal combustion engines in combination with a crank shaft and connecting rods therefor, pivotally connected levers attached to the ends of the connecting rods and mounted on the crank shaft of the engine and sliding blocks attached to the opposite end of the levers for movement therewith in opposite directions upon the reciprocation of the connecting rods.

1,506,627. CRATE. EDGAR A. FRANCIS and WILLIAM SALOW, Marshalltown, Iowa. Filed Jan. 23, 1923. Serial No. 614,415. 6 Claims. (Cl. 220—6.)



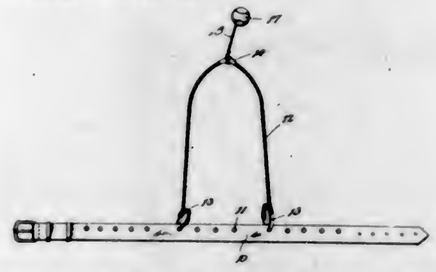
1. A crate comprising a plurality of struts, a plurality of hoops each of said hoops comprising a plurality of segments having their ends movably connected one to each of said struts whereby said hoops may be folded upon themselves, and floor sections for the said crate, said sections being movably connected to said struts, and means for normally retaining the parts of said crate in extended positions with respect to each other.

1,506,628. PRESSURE COMPENSATOR FOR PRESSES. PETER EDUARD GELDHOF, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The New York Trust Company, trustee, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 6, 1920, Serial No. 415,104. Renewed July 24, 1924. 4 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



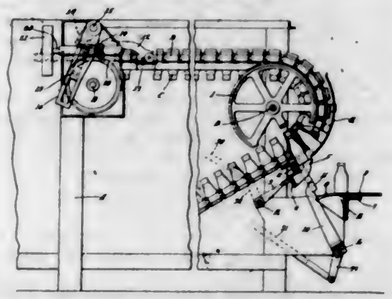
1. A pressure compensator constructed as a part of a toggle used to swing a press lever, comprising a base attachable to a toggle part; a pressure block attachable to the aforesaid press lever; an adjustable stem threaded into one of the aforesaid parts to vary the distance between the base and block; a compression spring bearing at one end on the base; a cap bearing on the opposite end of the spring; and adjusting screws mounted in the pressure block and bearing against the cap to vary the compression of the spring.

1,506,629. HIGH CHAIR. GEORGE H. GIFFIN, Miami, Fla. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,883. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—115.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a pedestal having a hollow standard, an adjustable post disposed in the standard, means for retaining said post in adjusted position, a sectional seat swiveled to said post, a pair of filler blocks adapted to be positioned between the sections of said seat, means for supporting the blocks when the outer sections of said seat are in closed position, means for supporting said blocks when the outer sections are in open position, a back secured to the center section of said seat and adjustable side arms supported upon the outer sections of said seat and hinged to said back.

1,506,630. HIGHWAY-CROSSING SIGNAL FOR RAILWAYS. CARL R. GRAVES, Clarion, Iowa. Filed Apr. 5, 1922. Serial No. 549,777. 6 Claims. (Cl. 246—294.)

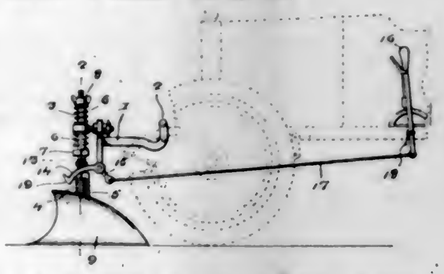


1. In a signal, a shiftable signal member and actuating means therefor including a pivoted arm operatively connected to the signal and movable to affect the same, a pair of pivoted arms independent of each other and associated with the first named arm, the movement of either of the second named arms in one direction acting to shift the first named arm in a direction to affect the signal but not affecting the other of the second named arms, and separate train actuated means operatively connected to the second named arms.

1,506,631. EXERCISING DEVICE. ROY A. GROVER, Seattle, Wash. Filed July 20, 1922. Serial No. 576,377. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—69.)

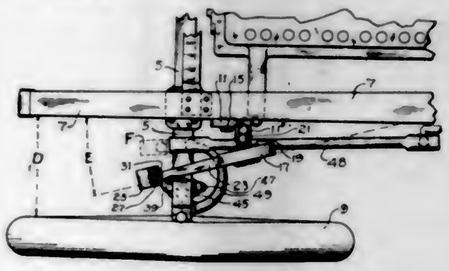
2. An exercising device including a resistance member, a sleeve slidable thereon, a handle, and a flexible connection between the handle and said sleeve.

1,506,632. DISCHARGE MECHANISM. JOHN R. GRUETTER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Sept. 30, 1922. Serial No. 591,623. 29 Claims. (Cl. 198—20.)



1. In a discharge mechanism for bottles, the combination of a support having a fork-shaped edge providing a slot between said forks smaller in cross section than the bottom of a bottle, and means reciprocating toward and from said forks, and including a portion small enough to enter said slot for depositing a bottle on said edge and over said slot.

1,506,633. METHOD OF MAKING LEAD PEROXIDE. MAX GRUNBAUM, New York, N. Y. Filed June 26, 1923. Serial No. 647,914. 5 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)

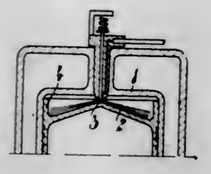


1. The herein described method of making lead peroxide which comprises heating lead sulfate in a solution of a caustic alkali, and simultaneously admitting chlorine gas to the solution.

1,506,634. PLOW. CHARLES ALBERT HARTSHORN, Orogrande, N. Mex. Filed Nov. 4, 1922. Serial No. 599,074. 2 Claims. (Cl. 32—44.)

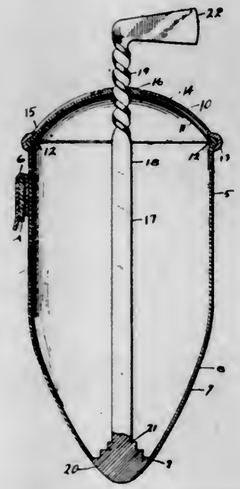
1. An attachment for a motor vehicle comprising a bracket adapted to be connected with the vehicle at each side of the front thereof, a two-part stem yieldingly supported by each bracket, spring means for normally holding the two parts of the stem in vertical alignment and a plow connected with the lower end of each stem and arranged in front of each front wheel of the vehicle.

1,506,635. SHOCK-ABSORBER MOUNTING FOR VEHICLES. ROBERT H. HASSLER, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed June 5, 1922. Serial No. 565,814. 5 Claims. (Cl. 267—9.)



1. In a device of the class described, in combination with a frame element, an axle element, and a spring element supporting the frame element, a shock absorber, an actuator arm outwardly disposed from said shock absorber and connected to the axle element, and pivotal means for mounting the shock absorber on the frame element, said means being adapted to permit a lateral movement of said actuator arm and said shock absorber in a horizontal plane.

1,506,636. FUEL-INJECTING MEANS FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. KNUT JONAS ELIAS HESSELMAN, Saltsjo-Storangen, Sweden. Filed Apr. 11, 1922. Serial No. 551,705. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—32.)



1. In an internal combustion engine, the combination with a cylinder, of a piston therein, a cylinder cover, a piston head, and fuel introducing means, said cover and said head being shaped so that the under side of said cover and the upper side of said head diverge continuously relatively to each other from the cylinder axis substantially to the peripheral wall of the cylinder, so that a combustion chamber is obtained between the cylinder cover and the piston head, the axial length of which has its smallest value near the cylinder axis and its greatest value near the cylinder wall with successive transition between said two values, the said fuel introducing means being arranged to inject the fuel in the shape of conical jets along the said piston head from the narrowest portion of the said chamber.

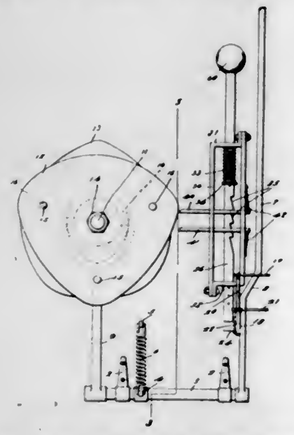
1,506,637. DISPENSING CONTAINER. HARRY HIRSCH, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 26, 1922. Serial No. 609,014. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—66.)

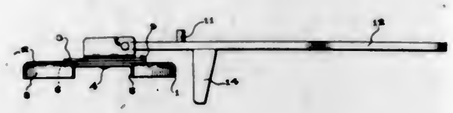


3. A dispensing container comprising a shell member whose side walls are curved inwardly toward the bottom and terminate to form a beveled valve seat, an agitator extending the length of said shell member, and twisted at a point adjacent one end of the same to form a screw portion for co-action with the walls of an opening formed in the top of said shell member, a manipulating portion formed on one end of said agitator and extending beyond the top of the shell member, a head formed on the end of said agitator, an annular beveled portion formed on said head for co-action with said beveled valve seat whereby to close the opening defined by said valve seat, a plurality of annular shoulders whose diameters increase from top to bottom, whereby movement of said manipulating portion will cause said shoulders to co-act with the walls of the valve seat for governing the flow of contents from said shoulder.

1,506,638. ADVERTISING SIGN. AUGUST B. HOOK, New York, N. Y., assignor to Night Aero Advertising Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 11, 1924. Serial No. 698,550. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—127.)

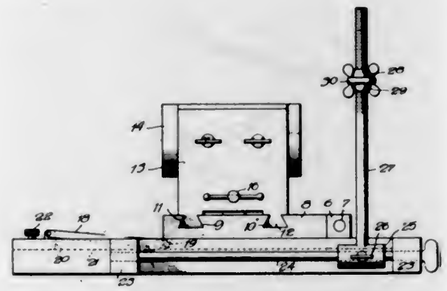
1. The combination with an aircraft having a supporting plane, and a sign under said plane; of supporting means for said sign including straps having reaches extending entirely across the upper side of said plane from front to back and lower reaches extending under said plane from front to back, and a plurality of hangers secured to each of said lower reaches of said straps.

1,506,639. ORGANIZED BUNCH-BUILDING MECHANISM FOR SPINNING OR TWISTING FRAMES. JAMES H. HOOK, JOHN P. THOMPSON, and MILO E. WOODROW, Corsicana, Tex. Filed Sept. 9, 1922. Serial No. 587,081. 3 Claims. (Cl. 242—43.7.)



1. In an organized bunch building mechanism, the combination of a rotary member for connection with the transverse of a ring rail, movable builder means, cams in side by side relation on the rotary member and opposed to and adapted to control said movable builder means, one of the said cams being fast to the rotary member and the other cam rotatable with and movable laterally relative to the fast cam, means to move the laterally movable cam relative to the fast cam and into position to engage the builder means, and automatic means to move the laterally movable cam out of position to engage the builder means; the said automatic means including a toothed or notched rod, a spring to move the same, a trip operable by the rod when released, and catches to hold the rod against movement by the spring, said catches being cam-controlled.

1,506,640. SEALER. WILLIAM W. HUMMEL, Floyd, Iowa. Filed Dec. 8, 1922. Serial No. 605,666. 1 Claim. (Cl. 81—3.)



A device of the class described comprising a pair of jaw plates, each provided with a curved flange on its outer edge, a pin and slot connection between the plates, the small end of one plate having a tongue thereon and the other plate having a slot therein for receiving the tongue and the inner end of the other plate being curved to produce a groove, a cam plate held to the grooved plate by the pivot pin and having its cam part arranged to engage the groove, a channel-shaped member held on the cam plate by the pivot pin, a handle pivoted to the channel-shaped member and a projection thereon for engaging part of the cam plate to rotate the same.

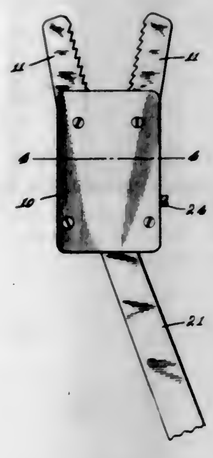
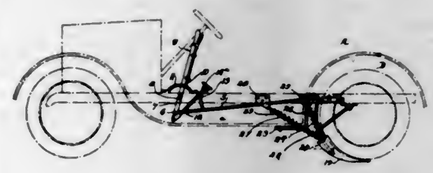
1,506,641. COMBINATION JIG AND VISE. RICHARD E. HUNKE and CHARLIE H. FRANK, Waco, Tex. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 654,449. 7 Claims. (Cl. 81—41.)



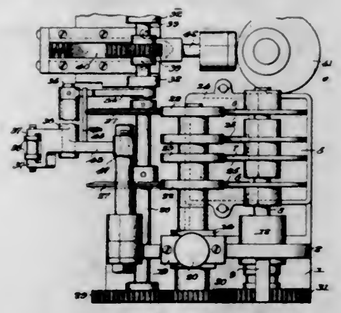
1. A combination jig and vise comprising a bed, a vise table hinged at one end to the bed, a hinged leg for holding the free end of the vise table in angularly adjusted position, and an adjustable guide bar carried by the bed and movable relatively to said vise table.

1,506,642. GEAR WHEEL. HENRY H. ILER, Hillsboro, N. C. Filed June 16, 1923. Serial No. 645,766. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—28.)



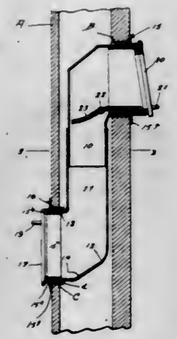
In a gear wheel, a body portion comprising a hub and rim, spokes connecting said hub and rim, a threaded bolt located between each pair of spokes and extending outwardly through the rim, dowel pins positioned at opposite sides of each of the threaded bolts and extending outwardly through the rim, and a plurality of toothed segments of small arc each provided with a threaded recess for the reception of the threaded bolt and adjacent parallel recesses in which the dowel pins are received.

1,506,643. WRENCH. JOSEPH J. JOHNSON, Savannah, Ga. Filed June 1, 1923. Serial No. 642,837. 1 Claim. (Cl. 81—42.)



A pipe wrench comprising opposed side plates, gripping jaws pivoted between the plates, resilient means for normally holding said jaws spread apart, said jaws having oppositely curved surfaces, a lug projecting from one plate, a sliding block arranged between the jaws and having cam like edges cooperating with curved surfaces of the jaws, whereby the latter are moved into gripping relation when the block is shifted in one direction, said block being bifurcated to receive said lug, and a lever pivoted between said plates, said lever having a cam like extremity controlling the movement of said sliding block as and for the purpose specified.

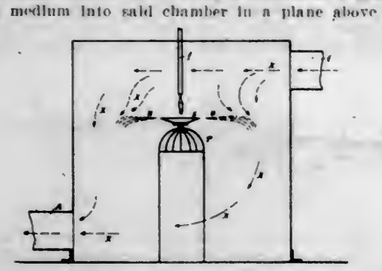
1,506,644. EMERGENCY STOPPING-DEVICE. OREM JORDAN, Freedom, Pa. Filed Jan. 6, 1923. Serial No. 611,114. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—4.)



1. In braking means, a rockably mounted shaft, arms secured on said shaft, arcuate guide members, blocks slidable on said members into raised and lowered position, connections between said arms and the blocks for moving the blocks in accordance with rocking of the shaft, and means limiting downward movement of the blocks and for normally holding the blocks in raised position.

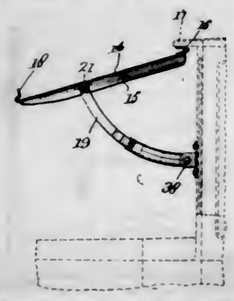
1,506,645. PASTING DEVICE FOR PACKAGING MACHINES. EUGENE G. KERLIN, Salem, Va., assignor to Comas Cigarette Machine Company, Salem, Va., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed Aug. 15, 1922. Serial No. 581,953. 10 Claims. (Cl. 91—50.)

3. A pasting device comprising a glue-pot, a delivery roller, a transfer roller and an applying roller pivoted for vertical movement and adapted to contact with the transfer roller.



1,506,646. MAIL BOX. OLE O. KOLSTAD, Duluth, Minn. Filed June 30, 1922. Serial No. 572,001. 2 Claims. (Cl. 232—19.)

1. A mail box adapted to be built into a wall and comprising a pair of vertically arranged sections disposed in telescoping engagement whereby to be extensible or contractible, each section being substantially L-shaped whereby to provide a right angular extension adapted for location within an opening in the wall, and a face plate formed from a single sheet of metal bent upon itself to define a double ply flange engaged telescopically upon the right angular extensions and fitting within the wall opening, the face plate being further formed with a sleeve portion projecting outwardly beyond the face of the wall, the sleeve portion being spaced inwardly of the double ply flange to define a socket space receiving the free end of the right angular extension, said sleeve portion being telescoped within the right angular extension.



1,506,647. PROCESS OF EXSICCATING OR CONCENTRATING SOLUTIONS. GEORG ALEXANDER KRAUSE, Munich, Germany, assignor to the Firm Eduard Greutert & Cie., Basel, Switzerland. Filed June 19, 1920. Serial No. 390,304. 1 Claim. (Cl. 159—48.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

The herein described method of desiccating liquid or semi-liquid substance, which consists in feeding the substance to be treated in unatomized condition into a closed chamber, atomizing the substance by spreading it out horizontally into the form of a relatively thin disc in said chamber, introducing a current of a gaseous drying medium into said chamber in a plane above and substantially parallel with the disc of the substance being treated, and exhausting said current out of the chamber in a plane below said disc.

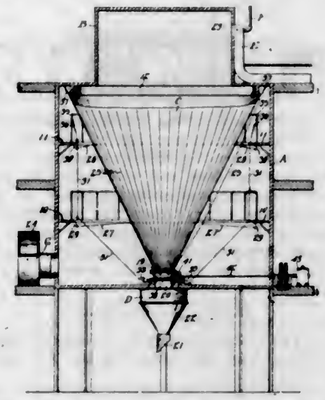
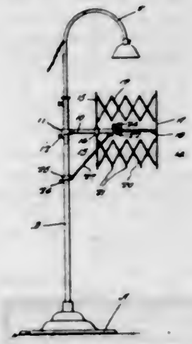
1,506,648. AUTOMOBILE VISOR. DAVID C. LAMB, Nappanee, Ind. Filed Dec. 19, 1922. Serial No. 607,835. 3 Claims. (Cl. 296—95.)



1. An adjustable support for vehicle visors and the like comprising an elongated channel member, an elongated latch having a latch nose provided with an outer flaring part, means for securing said latch member to the channel member at the end opposite the nose, said channel member being constructed to confine the latch member except at the outer end thereof, and a bar engageable with the flaring nose of the latch member to pry said member away from the channel member whereby to permit insertion of the bar adjustably between the channel member and latch, said latch adapted to cooperate with said bar to hold it in adjusted position.

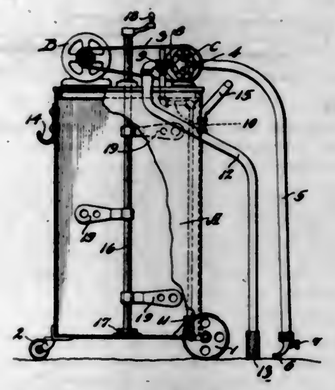
1,506,649. SADIRON-STAND HOLDER. FRED A. LOTTE, Canton, Ohio. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,154. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—17.)



A device for holding together a sad iron and stand comprising a stirrup to extend under and support the stand, a saddle to extend across and seat on the handle of the iron, and elastic springs connecting the ends of the saddle and stirrup, said saddle being of shorter length than the stirrup and the springs converging upwardly.

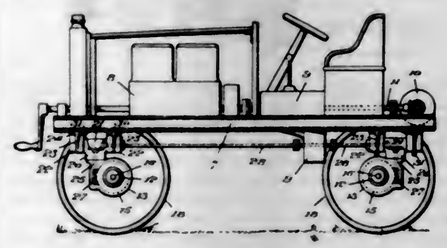
1,506,650. DRYING APPARATUS. GERALD A. LOUGH, Plainfield, N. J. Filed Nov. 29, 1920. Serial No. 427,149. 12 Claims. (Cl. 159—4.)

1. A drying apparatus of the character described comprising a drying chamber, means for introducing the product to be dried and heated air at the top of said chamber, a cone-shaped screen mounted with its point extending toward the bottom of said chamber, a discharge for the dried product from the bottom of said screen, beaters about the screen, a circular series of levers about the discharge outlet connected to said beaters, and means rotating about said outlet to actuate said levers in succession, substantially as set forth.



1,506,651. HOOK HOLDER. FRANK A. MCGUIRE, Cherryvale, Kans. Filed Sept. 8, 1923. Serial No. 661,665. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—32.)

1. A device of the character described comprising an upright support, upper and lower brackets adjustably slidably mounted thereon, an arm pivotally connected with the upper bracket, a frame journally mounted on said arm, a brace, pivotally connected with the lower bracket and with said arm, a pawl carried by the arm, and a toothed disk forming part of the frame and engaged by the pawl for holding the frame at an adjusted position.



1,506,652. PORTABLE AUXILIARY PUMP. HARRY MAKER, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor of one-half to Philip A. Kuehring, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Sept. 10, 1923. Serial No. 662,002. 2 Claims. (Cl. 221—80.)

1. In a portable lubricating apparatus of the class described, comprising in combination a portable wheeled tank adapted to be rolled about in a factory from machine to machine, a lubricant pump mounted on said tank, supply pipes, one intermediate said pump and the interior of the tank, and one flexible and leading from the pump exterior of the tank and adapted to have its supply end inserted in the oil sump of a metal or similar working machine, a flexible feed pipe leading from the pump and adapted to extend some distance from the tank to supply a cooling lubricant to a cutting tool of a machine, a lubricant feed nozzle carried by said feed pipe, and means to connect the feed pipe with either supply pipe, together with operating means for said pump.

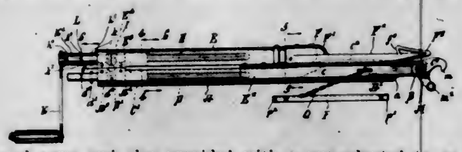
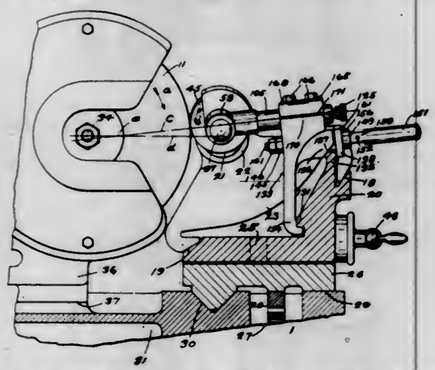
1,506,653. FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE AND STEERING TRACTOR. CHARLES MEILIKE, Clintonville, Wis. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,561. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—49.)



A device of the character described comprising a pair of substantially horizontal bearings spaced apart, a horizontal member having end portions fitted in said bearings and having a depending bearing between the first named bearings, an axle housing below one of the firstnamed bearings, a differential gearing in said housing including a worm wheel rotatable about the axis of the housing, axle shafts extending from said gearing in opposite directions within said housing coaxial with said wheel, ground wheels secured on the opposite ends of said axle shafts coaxial with the axle shafts and housing, said housing being formed with an upstanding and offset to one side of the axis of said housing and ground wheels and pivotally engaging said depending bearing, a substantially vertical shaft spaced to one side of said axis and journaled in said stud and having a worm meshing with said wheel at one side of the aforesaid axis, and a horizontal shaft entering one end portion of said member, and geared to the upper end of said vertical shaft.



1,506,654. DEVICE FOR REMOVING PNEUMATIC TIRES OF THE CLINCHER TYPE. ANDRÉ JULES MICHELIN, Clermont-Ferrand, France. Filed Dec. 1, 1922. Serial No. 604,350. 4 Claims. (Cl. 157—6.)

1. A tool for removing pneumatic tires comprising two hollow arms arranged to swing in the same plane about a pivot, a screw journaled in each arm, a pusher arm provided with a head adapted to engage the tire and slidably mounted in one of said arms and provided with a nut engaging said screw, and a stripper arm carrying a stripper head slidably mounted in the other of said pivoted arms and also provided with a nut adapted to engage the corresponding screw, with means for rotating either of said screws as desired.

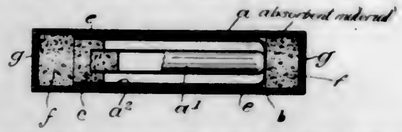
1,506,655. MECHANISM FOR TRUING AND DRESSING GRINDING WHEELS. JAMES F. MIRRIELEES, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Precision Truing Machine and Tool Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,888. 21 Claims. (Cl. 125—11.)

1. In mechanism for truing and dressing grinding wheels, the combination of a normally quiescent rotary abrading part for coaction with a rotary grinding wheel, a support for said rotary abrading part comprising a shank, a table comprising a guide and a rail, and a clamp comprising a bearing for said shank and clamping means, means for permitting adjustment of said shank in said bearing, said clamping means comprising a jaw for coaction with said guide and a movable jaw, a spring normally retracting said movable jaw, and a handle comprising a cam for clamping said movable jaw to said rail.

1,506,656. BUILDING CONSTRUCTION. WILLIAM MURPHY, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,321. 6 Claims. (Cl. 20—4.)

1. A wall construction comprising elongated vertically arranged interlocked relatively offset planks encased in outer and inner finishings to provide air spaces at the sides of said interlocked planks.

1,506,657. LUMBER-SORTING DEVICE. LEON NORDSTRÖM and KARL EINAR RUPERT LÖFGREN, Stockholm, Sweden. Filed July 26, 1922. Serial No. 577,637. 4 Claims. (Cl. 214—11.)



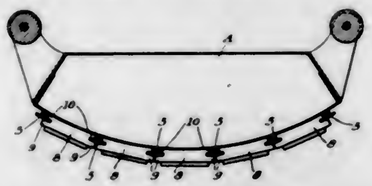
1. The combination with a lumber sorting plant comprising a sorting place, a plurality of collecting places or compartments, and endless conveyor chains running between said sorting place and said collecting places, of discharging devices at said collecting places, an operating device comprising rotary discs the number of which corresponds to the number of collecting places, movable teeth on said rotary discs, and means for actuating said discharging means by said teeth, substantially as and for the purpose set forth.

1,506,658. TELESCOPE. FRANK J. NOWAK, Washington, D. C. Filed May 27, 1922. Serial No. 564,104. 1 Claim. (Cl. 88—32.)

A telescope comprising a casing, a bearing member extending transversely of the casing and spaced from the ends thereof and provided with a central opening, a lens at one end of the casing and disposed axially of the bearing member openings, a tubular member extending from the other bearing member opening through the end of the casing, a lens at the inner end of the bearing member, threaded shafts disposed longitudinally of the casing and having their ends mounted for rotation in the bearing members, a frame disposed transversely between and engaging the threaded shafts, whereby rotation of the latter will move the frame longitudinally of the casing, a lens within the frame and means located within the casing between one end of the latter and the adjacent bearing member, whereby the shafts may be rotated.

1,506,659. DISTRIBUTOR-CONTAINER FOR HOLDING AND DIFFUSING DISINFECTANTS, DEODORANTS, AND THE LIKE. PATRICK S. O'DONNELL, London, England. Filed Nov. 17, 1923. Serial No. 675,314. 1 Claim. (Cl. 299—24.)

A dispensing container comprising an open ended tube of absorbent material, a puncturable container impervious to liquid, arranged in said tube and having an open end, a closure for said end and closures for the ends of said tube, said last named closures bearing against the ends of said puncturable container, and a puncturable inner container in the first named puncturable container and arranged with one end secured in the closure of the first named puncturable container.



1,506,660. GREASE CUP. DONALD P. ORDWAY, Battle Creek, Mich., assignor to American Stamping Co., Battle Creek, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Mar. 29, 1922. Serial No. 547,660. 5 Claims. (Cl. 184—48.)

2. A grease cup having interior integral protuberances, adjacent its inner upper edge formed by depressing portions of the metal of the cup at its upper edge and inner side thereby producing inwardly projecting protuberances at the bottom of the depression; a cover; and a locking member in the cover having a depending portion adapted to engage the protuberances to prevent casual unscrewing of the cover.

1,506,661. TYPE MEMBER FOR PRINTING STAMPS. WILLIAM J. PANNIER, Jr., Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Pannier Bros. Stamp Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 16, 1922. Serial No. 536,806. 3 Claims. (Cl. 101—380.)

1. A printing device comprising a frame having a type carrying face, a plurality of holding bars extending across said face, and resilient type blocks interposed between said bars, said blocks having grooves in the bar engaging edges thereof in which the bar is received, said grooves having a depth substantially equal to half the width of the bars, whereby the bar will be overlapped across substantially half its width by said type block and adjacent rows of type thereby have abutting edges, the distance between the bars being substantially greater than the width of the bars.

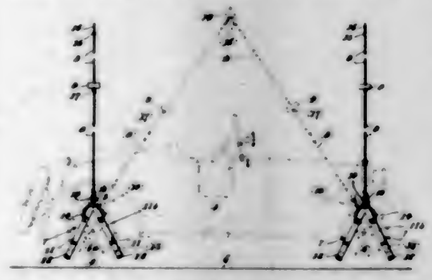
A shoe attachment comprising a heel receiving member, a horizontally disposed stud carried at the rear side of the heel receiving member, a toe receiving member, horizontally disposed studs carried by the toe receiving member and being disposed one of them at the forward end of the toe receiving member and another at the side of said member, an instep circumscribing strap connected with the forward portion of the heel receiving member, a heel strap connected at its end with the side portion of the instep circumscribing strap and passing through the rear portion of the heel receiving member and side straps connected at their forward ends with the toe receiving member and connected at their rear ends with the side portions of the instep circumscribing strap.

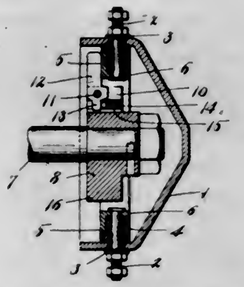
1,506,663. TREATMENT OF OXIDIZED ORES. WALTER GEORGE PERKINS, London, England, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Metals Production Company of North America, Incorporated, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 20, 1921. Serial No. 502,069. 13 Claims. (Cl. 75—17.)



1. A process for the treatment of oxidized ores which comprises imparting magnetic properties to the oxidized ore particles containing the desired metal by heating them in the presence of a compound of sulphur and a magnetizable metal in an atmosphere which will not react vigorously with the materials to remove sulphur rapidly substantially as set forth.

1,506,664. EYESHADE OR GLARESHIELD. WINFORD D. PICKARD, Norman, Okla. Filed Feb. 7, 1924. Serial No. 691,269. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—12.)

1. An eye shade comprising, a one-piece body portion of flexible material of substantially concavo-convex contour, a head strap secured to said body along the concave side thereof, and a resilient stiffening means along the convex marginal portion of said body, the ends thereof terminating forwardly of and out of contact with said head strap and having an inherent means for retaining the forward portion of the shade in upturned position before the face of a wearer.



1,506,665. AUTOMOBILE HOISTING APPARATUS. EDWARD TRAY, Jersey City, N. J. Filed Nov. 22, 1923. Serial No. 676,310. 4 Claims. (Cl. 294—78.)

1. A hoisting apparatus for automobiles, comprising a double hook adapted to be applied to each wheel and to engage the lower tread portion of the same at points spaced laterally on each side of its vertical axis, an arcuate loop carried by each double hook, separate slings for the front and the rear wheels having hooks slidably removably engaging the arcuate loops on said double hooks, and a spreader for each sling extending transversely of said automobile for preventing the slings from engaging the same.

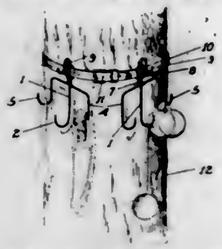
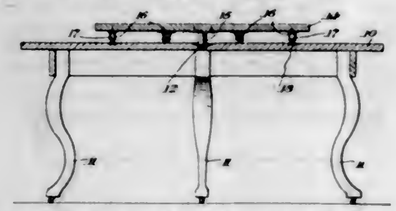
1,506,666. TIMER FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. LILLIAN L. RANDALL, Boston, Mass. Filed Jan. 9, 1920, Serial No. 350,318. Renewed June 21, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 200—24.)

1. A timer for internal combustion engines comprising a ring of insulating material, a series of fixed contact plates set into the side face of the ring with their faces flush with the face of the ring and each having a projection extending over the inner periphery of the ring, a post connected to each of said projections and extending radially through the ring, a rotating carrier concentric with the ring having a slotted lug at one side and a counter-balancing lug at the other side, a radially disposed contact finger pivotally mounted in the slot, and a spring mounted on the carrier pressing the contact finger in an axial direction against the side face of the ring and its inset contact plates.



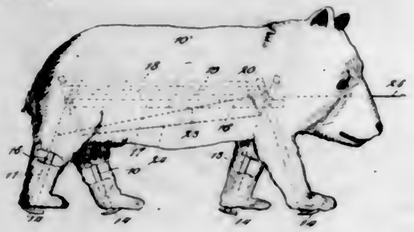
1,506,667. DUMP. CHARLES BRUSTER ROARK, Elbert, W. Va., assignor of one-half to Posey G. McBride, Elbert, W. Va. Filed Nov. 20, 1922. Serial No. 602,100. 6 Claims. (Cl. 214—52.)



1. A car dumping apparatus comprising a normally inclined platform mounted for rotation, means carried by the opposite faces of the platform for supporting the car thereon, means for holding the platform stationary, said car being turned one-half revolution by the weight supported thereby, subsequent to the release of the platform, stops associated with the platform projecting the movement of a loaded car as it passes upon the platform and holding the car in its longitudinal displacement, said stops being susceptible of sliding movement, means for retracting the stops to an inactive position and operable incident to the rotation of the platform, and means for projecting the stops to an active position just prior to the proper positioning of a loaded car thereon.

1,506,668. UTILITY HOOK CLUSTER. SAMUEL S. ROSE and SUSAN L. SWORE, San Jose, Calif. Filed Oct. 15, 1923. Serial No. 668,533. 2 Claims. (Cl. 248—22.)

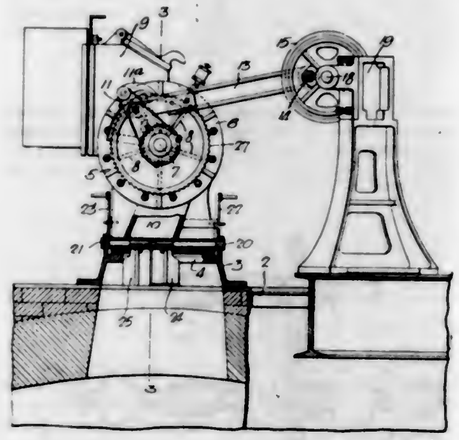
2. A hook cluster comprising a central wire having a hook on one end, wires to the sides of the central wire, and hooks on the lower ends of said side wires, the latter being bent toward the central wire and being then wrapped around the latter, said central wire being turnable in said wrappings whereby to enable the hook thereon to assume different positions relative to the other hooks.



1,506,669. SERVING TABLE. HILLAND BORDEN SARISTON, West Asheville, N. C. Filed Dec. 23, 1922. Serial No. 608,763. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—26.)

A device of the character described comprising a circular table provided centrally of its top with a flanged socket member let thereinto with the flange seating flush with the table top, a circular track arranged in concentric relation to said socket and let into the table top whereby to be flush therewith, an auxiliary table of circular formation carrying a centrally located depending trunnion rotatably engaged within said socket, a plurality of wheeled brackets on the underside of the auxiliary table riding upon said track, said auxiliary table being removable from engagement upon the main table, in combination with means for closing said socket whereby to make the entire table top flush for use independently of the auxiliary table.

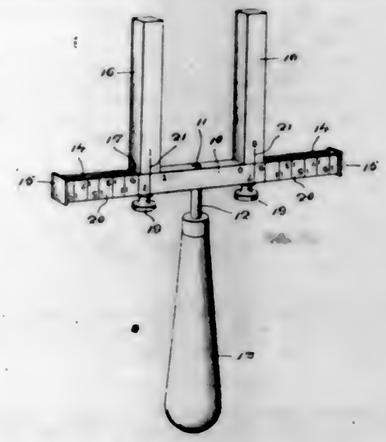
1,506,670. WALKING ANIMAL TOY. RYUJI SATO, New York, and UMEKICHI ITO, Bronx, N. Y. Filed Apr. 22, 1921. Serial No. 463,553. 3 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



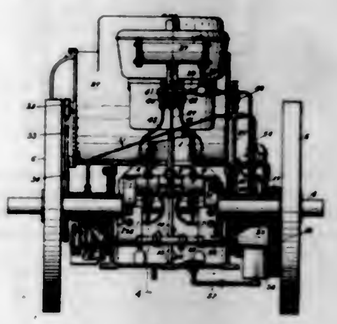
1. A toy animal comprising a body portion, a framework secured in said body portion, a pair of front leg members pivoted at one end of said framework, a pair of rear leg members pivoted at the opposite end of said framework, a link for each rear leg member and pivotally connected thereto and to the opposite front leg member, a double crank member pivoted to said framework, means connecting each of the cranks of said crank member with a respective one of said rear leg members, a manipulating device connected to one of said cranks and a spring connected to the other of said cranks.

1,506,671. ELECTRICAL-CABLE SOCKET OR LUG. EWALD SCHARPENBERG, Wetter-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Dec. 22, 1920. Serial No. 432,503. 6 Claims. (Cl. 173—269.)

6. A cable terminal, comprising two sleeves, each formed with a cable receiving opening, a portion which is semi-cylindrical, and the remaining portion is of larger radius and tapered from end to end, and a projection formed on each sleeve having an interior semi-cylindrical surface coaxial with and continuing from the semi-cylindrical portion of the opening in the sleeve and an outer surface concentric with the inner and tapered from end to end, whereby when interengaged the projection on one sleeve will fit in the portion of the other sleeve having the larger radius and the semi-cylindrical surface thereof will cooperate with the similar portion of the sleeve to form a cylindrical opening therethrough.



1,506,672. FEEDING DEVICE FOR GAS PRODUCERS. CHARLES A. SCHRANZ, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Walter Wood, trading as K. D. Wood & Company, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Nov. 4, 1921. Serial No. 512,790. 2 Claims. (Cl. 214—35.)

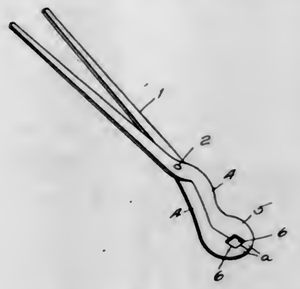


1. The combination in a gas producer, of a rotating body portion; a fixed top plate having a feed opening therein; a feeding device for feeding material through the opening in the top plate; and two horizontal shafts, each having a handle and each having a depending deflector so that, on turning the shafts, the deflectors can be adjusted in order to distribute the fuel over the fuel bed of the producer as the body portion rotates.

1,506,673. BATTERY-PLATE-BURNING GUIDE. HERBERT W. SEABLOM, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 18, 1923. Serial No. 633,038. 1 Claim. (Cl. 113—99.)

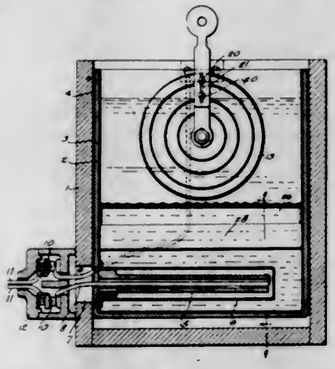
A guide of the character described comprising an elongated supporting bar provided with a handle, and a pair of jaws arranged in spaced parallel relation and slidably adjustable along said bar, the bar being formed with slots, and said jaws being formed with reduced extensions fitting within said slots, said extensions being formed with threaded holes, and clamping screws passing through the slots and engaged within said holes, the jaws being intended for straddling engagement upon a group of a selected number of storage battery plates.

1,506,674. AIR COMPRESSOR. CHARLES BELMONT SEGNER, Shippensburg, Pa., assignor to Domestic Engine and Pump Company, Shippensburg, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 18, 1922. Serial No. 561,952. 2 Claims. (Cl. 230—32.)



1. An air compressor comprising a single pump cylinder, a pair of cylinders of an internal combustion engine of the four-cycle type alternately firing, pistons in the pump and engine cylinders, and connecting rods for the pistons of the engine cylinders and the piston of the pump connected to a common crank pin, the timing of the valves and ignition of the internal combustion engines being so coordinated relative to the effective compression strokes of the air compressor that the power stroke of each piston of the engine will take place simultaneously with the effective compression strokes of the air compressor piston.

1,506,675. TONGS. ALFRED B. SEEPMANN, Lake Crystal, Minn. Filed Apr. 28, 1923. Serial No. 635,300. 4 Claims. (Cl. 81—3.)



1. A tool of the class described comprising a pair of opposed jaws, means for connecting the jaws for relative swinging movement, the opposed edges of the jaws being straight and having close contact when in closed position, the opposed portions of the jaws being provided with duplicate recesses, the side walls of the recesses being perpendicularly related to the opposed edges of the jaws and the base walls of the recesses being parallel to said opposed edges of the jaws, and means for operating the jaws.

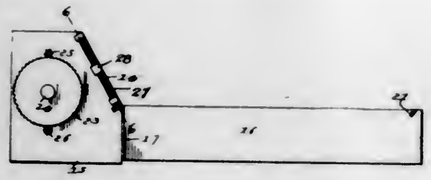
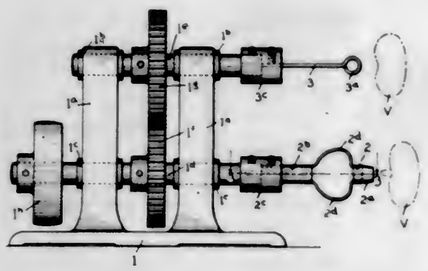
1,506,676. WATER HEATER. JOHN SHAHAN, Gadsden, Ala. Filed Jan. 12, 1924. Serial No. 685,915. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—44.)



1. A device of the character described, comprising a casing, a tank located in the casing and having a V-shaped bottom, an electric heating element in the lower end of the V-shaped bottom, a thermostatic element in the tank, and electric circuit closing means between the thermostatic element, the heating element and the source of electricity.

1,506,677. PRODUCTION OF COLORED PICTURES ON GLASS SURFACES. ALBERT EDWARD SHIPTON, CAROLINE EMILY SHIPTON, and AMY MARIA SHIPTON, Birmingham, England. Filed Oct. 18, 1923. Serial No. 669,410. 1 Claim. (Cl. 41—22.)

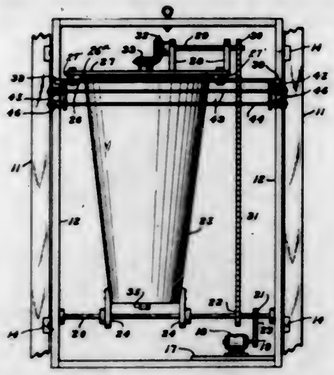


A colored picture comprising a transparent glass sheet, a view or subject fixed upon the back of said sheet so as to leave definite transparent spaces forming material parts of the view or subject, butterfly wings applied to the transparent spaces and to the back of the glass sheet to give thereto color effects, and a backing secured to said plate behind said view or subject and said butterfly wings substantially as described.

1,506,678. ROAD GUIDE. HERBERT J. SLOWEY, Portage, Wis. Filed Jan. 27, 1922. Serial No. 532,146. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—95.)

In a route indicating apparatus for tourists, the combination with a casing including a progressive route indicating mechanism, of a spring roller mounted in the casing and carrying a map, a cross rod permanently fixed to the terminal marginal edge of the map and provided with extended ends, and map extending means consisting of a pair of arms hingedly mounted upon the casing and provided on their upper edges adjacent their terminal extremities with seats for the reception of the extended ends of the cross rod whereby, upon rotating the cross rod, the map may be wound manually upon the rod progressively as the route mechanism is progressed manually, said arms being foldable in collapsed positions adjacent the casing when the map is not in use.

1,506,679. CORING AND SEEDING DEVICE. GEORGE LOWELL SMITH, Terre Haute, Ind., assignor to Kehoe Preserving Co., Clay City, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Apr. 21, 1923. Serial No. 633,758. 6 Claims. (Cl. 146—52.)



1. A coring tool comprising a body portion, a cutting portion, and spaced arms connecting said body and cutting portions, said arms being bowed outwardly, and the portions thereof adjacent the cutting portion being substantially perpendicular to the axis of said tool.

1,506,680. CONCRETE-MIXING DEVICE. HARRY M. SMITH, Marcus Hook, Pa. Filed Sept. 11, 1922. Serial No. 587,477. 5 Claims. (Cl. 83—73.)

1. A concrete mixing machine comprising a movable frame-work, a drive-shaft rotatably mounted therein, a concrete mixing and pouring mechanism supported from said drive-shaft, and tiltable upon the drive-shaft as an axis, said mechanism extending at right angles to said drive-shaft and being provided with an outlet opening at the end adjacent to the drive-shaft, and a motor mounted in said frame-work and operatively connected to said drive-shaft and movable in unison with said frame-work.

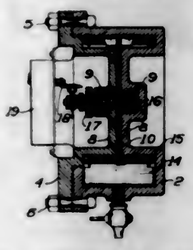
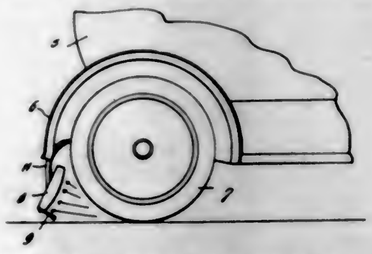
1,506,681. ATTACHABLE ELECTRIC SWITCH FOR CONNECTER PLUGS. THEODORE C. SMITH, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 19, 1923. Serial No. 613,611. 12 Claims. (Cl. 200—51.)



10. In a device of the character stated, an electric switch, and means to universally attach it to different connecter plugs which in turn are adapted to be detachably mounted directly on electrical appliances.

1,506,682. DEMOUNTABLE RIM. CHARLES NEVILLE SOWDEN, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Jan. 23, 1922. Serial No. 531,193. 2 Claims. (Cl. 301—35.)

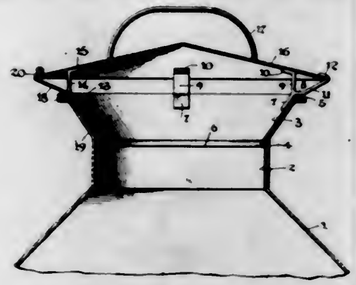


1. A demountable rim, comprising a pair of flanged rings having their meeting edges formed with narrow slots spaced at regular intervals a greater distance apart than their width, the metal between the slots having a part thereof depressed forming uniform spaced circumferential depressions, and the portions between the depressed and raised portions of one ring entering the slots in the other ring.

1,506,683. FLUID METER. WERNER I. STAAF, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, of one-half to Lula Harrington Tyler, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Mar. 2, 1920, Serial No. 362,853. Renewed Jan. 26, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 73—37.)

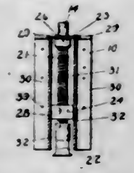
A fluid meter, comprising a casing composed of separable members, hollow circular abutments extending inwardly from each of said members and forming bearings, a disk rotatably mounted in said bearings, said members forming two chambers of unequal diameters each partially surrounding said abutments, swinging blades pivotally carried by said disk for rotation in said chambers, said blades extending radially of the disk when in the chamber of larger diameter and substantially concentric with the disk during rotation in the chamber of smaller diameter, inlet and outlet connections respectively communicating with the opposite ends of the chamber of larger diameter, a shaft carried by said disk and extending outwardly through one of said hollow abutments, an indicator, and means located within one of said hollow abutments and connecting said shaft to said abutments.

1,506,684. DUST COLLECTOR FOR AUTOMOBILES. EUGENE B. STAPLES, Eureka Springs, Ark. Filed May 24, 1923. Serial No. 641,030. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—84.)



A dust collector adapted to be applied to a vehicle comprising a box having converging opposite sides, means for supporting the box in an inclined position, the box being provided at its under face and in the vicinity of its side and end walls with elongated slots, a suction pipe penetrating the upper side of the box, and bristles carried at the lower end of the box and being downwardly and forwardly inclined below the lower slot in the under face of the box.

1,506,685. SANITARY MILK AND CREAM CAN COVER. ERVIN R. STEMMANN, Goodhue, Minn. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 654,430. 3 Claims. (Cl. 220—44.)



2. A milk can cover including a foraminous strainer element comprising, a body portion adapted to be fitted into the neck of a milk can, vertically extending supports carried by said body portion at its upper edge, outwardly and upwardly extending arms adjacent certain of said supports and terminating in an inturned hook, a lid of greater circumference than said body portion removably carried upon said supports and engaged by said hooks, and a catch carried by said body portion for engaging said lid for retaining the same in position.

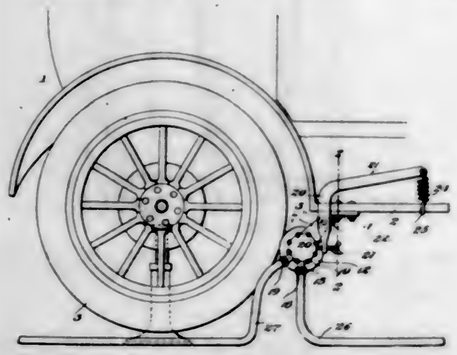
1,506,686. ROLLER AWNING. JOHN H. STONE, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Feb. 18, 1922. Serial No. 537,508. 2 Claims. (Cl. 188—110.)



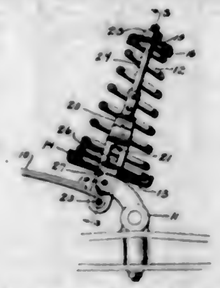
1. In a roller awning installation including a roller, operated by a rotatable shaft, a threaded rod connected to and in line with said shaft, a nut on said rod, a two part casing enclosing said rod and nut, one part when removed permitting rotation of said nut upon or with said rod and when replaced preventing such movement.

1,506,687. BOTTLE-MAKING MACHINE. SAMUEL G. STUCKEY, Warren, Pa. Filed July 20, 1920. Serial No. 397,710. 12 Claims. (Cl. 49—5.)

3. In a bottle blank-forming machine, a parison mold and a blow mold, a neck former mounted in a vertical alignment with, and closing one end of said parison mold, a baffle head associated with said blow mold and closing one end thereof, a conveyer belt arranged between said parison mold and neck former and travelling from the parison mold to the blow mold, a plurality of neck molds secured in spaced relation on said conveyer belt, plate members positioned adjacent the other ends respectively of said parison and blow molds, means for admitting fluid under pressure through said plates into said molds, the one of said plates associated with said parison mold being formed with a filling opening having a shearing edge, and means to move said plate to alternately place the filling opening and the fluid pressure supply in communication with the chamber of said parison mold.

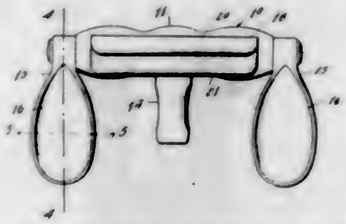
1,506,688. PUMP. ENOCH A. SWANSON, Lincoln, Nebr. Filed Dec. 23, 1921. Serial No. 524,412. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—218).

1. A pump including a horizontally arranged supporting element disposed in close proximity to the drive element, an arm fixed to the supporting element, a pump casing carried by the arm and having spaced projections extending transversely across its periphery, a rotor in the pump, a drive element carried thereby and arranged exteriorly of the casing and adapted to be engaged by the drive element, an arm pivoted to the first mentioned arm, and provided with a set screw adapted to engage any one of the projections to hold the casing against movement and to hold the drive element against the driving element, and resilient means connected with the arm and connected with the stationary object to urge the casing toward the driving element.



1,506,689. PLUMB LEVEL. HARRY A. TALLANT, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Dec. 31, 1921. Serial No. 526,265. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—221.)

1. A device of the character described comprising a casing open at one side, a spider arranged in the casing at its closed end, an annulus superimposed on the spider, a transparent disk held in the annulus, retaining elements passing through the annulus and spider, a stub shaft having one end journaled in the spider and its opposite end journaled in the transparent disk, indicating elements at one end of the shaft and a weighted arm fixed to the opposite end of said shaft.



1,506,690. SHOCK ABSORBER. JOHN VANDIVER TAYLOR, Shongaloo, La. Filed Apr. 21, 1923. Serial No. 633,664. 3 Claims. (Cl. 267—29.)

1. In a shock absorber, the combination with a coil spring, of a circular seat for one end of the spring having ears on its obverse face, an attaching bolt secured in said ears and adapted to connect the device to a bracket or other support, a similar seat for the other end of the spring, a yoke having a stem secured to the second-mentioned seat, said arms having longitudinal slots through which said attaching bolt passes, a second attaching bolt passing through the ends of the arms, and a stop member secured to the first-mentioned attaching bolt to limit the movement of the yoke and the consequent compression of the spring, and also serving to separate the arms of the yoke from the bracket.

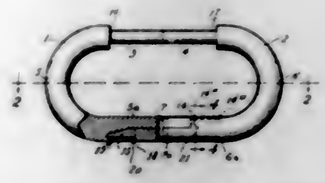
1,506,691. SPIGOT FIXTURE AND SOAP DISH FOR BATHTUBS. RALPH W. THOMAS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jun. 26, 1924. Serial No. 688,809. 5 Claims. (Cl. 277—18.)

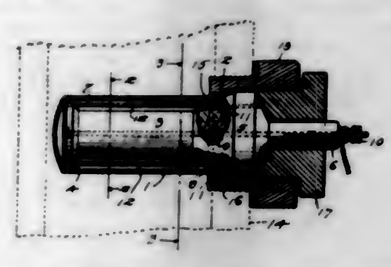
1. A water supply fixture for bath tubs and the like having a control valve, an operating member therefor depending therefrom, and said member having its opposite surfaces dished to substantially conform to the opposite surfaces of the human toe to facilitate operation thereby.

1,506,692. CAR DOOR-LOCKING DEVICE. LAMBERT J. TILLMAN, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Feb. 27, 1922. Serial No. 539,555. 6 Claims. (Cl. 105—308.)



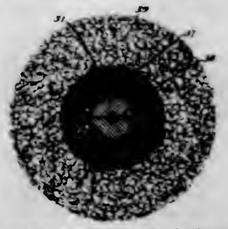
1. A locking device for drop doors comprising a plate, a link swingingly mounted in said plate, a locking bar rotatably mounted on said plate and when in a horizontal position straddling the side arms of said link to thereby prevent the swinging of said link, a bracket adapted to be secured to a door and said link fitting under said bracket for supporting said door in its closed position.

1,506,693. IRON-REENFORCED SHOE HEEL. ALFREDO CARLO TIRAPANI, Bologna, Italy. Filed Jan. 21, 1920. Serial No. 352,995. 5 Claims. (Cl. 36—74.)



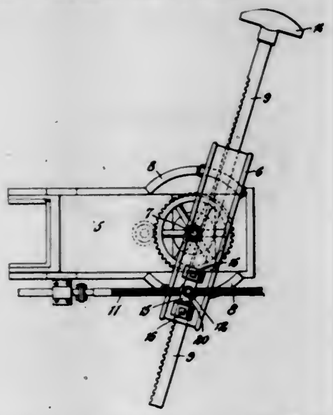
1. A shoe heel protecting rim consisting of nails made up of a head bar to be arranged along the heel edge, shanks perpendicular thereto, and having the points so bent as to enter into the heel, whereby when a plurality of said nails are arranged along a heel edge said heads form a protecting rim therefor and said shanks extend radially toward the center of the heel to protect the tread surface thereof.

1,506,694. MILK-CAN HANDLE. FRED T. TOPPEY, Watertown, Conn. Filed July 5, 1921. Serial No. 482,579. 5 Claims. (Cl. 16—126.)



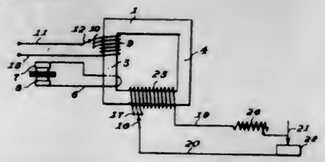
1. A two-part bauble for milk cans and the like, comprising a pair of loop forming members, each of said members having a grip section having a flat side and a pivot section, said grip sections being secured together at their flat sides in rigid overlapping relation, and said pivot sections being adapted to engage within a hinge bracket secured to a milk can.

1,506,695. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE FUEL HEATER. JOHN D. TYLER, Clarksville, Tenn. Filed Mar. 9, 1923. Serial No. 624,059. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—38.)



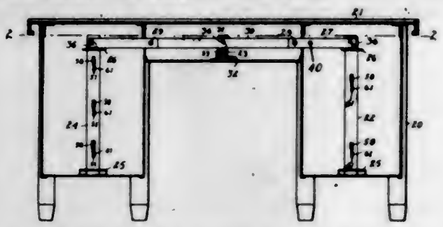
1. An electric heater comprising a metallic shell open and flared at one end, a core of insulating material removably fitted within the shell and having outer enlargements in its length with the parts comprised between such enlargements spaced from the shell and core, the enlargement at the outer end of the core having its rear face tapered to conform to the flare at the open end of the shell, a hollow nut receiving the shell and core and having an end constricted and tappered to conform to the flare of the shell, and a jam nut for securing the core and shell within the hollow nut.

1,506,696. SHOE-CLEANING DEVICE. ROBERT WALSER, Union Hill, N. J. Filed Mar. 23, 1922. Serial No. 545,956. 6 Claims. (Cl. 15—97.)



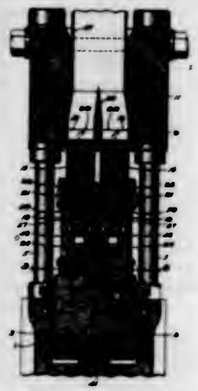
4. In a shoe cleaning device, a shaft, split spools for mounting on the shaft, friction members for mounting on the spools, and buffing members for mounting on the spools over said friction members, the buffing members being clamped between the sections of the split spools.

1,506,697. FLEXIBLE NUT. SAMUEL W. WARMAN, Uniontown, Pa. Filed Apr. 7, 1924. Serial No. 704,896. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—40.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination of an oscillatory member having a ball and socket bearing at one side of its center of oscillation, a screw disposed in the plane of oscillation and in threaded engagement with the ball, and a pin secured in a position substantially perpendicular to the plane of oscillation and substantially perpendicular to said screw, said ball having a recess with which said pin engages to prevent the ball from rotating when the screw is rotated.

1,506,698. COMBINED SPOT OR BUTT AND ARC WELDER. CHARLES B. WATERS, Montclair, N. J. Filed Feb. 4, 1924. Serial No. 690,491. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—8.)

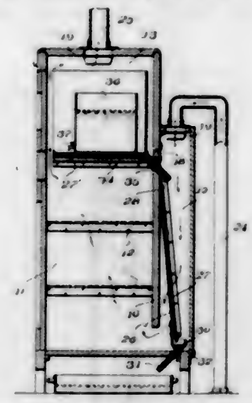


3. In combination, a metallic spot or butt welding frame work, a transformer closely associated with said frame work comprising a closed magnetic core, a common primary winding, a spot or butt welding secondary winding, and an arc welding secondary winding; said transformer parts being so proportioned and arranged that during arc welding operations no exaggerated flux leakage occurs from said transformer core into said frame work; and arc regulating means connected in series with said arc welding secondary winding.

1,506,699. LOCKING MECHANISM. WILLIAM W. WATSON, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed Nov. 3, 1922. Serial No. 598,958. 5 Claims. (Cl. 45—94.)

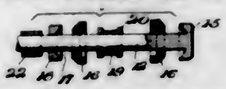
1. In a desk having a vertical series of drawers and a center drawer, locking mechanism for functioning upon all said drawers simultaneously comprising a plurality of vertical strips, latches on each strip arranged to engage and lock each drawer, a horizontal bar, means connecting said bar to said strips, an aperture in said bar, a reciprocatory rod having a horizontally bent inner end which end rests in said aperture whereby the reciprocation of said rod causes the bar to reciprocate at right angles thereto.

1,506,700. PRESS. GEORGE E. WHITNEY, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The International Pavement Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Apr. 14, 1922. Serial No. 552,487. 76 Claims. (Cl. 25—84.)



1. In a fluid actuated press, a cylinder, and a plurality of material operating rams in said cylinder and having surfaces in contacting relation.

75. In a mold press, means providing closely adjacent mold chambers, a mold plunger for compressing material in each chamber, and fluid pressure mechanism comprising a single press cylinder for operating all of said plungers.



1,506,701. REFRIGERATOR. CHARLES P. WHITTIER, Dalhart, Tex. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 650,079. 1 Claim. (Cl. 62—53.)

A refrigerator comprising a food compartment and a chamber arranged above the compartment and communicating therewith adjacent the front wall thereof, a cold air compartment arranged at the rear of the food compartment and communicating therewith adjacent the lower end thereof, the top of said compartment and the top of the refrigerator having openings therein, a ventilating pipe rising from the opening in the top of the refrigerator, a cold air supply pipe communicating with the cold air compartment through the opening in the top thereof, means for closing said openings subsequent to the removal of said pipes, a piece of fabric arranged within the cold air compartment and extending diagonally across the same, a water container arranged within said chamber, a faucet carried by the container to admit the water into the chamber, a drain pipe leading from the chamber into the cold air compartment for conveying the water onto the fabric to maintain the latter in a wet condition and means establishing and controlling communication for the circulation of air between the said chamber and the cold air compartment.

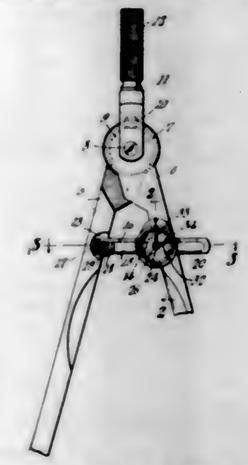
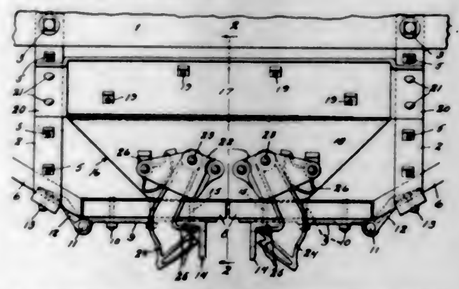
1,506,702. PUMP PLUNGER. FRANK WILCOM and EDWARD J. HALEY, Okmulgee, Okla. Filed Jan. 21, 1924. Serial No. 687,572. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—109.)



3. A plunger for cross head water pumps comprising a rod having its forward end provided with a head, a pair of cups mounted on said rod, a spacer mounted between said cups, an annulus engaging one of said cups, a tubular liner mounted for free longitudinal movement on said rod and engaging said annulus, and a nut threaded on said plunger and adapted to contact with the rear end of said tubular member for holding the tubular member in cup expanding position.

1,506,703. SHOCK ABSORBER. NOBLE M. WILLIAMS, Vallejo, Calif. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,584. 2 Claims. (Cl. 280—96.2.)

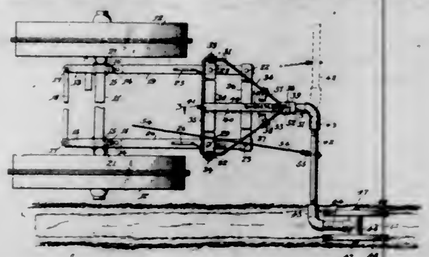


1. In a shock absorber a body including a shell portion and a laterally extending knuckle pivoted within the yoke at the end of the front axle of a vehicle, said body having an arm for connection with the steering arm connecting rod and steering rod, the shell being formed with a slot, a disk within the intermediate portion of the shell, an angular shaped arm member including an upstanding rod portion slidable through the disk and carrying a plunger and further including a laterally extending spindle portion extending through said slot and serving as a mounting for the front wheel, and a spring within the upper portion of the shell bearing against the closed upper end thereof and against said plunger.

1,506,704. CALIPER. JAMES C. WILLIAMSON, Cordele, Ga. Filed July 16, 1923. Serial No. 651,854. 3 Claims. (Cl. 33—148.)

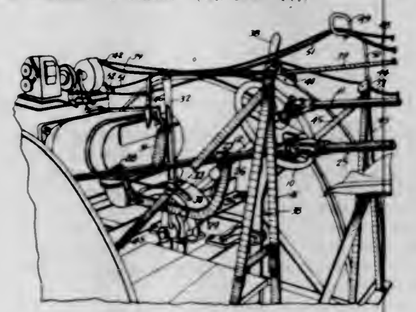
1. In a measuring instrument, pivoted leg members, a dial supporting housing pivotally supported by one of the leg members, a bar having an elongated opening, pivotally supported by the opposed leg member, teeth formed along one wall of the elongated opening, indicating hands supported in the housing and adapted to move over the dial, and means associated with the indicating hands and engaged by the teeth of the bar for rotating the hands over the dial.

1,506,705. CAR-DOOR DEVICE. WILLIAM E. WINE, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Nov. 16, 1923. Serial No. 675,098. 12 Claims. (Cl. 105—247.)



2. A railway car having a hopper including a downwardly and inwardly sloping side wall, a door adapted to close the bottom of the hopper, said door lying approximately in a horizontal plane when in closed position, and a supporting member having a portion secured against the outer face of said sloping hopper wall and having another portion arranged substantially at right angles to the plane of the closed door, and a door supporting mechanism pivotally attached to said last mentioned portion and adapted for supporting cooperation with the door.

1,506,706. STEERING ATTACHMENT FOR TRACTORS. FRED L. WILLRODT, Rijon Hills, S. Dak. Filed July 17, 1923. Serial No. 652,123. 4 Claims. (Cl. 97—49.)



1. An apparatus of the class described comprising a frame formed in spaced side rails adapted to be coupled to swing with the spindle arms and forward wheels of a motor driven vehicle, a coupling member pivotally united to the free ends of said rails, a yoke frame mounted to swing vertically relatively to said side rails, hangers depending from said yoke frame, and guide wheels mounted for rotation in said hangers.

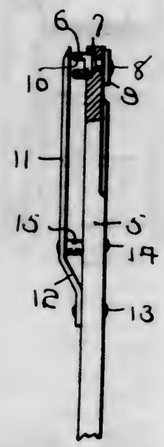
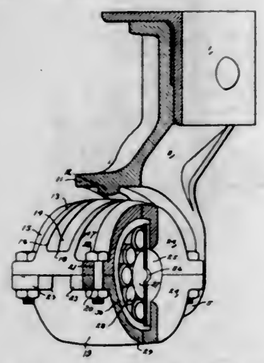
1,506,707. TRACTOR CONTROL DEVICE. LOUIS W. WITRY, Waterloo, Iowa, and ROBERT C. LIVESAY, Moline, Ill., assignors to Deere & Company, Moline, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Dec. 2, 1922. Serial No. 604,565. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—77.)



The combination with a tractor and an object to be drawn, of means to operate the gear shift lever of the tractor, said means comprising a rod rotatably and slidably mounted on said object, a casing through which the gear shift lever extends, an inverted arch shaped support rigidly mounted on the casing, a rod rotatably and slidably journaled in bearings on the arch, a cardan joint connecting said rods, an arm rigidly secured on the second mentioned rod and extending at an upward inclination therefrom and connected to said lever whereby said lever is rocked laterally or longitudinally of the tractor by operation of said rods.

1,506,708. OIL TANK. JOHN A. WOLFE, Tulsa, Okla. Filed May 29, 1923. Serial No. 642,285. 7 Claims. (Cl. 220—85.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination of a tank, a casing having its lower end within the tank and terminating near the bottom thereof and having an independently removable closure at its upper end, and a supply pipe having valve controlled branches leading into the body of the tank and the casing respectively.

1,506,709. CAN OPENER. JOSEPH T. WOODS, Hammett, Idaho. Filed Jan. 5, 1921. Serial No. 435,146. 2 Claims. (Cl. 30—3.)

1. Notice of Cancellation.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, Aug. 22, 1924.

Camthol Company, Portland, Oreg., its assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

A cancellation proceeding has been instituted by this Office upon the application of the Camthol Company (a Corporation of Delaware), 420 Hall Street E., Savannah, Ga., to effect the cancellation of the trade-mark registration of Waugh Medicine Co., of No. 300 A Street, Grangeville, Idaho, No. 97,515, dated June 9, 1914. The records of this Office show that the Camthol Company, Portland, Oreg., is the assignee of said Waugh Medicine Co. The notice of such proceeding sent by registered mail to the respondent, the Camthol Company, Portland, Oreg., having been returned by the post office as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Camthol Company, Portland, Oreg., its assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the cancellation will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

Interference Notices.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, Aug. 19, 1924.

Alexander Rechnitzer, his assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application for patent of William S. Gubelmann, 773 Richmond Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., and patent granted March 14, 1922, No. 1,409,575, to Alexander Rechnitzer, 140 St. Botolph Street, Boston, Mass., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to said Rechnitzer at the said address having been returned by the post office as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Rechnitzer, his assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

KARL FENNING, Acting Commissioner.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, Aug. 25, 1924.

The Royal Manufacturing Co., its assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference has been declared by this Office between Remy E. Stoffel, 2868 Lemp Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered September 4, 1894, No. 25,211, to The Royal Manufacturing Co., 527 North Cherry Street, Lancaster, Pa. The Office having been unable to secure service upon The Royal Manufacturing Co., notice is hereby given that unless The Royal Manufacturing Co., its assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

KARL FENNING, Acting Commissioner.

1,486,547.—Hugh W. Sanford, Knoxville, Tenn. RAILWAY CARS. Patent dated March 11, 1924. Disclaimer filed July 17, 1924, by the patentee.

Hereby adds to said specification the following disclaiming paragraph:

I am aware that such limited structural channel end sills as are shown by the following recited Letters Patent of the United States are old: No. 731,733, granted to John McE. Ames, June 23, 1903; No. 752,685, granted to George I. King, Feb. 28, 1904; No. 1,268,344, granted to Charles A. Griffith, June 4, 1918; and No. 1,426,729, granted to Charles A. Griffith, Aug. 22, 1922. Hence it is to be understood that the following claims are not to be interpreted so broadly as to include such structural channel end sills; that in the claims such words as "plate metal channel member" mean an end sill member formed by bending or folding plate metal to have ample flanges adapted to the functions described by this specification and absent from the end sills of said Letters Patent.

ADVERSE DECISIONS IN INTERFERENCE.

In interferences involving the indicated claims of the following patents final decisions have been rendered that the respective patentees were not the first inventors with respect to the claims listed:

Pat. 1,396,153, F. H. Wittern, Weather-stripping for vehicles, decided July 9, 1924, claims 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Pat. 1,462,581, A. R. Schmidt, Valve-stem carbon remover, decided July 28, 1924, claims 1, 2, and 4.

DECISIONS IN PATENT AND TRADE-MARK CASES.

Supreme Court of the United States.

TOLEDO SCALE COMPANY v. THE COMPUTING SCALE COMPANY. FIDELITY & DEPOSIT COMPANY OF MARYLAND AND UNITED STATES FIDELITY AND GUARANTY COMPANY v. THE COMPUTING SCALE COMPANY AND TOLEDO SCALE COMPANY.

Decided April 9, 1923.

1. JURISDICTION OF COURT—CERTIORARI—DELAY IN APPLYING THEREFOR.

Under the act of September 6, 1916, the Supreme Court of the United States has no jurisdiction to review on certiorari the merits of a final decree entered by the circuit court of appeals more than three months before the certiorari was applied for.

2. APPLICATIONS FOR REOPENING CASE—NEWLY-DISCOVERED EVIDENCE—DISCRETION OF THE COURT.

Applications made to the circuit court of appeals after it had affirmed a decree upholding a patent and ordering an accounting, and renewed upon the appeal from the accounting, whereby the defendant sought to reopen the case upon the ground of newly-discovered evidence of prior discovery, manufacture, sale, and use of the invention, were addressed to the sound discretion of the court and properly overruled where the failure to discover the evidence in time for the original hearing in the district court was due to the applicant's lack of diligence.

3. SETTING ASIDE DECREE—FRAUD.

To justify setting aside a decree for fraud, extrinsic or intrinsic, it must appear that the fraud charged prevented the party complaining from making a full and fair defense.

4. SUIT IN ANOTHER COURT TO ENJOIN EXECUTION OF DECREE—FRAUD—SILENCE CONCERNING EVIDENCE WITHIN THE KNOWLEDGE OF PARTY SUING.

A party suing on a patent is under no duty to furnish his opponent evidence of an anticipation of the invention; nor does his silence concerning such evidence, unaccompanied by acts preventing the opponent from finding and availing himself of it, constitute such a fraud as will sustain a suit to enjoin execution of a decree enforcing the patent.

5. SAME—SAME—MATTER ALREADY CONSIDERED BY COURT ISSUING DECREE.

A decree of a district court enjoining obedience to a decree of a circuit court of appeals of another circuit upon an issue and evidence of fraud, which, except for immaterial adjuncts of malice and conspiracy, had been presented to and rejected by the latter court as a basis for reopening the decree, Held an unwarranted review of that court's discretion and not a decree founded on extrinsic fraud.

6. DILIGENCE IN DISCOVERING AND PRESENTING EVIDENCE REQUIRED.

The principle requiring due diligence in discovering and presenting evidence to avoid protraction of litigation can not be set aside to avoid hardship in a particular case.

7. INJUNCTION HINDERING SURETIES FROM COMPLIANCE WITH DECREE.

The fact that the sureties on a supersedeas bond in a circuit court of appeals and the banks with which their principal made deposits for their indemnification have been erroneously enjoined from complying with that court's decree by a district court of another circuit does not relieve them from obedience to a proper and final order of the former court directing summary judgment against them. Their remedy is by appeal from the decree of the district court.

8. WRITS NOT SPECIFICALLY PROVIDED FOR BY STATUTE.

Under Judicial Code, section 262, the circuit court of appeals has power to issue all writs not specifically provided for by statute which may be necessary to the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

9. EXECUTION OF DECREE—INJUNCTION TO PREVENT SUIT IN ANOTHER JURISDICTION.

To protect the execution of its decree, the circuit court of appeals may direct the district court to enjoin a party from prosecuting a suit in another jurisdiction.

10. CONTEMPT OF COURT—SUIT IN ANOTHER JURISDICTION TO ENJOIN SURETIES.

A defeated party who seeks by a suit in another jurisdiction to enjoin the sureties on his supersedeas bond and his opponent from executing a decree of the circuit court of appeals is guilty of contempt of that court, which it may punish by directing the district court to enter a summary decree for expenses occasioned by such injunction suit and a reasonable attorney's fee.

ON writs of certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

This case comes here by writs of certiorari granted to the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Seventh Circuit to review the proceedings of that court in enforcement of a final decree in a suit to enjoin infringement of a patent and for an accounting of profits. The patent had expired pending the litigation, but the accounting resulted in a decree of the District Court for Northern Illinois for profits of more than $400,000 in favor of the Computing Scale Company against the Toledo Scale Company. The circuit court of appeals, which had sustained the patent (208 Fed. 410) affirmed the decree for profits (279 Fed. 648), but stayed the mandate to permit an application to this Court for a writ of certiorari, which was denied January 9, 1922 (257 U. S. 657). On the same day, the Toledo Company, a corporation of New Jersey, filed a bill in the District Court for the Northern District of Ohio against the Computing Company, a corporation of Ohio, to enjoin it from enforcing the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Seventh Circuit on the ground that it was obtained by fraud. The Computing Scale Company filed an answer raising first a special plea to the jurisdiction and then responding on the merits denying fraud and pleading res judicata. The bill also made parties defendant the sureties on the supersedeas bond in the circuit court of appeals, the Fidelity Deposit Company and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, both corporations of Maryland, as well as three Toledo banks, citizens of Ohio, which held money deposited to the credit of the surety companies by the Toledo Company as indemnity, and asked that they all be enjoined from in any way satisfying or aiding to satisfy the decree. The Computing Company then filed in the circuit court of appeals a petition for a rule against the Toledo Company to show cause why it should not be enjoined from maintaining the bill in Ohio and why a summary decree should not issue against the sureties. Pending a hearing as to this rule, the Ohio court granted a temporary injunction restraining the Computing Scale Company, and the sureties and the banks as prayed by the Toledo Company. The circuit court of appeals thereafter heard the petition for the rule to which the Toledo Company had made answer, in which by way of exhibit to its averments it set up as a defense the complete record in the injunction suit in Ohio. The circuit court of appeals then made the order which is here for review. It reads as follows:

We now receive from the Computing Company the certified copy of the Supreme Court's order denying Toledo Company's petition for writ of certiorari, and we direct the Clerk to file it in this cause.

Unless the mandate which we now formulate be stayed on Toledo Company's motion filed within five days, the Clerk is directed to issue and transmit to the court below the following mandate:

(1) Enter of record our affirmance of the final decree on accounting.

(2) Enjoin Toledo Company from further maintaining its Ohio bill and from filing elsewhere any similar bill.

(3) Enter summary decree against the sureties on the supersedeas bonds for the amount due upon the accounting decree, including all costs in both courts, but not exceeding the penalties of the bonds.

(4) Ascertain Computing Company's expenses in this matter including reasonable attorney's fees, paid or incurred since the Supreme Court's denial of the petition for writ of certiorari on January 9th, 1922, and enter summary decree therefor against Toledo Company but not against the sureties in the supersedeas bonds. (281 Fed. Rep. 488.)

The patent, the subject of controversy in this case was for an automatic computing scale issued to one Smith in September, 1895 (545,616), and reissued April 28, 1896 (11,536). It related to improvements in weighing scales wherein the weight and selling price could be seen by the weigher at a glance without mental calculation. It consisted of a pan weighing device attached to an indicator drum inside of a casing with a slot through which the figures on the drum as it revolved in response to the effect of the weight would so coordinate with figures on the casing as to show the weight and correct price on the same line. The patentee in his specifications admitted that the general combination was an old one but said that the object of his improvement was to provide scales, extraordinarily sensitive to weights of small amount, and accurately registering them. He explained that an essential feature of the indicator drum in his improvement was that it should be made of very light material because scales of this kind theretofore, would not weigh alike successively, due to the inertia of the revolving drum, the force required to operate it, and the difficulty of stopping, and so he had constructed his drum of a skeleton frame of aluminum with a periphery of a thin sheet of paper.

The claims in controversy were:

5. An indicator drum for weighing mechanism consisting of a spindle provided with a plurality of skeleton frames of light material and secured to said spindle, and having secured to their periphones a sheet of paper forming a cylinder.

6. An indicator drum for weighing mechanism consisting of a spindle provided with a plurality of skeleton disks or frames of thin aluminum, having a sheet of paper extending around and secured to their periphones to form a cylinder.

The Computing Scale Company and the Toledo Scale Company were competitors in business. The former had acquired the Smith patent by the purchase of the assets of the Boston Computing Scale Company, and before 1906 was manufacturing scales using the Smith cylindrical drum in competition with scales of the Toledo Company having a fan-shaped registering dial. There had been patent suits between them concerning other parts of the weighing mechanism than the indicator. Each had other patents in this field. In 1906, the Toledo Company did not give up its fan-shaped scales, but began the manufacture of scales with an indicator drum of skeleton aluminum frame and paper periphery and so increased its sales of them so that they ultimately constituted the larger part of its business. This led to two suits by the Computing Scale Company in 1907 against the Toledo Company in the District Court for the Northern District of Ohio. Nothing was done with them until the suit at bar was brought in the District Court for Northern Illinois in 1910. Then, as a condition of getting extension of time to take evidence herein, the Computing Scale Company was required by the court to dismiss the Ohio suits. In its answer to the bill in this case, filed in August, 1910, the Toledo Company alleged that the Smith patent and the claims 5 and 6 had been anticipated by a patent granted to one Phinney in 1870 and further averred anticipation—by reason of prior public use and sale by various persons at various places and among others at Pawtucket by William H. Phinney, then and now, as defendant is informed and believed residing at said Pawtucket.

On the trial, the Toledo Company's expert testified that he had built a Phinney scale following the patent to Phinney, but that he could not get it to stop twice within an ounce of the same weight, and that a scale which would not weigh within a very small fraction of an ounce was not an instrument of precision and not a commercial article at all. It should be said that the specifications of the Phinney patent made no reference to the material of which the cylinder of the scales was to be made or its weight or the importance of those features. The district court held that the fourth and fifth claims of the Smith patent were valid and this was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals, April 15, 1913 (208 Fed. 410, 413), holding that Smith had put in the hands of the world's vendors of commodities the first usable computing scale, that long before the "paper" art, including a patent to Phinney in 1870, had proposed to teach practical scale makers how to build automatic computing scales, but all attempts to make them were failures, that in the 25 years between Phinney and Smith the brightest and most skilful men had sought the necessarily tremendous commercial success of a reliable computing scale but had not found it until Smith had the happy conception that the lightest possible drum would secure the required accuracy of revolution and stopping.

On May 13, 1913, the Toledo Company made a motion in the circuit court of appeals that the court include in its mandate affirming the decree of the district court for an accounting, leave to rehear the cause and to permit the Toledo Company to introduce proof that computing scales had been made and sold and introduced into use by the patentee Phinney of Pawtucket, R. I., which had a cylinder drum of light wood skeleton covered with thin paper and anticipated the drum of Smith. Three Phinney scales and thirteen supporting affidavits were introduced. These included one of the son of Phinney, the patentee, who had been with his father during his manufacture and sale of the scales until his death and who still lived at Pawtucket, of Phinney's widow, and also those of residents of Pawtucket who said they had bought and used the scales. The affidavit also disclosed that in a suit against the Federal Company for infringement of the Smith patent brought by the Computing Scale Company in Philadelphia, which never came to trial, all this evidence had been taken and was on file. The three Phinney scales which were exhibits there had been in the custody of Church and Church who had been counsel for the Computing Scale Company in Philadelphia. It was also shown that the Computing Scale Company had three or four of these scales and drums in their possession at Dayton. It also appeared from young Phinney's affidavit that the Boston Computing Company, which owned the Smith patent and which subsequently was bought out by the complainant Computing Scale Company was trying to buy the scales which Phinney had. The evidence tended to show that only twenty scales had been made by Phinney, and that no scales were made after 1895. The president of the Toledo Company in his affidavit excused failure earlier to discover this evidence by saying that the company made every effort to learn of prior use. His counsel explained that he had been led away from investigation into manufacture of Phinney scales at Pawtucket which was not visited by agents of the Toledo Company till after June, 1912, by the fact that the model of the Phinney patent at the Patent Office was of only a small one of solid wood and not of light material, and that he only acquired knowledge of Phinney's manufacture and use of scales with indicator drums by accident after June, 1912, from counsel for defendant in a suit brought by the Computing Company against the Standard Company in 1911. There was no direct charge in these 1913 affidavits that the Computing Scale Company was purchasing and gathering in these Phinney scales to conceal them, but there were averments in the affidavits which were only relevant to sustain such a charge and were evidently inserted for that purpose. The 1913 motion for a rehearing was overruled by the circuit court of appeals.

The case went back for an accounting, and in 1917 the Toledo Company took depositions of the witnesses whose affidavits had been filed in 1913 and sought to use the evidence to reduce the damages by showing what kind of a scale might have been constructed by the Toledo Company without infringing the Smith patent, but the evidence was not given weight for that purpose. The expert of the Toledo Company in these depositions said he did not test the Phinney scales of wood and paper cylinders when they were in the custody of the Toledo Company because he did not think they would weigh properly. The district court confirmed the master's report of the accounting and made a decree accordingly for $420,000. This was carried on appeal to the circuit court of appeals, which affirmed it in October, 1921. 279 Fed. 648.

The Toledo Company at the same time again made a motion for leave to open up the case that it might introduce the evidence contained in the affidavits presented in May, 1913, and the depositions taken in 1917, and retry the issue of validity of the patent and show its invalidity by reason of the Phinney prior manufacture, sale and use. In brief of counsel urging the granting of this motion for the Toledo Company, it was said:

To refuse to consider the evidence in the present record respecting the Phinney scale, as affecting the validity of the patent in suit, would be to permit the plaintiff to take advantage of essential facts known to it and unknown to the defendant or the court and its consequent imposition on both.

In the subsequently-filed petition for certiorari to this Court, counsel for the Toledo Company, in discussing this same issue, said:

The affidavits further showed that plaintiff had full knowledge of the Phinney scales for more than ten years, that evidence and numerous samples of them had been introduced in a suit which plaintiff had brought at Philadelphia ten years earlier upon the reissued patent here in suit, that the prosecution of said suit had been abandoned because of such evidence and that plaintiff had suppressed and concealed such fact from the Court and defendant throughout the litigation in the present cause.

The motion to reopen the case was denied by the circuit court of appeals (279 Fed. 674). An application to review this October, 1921, decree by certiorari was made and was denied by this Court January 9, 1922 (257 U. S. 267).

At once, the Toledo Company filed its bill in the United States Court for the Northern District of Ohio, which is summarized by the circuit court of appeals in its opinion (281 Fed. 488, 491). It charged that since 1901, the Computing Company had formed a conspiracy with certain of its officers and agents to monopolize the computing scale business of the country and to put the Toledo Company out of business, that in 1902 it built and sold a dishonest scale that the Toledo Company exposed in circulars which the Computing Company sought, but failed to enjoin, that this increased its malicious hatred toward the Toledo Company, that then the Toledo Company was making a fan scale which on the strength of patents held by it the Computing Company sought unsuccessfully to enjoin, but dismissed the suits without a trial, that in 1901 the Computing Company brought suit in the Eastern Pennsylvania district to enjoin the Federal Company from infringing the Smith patent and introduced three Phinney scales as exhibits in evidence and depositions already referred to, that the suit was dismissed because the Computing Company was advised by counsel that the Phinney defense was dangerous, and that the exhibits were by stipulation retained by counsel for the Federal Company who lent them to counsel for Computing Company in whose custody they were until after the issue of validity had been decided in Chicago in favor of the Computing Company, that a suit brought against one Randall in Pennsylvania in 1901, and against the Standard Company in Wisconsin in 1911, on the Smith patent, by the Computing Company, had been dismissed after production of similar evidence of the Phinney prior use, that after 1906 the Computing Company secretly purchased and took into its possession all the Phinney scales it could get, being all of the 20 which Phinney ever made, except one or two then in the hands of users and except those in the Federal, Randall and Standard suits, that these purchases were made in pursuance of the conspiracy, secretly and fraudulently for the purpose of preventing the Toledo Company and the District Court of Northern Illinois and the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Seventh Circuit from learning of the Phinney commercial practice, that the Toledo Company made diligent effort and investigation to find the Phinney commercial practice and also evidence of the Computing Company's fraudulent suppression of evidence thereof, that while Toledo Company had had knowledge of the Phinney commercial practice since 1913, it had no knowledge of Computing Company's fraudulent suppression thereof until December 20, 1921, which was after the affirmance of the accounting decree. The bill further averred that counsel for the Computing Company in 1913, in their brief on appeal from the district court in this case said that Phinney had never made a successful scales or put it on the market which the Computing Company knew to be false and that this deceived the Toledo Company and its counsel into damaging admissions in the Circuit Court of Appeals as to the material of which Phinney's scales were actually made.

This bill was supported by the same evidence used in the Seventh Circuit applications of 1913 and 1921 and also by the affidavit of one Koehne, who said that he was a patent lawyer and solicitor and had been in the employ of the Computing Company for a number of years, that he was privy to the conspiracy charged in the bill and a participant in it, but that the counsel employed to defend the various patent suits referred to in the bill were not, and that the agents and managers of the Computing Company with whom he worked and talked were dead.

Mr. George D. Welles and Mr. Frederick P. Fish, with whom Mr. Edward Rector, Mr. Harry W. Morgan, Mr. Thos. H. Tracy, Mr. Rathbun Fuller, and Mr. Horace Kent Tenney were on the briefs, for Toledo Scale Company.

Mr. Charles Markell, with whom Mr. Edward Osgood Brown and Mr. Edwin J. Marshall were on the brief, for Fidelity & Deposit Company of Maryland et al.

Mr. John M. Zane, with whom Mr. Charles F. Morse and Mr. Drury W. Cooper were on the briefs, for Computing Scale Company.

Mr. Chief Justice TAFT, after stating the case as above, delivered the opinion of the Court.

It is insisted by counsel for the petitioner that it is within our power and it is our duty on this writ to go into the merits of the issue of the validity of the Smith patent and of the correctness of the money decree for profits. We were asked to do this by an application for writ of certiorari which we denied January 9, 1922 (257 U. S. 657). The decree then sought to be reviewed was entered in October, 1921. The application for this second writ of certiorari which we are now considering was not made until May 22, 1922, more than three months after the final decree in the circuit court of appeals for the payment of profits. Section 6 of act of September 6, 1916 (ch. 448, 39 Stat. 726, 727) directs:

> That no writ of error, appeal or writ of certiorari intended to bring up any cause for review by the Supreme Court shall be allowed or entertained unless duly applied for within three months after entry of the judgment or decree complained of.

[1] This deprives us of jurisdiction to consider the merits of the decree of October, 1921.

The case of Hamilton Shoe Company v. Wolf Brothers, 240 U. S. 251; 225 O. G. 1441, is cited to sustain a contrary view, but it fails to do so. In that case, a writ of certiorari had been applied for to this Court to review an interlocutory decree of the circuit court of appeals and denied. The case went back to the district court for a final accounting for infringement of a trade-mark and after a final decree for profits came again to the circuit court of appeals and was affirmed. Then a second application was made for a certiorari and it was allowed. The respondent contended that this Court could not review the whole case including the merits of the interlocutory decree because of the denial of the first application for certiorari. We held that the denial constituted no bar because the decree sought then to be reviewed was not final. Our power to grant writs of certiorari extends to interlocutory as well as final decrees; and a mere denial of the writ to an interlocutory ruling of the circuit court of appeals does not limit our power to review the whole case when it is brought here by our certiorari on final decree. In the case before us, the decree of October, 1921, which we declined to review in January, 1922, was a final decree and we are expressly denied power to review it after three months.

What we are to consider on this writ is whether the circuit court of appeals on the petition for a rule against the Toledo Company had anything presented to it in the record in the Ohio court which required it to stay its hand in using available process to enforce its final decree. We are very clear that it had not. It has been necessary to make an elaborate statement to show the complicated facts; but when they are arrayed in order so as to be understood, there is no escape from the conclusion that the action of the Ohio court could not, and should not interfere with or stay the due course of proceedings to enforce the Seventh Circuit decree.

The application to the circuit court of appeals in 1913 to frame its mandate so as to permit that court to rehear the issue on the merits of the validity of the patent already found and affirmed by both courts, was addressed to the discretion of that court and that was exercised to deny the application, presumably because the application showed on its face a lack of the due diligence in not producing the alleged newly discovered evidence in time to have presented it to the trial court at the hearing on the merits in June, 1912. The Toledo Company had been advised of the claim of its infringement of the Smith patent within a year after it began to make and sell the aluminum cylinder scale in 1906 by two suits of the Computing Scale Company and its attention had been directed to the necessity of preparing for a defense. This was further stipulated by the Chicago suit, the one at bar, in 1910, in which the Toledo Company filed an answer averring among other defenses that the Smith patent had been anticipated not only by the Phinney patent itself but by prior manufacture, sale and commercial use by Phinney of scales which embraced the device whose invention was claimed by Smith, and that this prior use was at Pawtucket, R. I.

In spite of this, the agents and counsel of the Toledo Company never visited Pawtucket before the hearing on the validity of the Smith patent in June, 1912. The only reason for this failure is the suggestion that the model of the cylinder deposited by Phinney in the Patent Office with his application was a small solid wooden cylinder, not full size, which led counsel to think that no practice under the patent would show lightness of material and weight. It was a matter of equitable discretion for the circuit court of appeals to determine whether this was sufficient excuse. Hopkins v. Hebard, 235 U. S. 287. Certainly it was not an abuse of its discretion to hold that it was not a good one. The natural and obvious course of one tracing out evidence of prior commercial use of Phinney which was formally averred in the Toledo Company's bill to have taken place at Pawtucket, would have been to go to Pawtucket and look up Phinney, or, if dead, his family and successors. Had this course been pursued, Phinney's widow and son would have been found there and several of those whose affidavits and depositions are now produced who say that they bought and used the Phinney scales made with light wood and paper cylinders. From those witnesses, too, the investigator would have been led directly to the proceedings in Federal Company suit in Philadelphia, the record of which contained all this evidence, and he would have found without difficulty the three original Phinney scales that were exhibits in that case. Nor can we say that it was an abuse of discretion for the circuit court of appeals to refuse a similar application, made in October, 1921, to open up the case to permit a rehearing of an issue, settled nine years before, when the evidence as to the lack of diligence of the Toledo Company was just the same.

[2] It is unnecessary to determine whether the applications of 1913 and 1921 come within the proper definition of a bill of review in a court of chancery. It is enough to say that whether they were merely motions for rehearing, like a motion for new trial at law, or were applications in the nature of a bill of review, they were addressed to the sound discretion of the Court, and based as they were upon the ground of newly discovered evidence, the indispensable condition of their being granted was that the failure to discover the evidence in time for the trial was not due to a lack of diligence on the part of the applicant. That condition precedent was not fulfilled.

[3] Do the additional facts averred in the bill filed in the Ohio court change the situation? It is said they show extrinsic fraud committed by the Computing Scale Company upon proof of which a court of equity, although in another jurisdiction, having jurisdiction of the parties may enjoin the one guilty of the fraud from profiting by a decree so obtained. There has been much discussion as to whether extrinsic fraud is here alleged, and the case of United States v. Throckmorton, 98 U. S. 61, is cited and numerous other authorities since that case. We do not find ourselves obliged to enter upon a consideration of the sometimes nice distinctions made between intrinsic and extrinsic frauds in the application of the rule, because in any case to justify setting aside a decree for fraud whether extrinsic or intrinsic, it must appear that the fraud charged really prevented the party complaining from making a full and fair defense. If it does not so appear, then proof of the ultimate fact, to wit, that the decree was obtained by fraud, fails. That is the case here.

The allegations of the bill and of the affidavits are of a conspiracy by the inner circle of the Computing Scale Company's agents commenced in 1902, years before the Toledo Company began to make and sell cylinder drum scales, to monopolize the business of making and selling scales, to put the Toledo Company out of business, and after it began to make cylinder scales, to prevent it from so doing by suits brought on the Smith patent which it knew to be invalid because of the Phinney prior use. In pursuance of the conspiracy it is charged that it proceeded to buy up and keep from the Toledo Company knowledge of, and access to, the Phinney scales. Proof is adduced to show that the Computing Scale Company did buy up as many of the Phinney scales as it could secure. But there is not anywhere in the record, which we can find, or which has been pointed out to us, any real evidence that the Toledo Company was, in the slightest degree, interfered with by acts of the Computing Company in its search for evidence of the Phinney prior use. Had the Toledo Company found, as it might easily have done, the witnesses in Pawtucket, it would have found the oral evidence as to the existence of the Phinney scales and would have been led directly to the Philadelphia suit where it would have found the cylinders it did find after June 1912. Moreover there were the Randall suit in Philadelphia in 1901 and the Standard suit in Wisconsin where other Phinney scales were also exhibits and open to inspection by the Toledo Company before 1912. There is not a scintilla of evidence to show any effort on the part of the Computing Scale Company to induce any witnesses not to testify, or to spirit them away from contact with the Toledo Company. There is nothing to show that if the Computing Scale Company had not bought the Phinney scales, the Toledo Company would have found them any earlier. The passages in the brief on behalf of the Computing Company in the first hearing of the case on appeal in the circuit court of appeals which stated that Phinney had not made scales for commercial use had reference of course to the record before the court, were made after the trial in the district court and so could not have misled the Toledo Company in its preparation for that trial. The conclusion is unavoidable that the only cause of the failure of the Toledo Company to produce this Phinney evidence was the mistake of the counsel for the Toledo Company in assuming that an inadequate model in the Patent Office filed by Phinney showed no relevant prior use by him, and the failure of the Toledo Company's agents to take the ordinary and obvious course to make adequate inquiry at Pawtucket as to the prior use which it had averred in the bill. Certainly the Computing Scale Company was not responsible for the inadequacy of Phinney's model or for the failure of the Toledo Company to make the inquiry before June 1912. The averments as to conspiracy to monopolize, and to drive the Toledo Company out of business and the details of the purchase of Phinney scales are all irrelevant because they are not shown to have had any causal connection with the failure of the Toledo Company to find out earlier what it did stumble on in 1913.

[4] We do not understand it to be contended that there was any relation between the Computing Scale Company and the Toledo Company which made it the duty of the former to furnish evidence to the latter to weaken its own case or that silence in respect to the Phinney scales constituted that kind of fraud which would invalidate the decree unless it was accompanied by acts which actually prevented the Toledo Company's finding and availing itself of such evidence. Clearly there is no such rule of law in a case like this.

[5] Another aspect of this record leads to the same conclusion. However nice the distinction between extrinsic and intrinsic fraud, we have been cited to no case where it has been held that fraud is extrinsic when the court rendering the decree attacked had before it the same issue of fraud on the same facts, only a little more elaborated as to the motive of the party charged with committing it. The necessary inference from the affidavits filed in May, 1913, by the Toledo Company, and its depositions in 1917, and its motion and briefs in 1921, in the circuit court of appeals, was that the Computing Scale Company had been securing Phinney scales with a view of concealing them from the Toledo Company, and these were all before the circuit court of appeals when it finally refused to open the decree on its merits in 1921 to let in the evidence. It did not add to the weight of that evidence for the purpose for which it could be used in either court, that this was the result of a conspiracy to monopolize trade or that it grew out of a malicious feeling toward the Toledo Company. What the District Court for Northern Ohio was doing in hearing the injunction suit and issuing a temporary injunction was merely reviewing the discretion of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Seventh Circuit in dealing with the same ultimate facts and reaching a different conclusion. This was beyond its province. Embry v. Palmer, 107 U. S. 3, 11; Telford v. Brinkerhoff, 163 Ill. 439, 443; Marine Ins. Co. v. Hodgson, 7 Cranch. 332.

[6] It is pressed upon us that the amount of this decree which by reason of growing interest will considerably exceed half a million dollars, is such that its enforcement may be ruinous to the Toledo Company, and yet that company has never had an opportunity to bring to a hearing this evidence of the Phinney prior commercial use which on the showing and argument is clearly a complete defense to a suit prosecuted by an unscrupulous competitor, conscious all the time of its falsity and injustice. This view of the case is not a fair one. The Toledo Company had a chance to make a defense of the Phinney prior use and failed to do so because of its own lack of diligence. As it did not secure a hearing of the Phinney defense, its opponent had no chance to meet it, as possibly it might have done by showing that the use relied on was a futile one because the Phinney scale as made was not practical or did not weigh accurately or accomplish the purpose of the Smith patent. The fact that but 20 machines were made, and that these ceased to be used years ago or were destroyed, suggests the probability of such an answer. We can not know what the result of the hearing would have been on this issue if tried, because only one side is presented. We are prevented from knowing it by a most salutary rule of law which after parties have had a full and fair opportunity to prepare their case, refuses to permit them to drag out litigation by bringing in new evidence which with due diligence they ought to have discovered before the hearing. The apparent hardship of particular cases should not and can not weigh against the application of this sound principle. As Mr. Justice Story remarked in Potter v. Ocean Insurance Company, 2 Story 59 (18 Fed. Cases 532):

> It is for the public interest and policy to make an end to litigation, or, as was pointedly said by a great jurist, that suits may not be immortal while men are mortal.

[7] The surety companies object to the order of the circuit court of appeals directing the district court to enter summary judgment against them for the amount due on the decree, because it causes them to pay a decree which the Toledo Company, their principal, deposited in Toledo banks enough money to their order to pay, but which a court of competent jurisdiction enjoins them from paying, or from using this money to pay. They say they are to be ground between the upper and the nether millstones. They say they are indifferent between the parties and only wish to be protected. The order which the circuit court of appeals directed against them was within its jurisdiction. Pease v. Rathbun-Jones Engineering Co., 243 U. S. 273, 278. It was right, was final, and they must obey it. They can appeal from the order of the Ohio court. Indeed we are advised that the cause is now pending on appeal in the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit. If they satisfy the decree of the Seventh Circuit, they can be reasonably confident that they will not be required to suffer a double burden. The Circuit Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit is not likely to ignore the ruling of this Court in the premises; and the cause pending in the Sixth Circuit can be brought within the jurisdiction of this Court at any time by certiorari.

[8, 9] It is objected that the circuit court of appeals had no power to direct the district court to enjoin the Toledo Company from further maintaining its Ohio bill or from filing elsewhere any similar bill. It is also objected that it can not direct the district court to assess the Computing Company's expenses including a reasonable attorney's fee in the matter of the Ohio bill and to enter a summary decree therefor. We think these orders were within the power of the circuit court of appeals. This Ohio proceeding was instituted to halt and defeat the decree of the circuit court of appeals, while that decree was still in that court to be enforced by mandate to the lower court. Under section 262 of the Judicial Code, that court had the right to issue all writs not specifically provided for by statute which might be necessary for the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. It could, therefore, itself have enjoined the Toledo Company from interfering with the execution of its own decree, Merrimac River Savings Bank v. Clay Center, 219 U. S. 527, 535; or it could direct the district court to do so, as it did, Supreme Tribe of Ben Hur v. Cauble, 255 U. S. 356; Steel Company v. R. R. Supply Co., 244 U. S. 294, 299; 239 O. G. 654; Kessler v. Eldred, 206 U. S. 285; 128 O. G. 1690. Moreover, when the character of the proceeding initiated by the Toledo Company, a party before it, to stop the execution of its decree was disclosed on a full hearing on the petition for a rule against the Toledo Company, it had jurisdiction to determine whether the filing and maintenance of the bill was in contempt of its jurisdiction. New Orleans v. New York S. S. Co., 20 Wall. 387, 392; Swift v. Black Panther Oil & Gas Co., 244 Fed. Rep. 20, 29; and finding it to be so, to punish it by a compensatory imposition, Merrimac River Savings Bank v. Clay Center, 219 U. S. 527, 535; or to remand it to the district court to do so.

[10] What we are considering here is the rightful course of a court which having entered a final decree is proceeding upon the application of the successful party in the decree to put it into lawful execution. It is advised by this party that the quasi parties, the sureties who have made themselves directly liable upon summary process for prompt payment of the decree, have been enjoined from complying with their obligation to the court by a court of another jurisdiction, that the successful party has also been enjoined from seeking enforcement of the decree, and all this at the suit of the party condemned in the decree to pay and on the ground of fraud exercised upon the court itself in obtaining the decree. If the successful party though thus enjoined, is willing to risk punishment for contempt by the enjoining court, and applies for enforcement of the decree, the court whose decree it is, is clearly not ousted of jurisdiction to proceed to execute it. The proceeding in the enjoining court is solely in personam and does not affect the power or functions of the court whose decree is in question. If advised that there is real ground for impeachment of its decree, it may in its discretion stay its hand until the issue is determined in another court of competent jurisdiction, but if upon examination it finds no such ground advanced, it may properly proceed to secure to the successful party the fruits of his litigation. If the defeated party in his suit in another jurisdiction only seeks to restrain the successful party from prosecuting his decree to payment, there should be unusual circumstances of disrespect to the court entering the decree to justify punishment for contempt. But when he unites in his new suit for an injunction the sureties who, as quasi parties, are obliged to respond to the decree in the course of execution, he puts himself in contempt of the court whose decree it is, and may be punished for it. In the former case he is merely restraining a party who, without disobedience or disrespect to any obligation to the court making the decree, has full discretion and liberty to withhold his hand in pressing it to execution. In the latter case, he is obstructing the process of the court in a proceeding in which its action has been properly and lawfully invoked. The degree of punishment for contempt in such case is in the discretion of the court whose dignity has been offended and whose process has been obstructed. New Orleans v. The New York Steamship Company, 20 Wallace 387. Certainly it was not an abuse of discretion in this case to impose as a penalty, compensation for the expenses incurred by the successful party to the decree in defending its rights in the Ohio court.

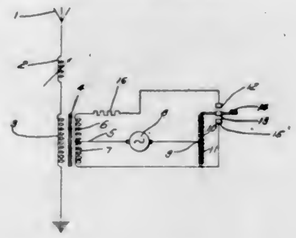
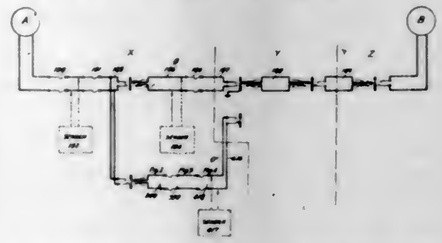
1. The combination with a driving member, of a hollow shaft therefor, a flexible shaft having one of its ends secured to the hollow shaft intermediate the ends thereof, and its other end extending to a point beyond one of the ends of the hollow shaft, a bearing for the hollow shaft, a sleeve member in juxtaposition to said hollow shaft embracing the outer end of the flexible shaft, a gear member carried by the sleeve, and a bearing for the sleeve member.

1,506,740. BRUSH-HOLDER SPRING. GEORGE M. EATON, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 24, 1921. Serial No. 472,116. 2 Claims. (Cl. 171—324.)



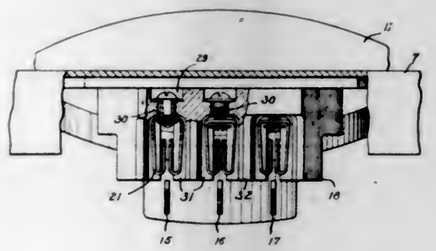
1. The combination with a spring, of a second member connected to a free end thereof, the points of connection being bounded by a line of greater length than the width of the spring.

1,506,741. LUBRICATING DEVICE. RALPH EHRENFELD, East Pittsburgh, Pa., and ANDREW A. KUCHER, Jersey City, N. J., assignors to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 14, 1921. Serial No. 469,446. 7 Claims. (Cl. 64—24.)



1. In combination, a housing having a reservoir therein provided with a substantially vertical passageway through one wall thereof, said housing being also provided with an overflow passage communicating with said passageway extending laterally through one of the side walls thereof and opening into the outside atmosphere, and a hollow member adapted to move longitudinally within said passageway and close said passageway and overflow passage when in one position and to open said overflow passage and permit the introduction of liquid into said passageway when in another position.

1,506,742. MODULATING SYSTEM. CHARLES LE G. FORTESCUE, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 25, 1921. Serial No. 480,372. 19 Claims. (Cl. 250—19.)

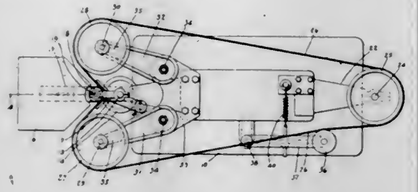


1. A modulating system including a main inductance winding having an intermediate tap, an auxiliary inductance winding having an intermediate tap, a translating device connected between said intermediate taps and means for changing the relation of said translating device to said main inductance so that the inductive reactance thereof either is, or is not, effectively related to said translating device.

1,506,743. TELEPHONE EXCHANGE SYSTEM. JOHN W. GOODERHAM, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 16, 1920. Serial No. 417,422. 14 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

1. In a telephone exchange system, an originating office, a second office, a trunk line extending between said offices, a subscriber's line terminating in said first office, means for extending a connection from said subscriber's line to said trunk line, and means at said first office for maintaining another connection with said subscriber's line after said first mentioned connection has been disestablished.

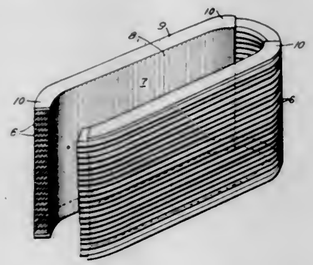
1,506,744. FLOATING CONTACT TERMINAL. LEWIS J. GREENAWALT, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to Westinghouse Electric Products Company, a Corporation of Michigan. Filed June 30, 1921. Serial No. 481,533. 6 Claims. (Cl. 219—37.)



1. In an electric heating device, the combination with a support, and an insulating member mounted on said support, of a combined connector and contact terminal loosely mounted on said insulating member.

1,506,745. CORNER-SMOOTHING MACHINE FOR GLASSWARE. HARRY O. GRIFFITH, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Marietta Manufacturing Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation. Filed Nov. 15, 1922. Serial No. 601,183. 9 Claims. (Cl. 51—135.)

1. A machine of the character described, comprising an endless abrasive belt, means for driving said belt, corner pulley about which said belt is adapted to pass, and a third pulley positioned intermediate said corner pulleys and engaging the opposite abrasive surface of said belt for maintaining said belt in a given curvature against which the corners of the work may be engaged.



2. A machine of the character described, comprising an endless abrasive belt, means for driving said belt, a pair of pulleys pivotally mounted on said machine about which said belt is adapted to pass, means for adjusting the position of said pulleys, and a third pulley positioned intermediate said pulleys out of the plane therebetween and engaging the opposite abrasive surface of said belt for maintaining the same at a given curvature for grinding the corners of the work to the curvature thereof.

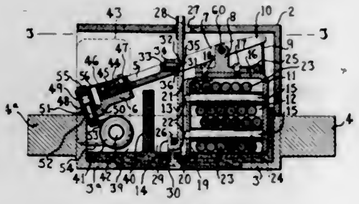
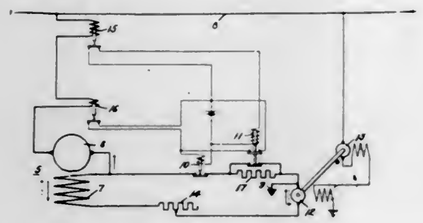
1,506,746. FIELD-COIL-INSULATING SHIELD. ISRAEL L. GRIFFITH, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 12, 1920. Serial No. 423,612. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—252.)



1. In a dynamo-electric machine, the combination with a pole piece and a coil, of an insulating member comprising a channel member of insulating material provided with extremities curved in an arc of less than 90° and adapted to be removably disposed between said coil and said pole piece.

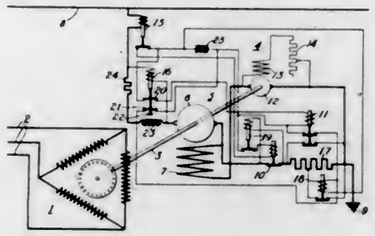
1,506,747. TELEPHONE-EXCHANGE SYSTEM. JOHN A. HALL, Bayside, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 1, 1919. Serial No. 327,733. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

1. In a telephone system, telephone lines, switches for extending said lines, groups of trunks, senders for said lines, switching means for further extending said lines to a trunk in any one of said groups, and means associated with certain calling lines, whereby said switching means is automatically operated, when a certain trunk group is dialed, to extend the calling line to an idle trunk in a different group.



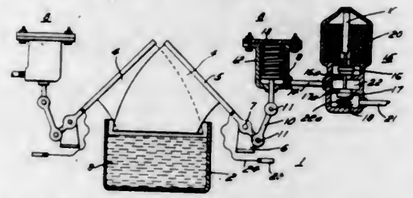
1,506,748. ELECTROMAGNETIC FUSE. JOHN W. HAYWOOD, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Horne Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 1, 1920. Serial No. 393,387. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—106.)

1. In an electromagnetic fuse, a contact plate, an extension therefrom, an arm adapted to contact with said extension and forming the main circuit, a magnetic coil arranged adjacent said plate and having one of its ends electrically connected therewith, an insulating bushing extending through said extension and a pin extending through said bushing and in electrical contact with the other end of said coil to form a secondary or blow-out circuit, adjacent to said main circuit.



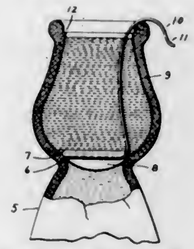
4. An electromagnetic fuse, comprising a narrow movable base having terminals on the ends thereof adapted to fit between fuse-clips, a generally longitudinal breaker-arm on said base, electromagnetic means controlling the release of said arm, a stationary contact connected with one of the fuse-clip terminals and disposed over the forward part of the base to cooperate with the forward part of the breaker-arm, and a magnetic blow-out having a core and coil in a chamber beneath said contact and in rear of said terminal and magnetic side pieces arranged adjacent the ends of the core of said blow-out coil and embracing the region of the break of the main contact.

1,506,749. PROTECTIVE APPARATUS FOR GENERATORS. RUDOLF E. HELLMUND, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 9, 1918. Serial No. 227,420. 9 Claims. (Cl. 171—223.)



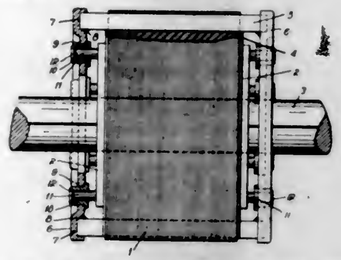
1. The combination with a generator provided with an exciting field winding, of an exciting source connected to said field winding, a load circuit connected to said generator, and automatic means whereby, if the load current delivered to said load circuit exceeds a predetermined amount, an electromotive force which is inherently dependent upon the load current is developed in the circuit of said field winding in opposition to the electromotive force of said exciting means.

1,506,750. OVERLOAD PROTECTION FOR GENERATORS. RUDOLF E. HELLMUND, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 10, 1919. Serial No. 343,865. 29 Claims. (Cl. 171—223.)



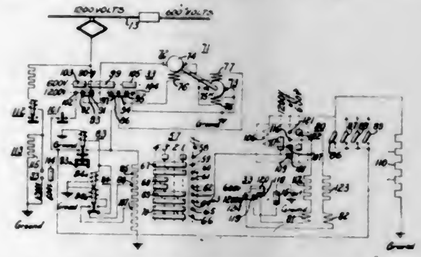
1. In combination with a dynamo-electric machine, means governed by overload current conditions for opening the generating load circuit thereof, and means for preventing the closing of said circuit until the possibility of excessive load current flow is removed.

1,506,751. LIQUID RHEOSTAT. RUDOLF E. HELLMUND, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 15, 1921. Serial No. 477,688. 10 Claims. (Cl. 219—57.)



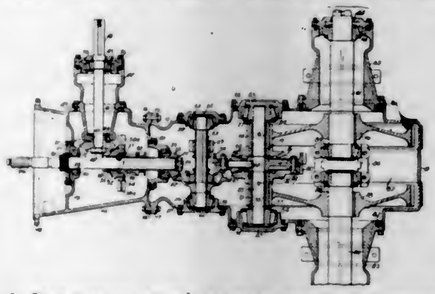
1. In a liquid rheostat, the combination with a tank, of an electrode, power-actuated means for lowering said electrode in said tank and automatic means for raising said electrode in said tank.

1,506,752. SEPARATOR FOR MILK BOTTLES. HERBERT E. HILL, Albany, N. Y., assignor to Cream Top Bottle Corporation, Albany, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 3, 1922. Serial No. 579,537. 3 Claims. (Cl. 31—85.)



3. A separator for use with a milk bottle which presents an upwardly facing seat at approximately the cream line, said separator comprising a curved disk of non-flexible material and a handle rigidly fixed to the edge of the disk and provided with a curved end, said handle being of such length that when the disk is placed on the seat of the bottle with which the separator is to be used, such curved end will lie over the edge of the mouth of the bottle.

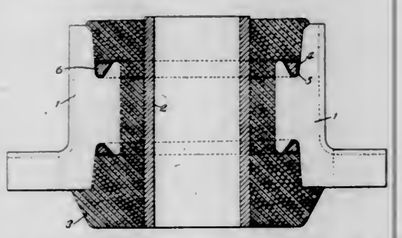
1,506,753. SUPPORT FOR ROTOR WINDINGS. SAMUEL C. HOEY, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 14, 1921. Serial No. 469,677. 9 Claims. (Cl. 172—120.)



1. A rotor for dynamo-electric machines comprising a core member, a plurality of conductors carried by said core member, a support for said conductors and means for normally spacing said support an adjustable distance from said core with freedom of movement away from said core when said conductors are heated.

1,506,754. MOTOR-CONTROL SYSTEM. WILLIAM M. HUTCHISON, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 8, 1921. Serial No. 499,226. 14 Claims. (Cl. 172—179.)

2. In a control system, the combination with a translating device and a source of electrical energy, of a switch having an actuating coil for connecting said source to said device, and automatic means for de-energizing said coil upon the voltage from said source becoming greater than a predetermined value and for re-energizing said coil upon the cessation of said abnormal voltage.



1,506,755. TRANSMISSION MECHANISM. LESTER H. KEIM, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to R. D. Nuttall Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 15, 1919. Serial No. 311,002. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—58.)

1. In a tractor, a rear casing, a plurality of variable speed gear wheels mounted in said casing, an engine driven shaft, a gear wheel rotatably mounted thereon, an auxiliary shaft disposed perpendicular to said engine driven shaft having a gear wheel adapted to co-operate with said rotatably mounted wheel, a casing for housing said engine driven shaft and its co-operating gear wheels, said casing having a transverse partition for a bearing support and flanged ends for joining the same to the engine frame.

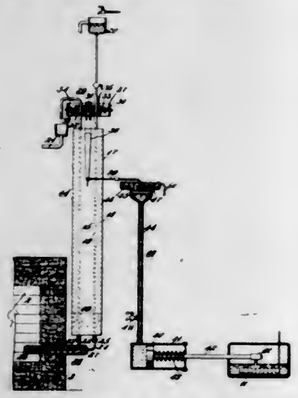
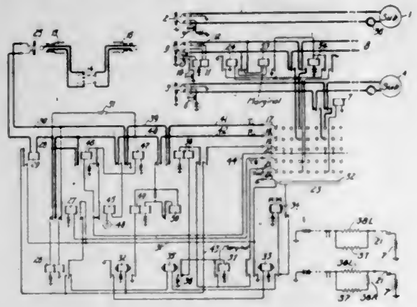
1,506,756. COMPOSITE MOLDED STRUCTURE. WILLARD H. KEMPTON, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 28, 1918. Serial No. 242,498. 15 Claims. (Cl. 171—321.)

9. A finished commutator structure comprising a plurality of commutator segments provided with notched portions for retaining said segments against centrifugal action, a plurality of rigid ring members disposed in operative relation to said notched portions for assisting in holding said segments together, an integral mass of molded material embedding said notched portions and ring members, and a layer of impregnated porous material surrounding each of said ring members and forming an integral mass with said molded material.



1,506,757. CONTROL SYSTEM. EDWIN S. LAMMERS, Jr., Elyria, Ohio, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 7, 1919. Serial No. 295,507. 8 Claims. (Cl. 172—152.)

2. The combination with an electric motor, a pair of normally open switches for closing the circuit of said motor and a switch mechanically connected to one of said normally open switches for directly closing a dynamic braking circuit for said motor when said one switch occupies its open position, of means for insuring the automatic closure of first said one normally open switch and then said other normally open switch to render said motor operative.

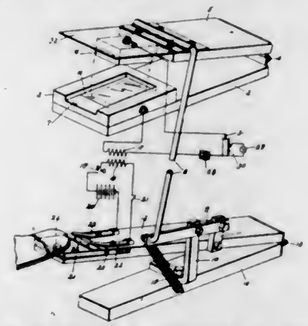


7. In a blast-furnace-charging mechanism, the combination with a bell motor and a skip-hoist motor, a pair of skips oppositely operable by said skip-hoist motor, a master switch for said skip-hoist motor and a limit switch momentarily operable by said skip-hoist motor to initiate the operation of said bell motor, of means for preventing said initiating operation until after the reversal of said skip-hoist motor.

1,506,758. FURNACE-REGULATOR SYSTEM. GEORGE M. LITTLE, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 29, 1920. Serial No. 420,406. 12 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

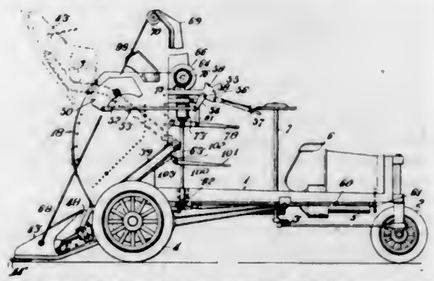
1. In a furnace-regulator system, the combination with a pair of tubes, and means for effecting relative elongation between said tubes in accordance with the temperature of the furnace, of means controlled by the relative elongation between said tubes for regulating the temperature of the furnace.

1,506,759. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. ALBEN E. LUNDELL, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 1, 1919. Serial No. 334,945. 4 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



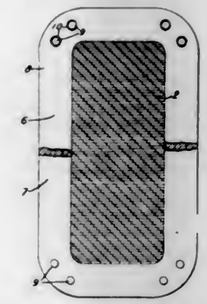
1. In a telephone system, lines and trunk lines, manual means for interconnecting said lines and for interconnecting said lines and said trunk lines, automatic switches, multiple terminal banks for said automatic switches, means individual to certain of said lines and said trunk lines for connecting said lines and trunk lines to said multiple terminal banks, means for connecting said switches to certain of said lines, and means responsive to said last lines for operating said switches to operate said individual means and establish connections to said lines and said trunks lines.

1,506,760. CALLING DEVICE. NOEL H. LYSONS, Montreal, Quebec, Canada, assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 24, 1922. Serial No. 563,185. 3 Claims. (Cl. 179—90.)



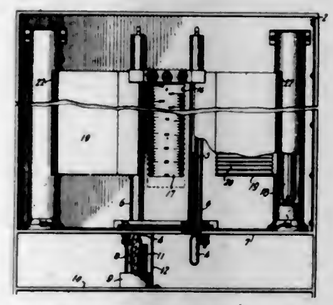
1. In an impulse sending device, a finger wheel for setting said device, contact springs, an interrupter for said contact springs, a motor spring for operating said device, and means integral with said motor spring for removing said contact springs from the control of said interrupter.

1,506,761. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR TESTING DIELECTRIC MATERIALS. BYRON MACPHERSON, Roxbury, Mass., assignor to Wireless Specialty Apparatus Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 2, 1920. Serial No. 407,820. 7 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)



3. A testing apparatus comprising, in combination, a pair of terminals adapted to engage the opposite faces of a sheet of dielectric, one of said terminals having a dimension less than the corresponding dimension of the sheet providing a margin on the sheet separating the terminals from each other, means for impressing a high potential on said terminals across said dielectric of an order to cause brushing around the margin when the sheet is good and a translucent member mounted between the observer and the location of brushing through which said brushing may be observed.

1,506,762. TRUCK. GEORGE MANIERRE, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 14, 1921. Serial No. 444,868. 31 Claims. (Cl. 214—78.)

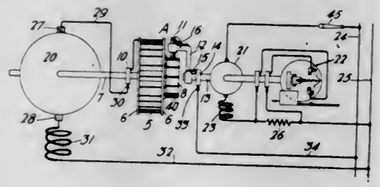


1. In combination with a truck a load carrying box having several compartments mounted on the truck, a load conveying element mounted on the truck and adapted to discharge into said box, the box being provided with a cam portion, and means on the conveying element cooperating with the cam portion on the box for positively enforcing discharge of the contents of the load conveying element into the several compartments of the box.

1,506,763. FIELD-COIL COLLAR. EMIL MATTMAN, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 31, 1918. Serial No. 269,147. 8 Claims. (Cl. 171—252.)

6. A spacing member comprising a metallic member provided with projections, and a similarly shaped insulating member provided with openings into which said projections fit loosely.

1,506,764. APPARATUS FOR AND METHOD OF RECORDING THE TEMPERATURE AND HUMIDITY OF THE ATMOSPHERE. DAVID T. MAY, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 9, 1921. Serial No. 483,393. 11 Claims. (Cl. 234—11.)



1. The method of recording temperature which comprises directing light rays upon a thermometer tube to form an image on a light-sensitive chart of that portion of the tube through which the rays pass, and simultaneously forming adjacent said image an image of a scale corresponding to the calibration of said thermometer.

4. In a recording device, an index, a transparent screen containing a scale, a light sensitive chart disposed on one side of said index, a source of light disposed on the opposite side of said index, and means for directing rays of light from said source upon said index and upon said screen for independently photographing said index and said scale upon said chart.

7. In a device for recording temperature, a thermometer, a scale corresponding to the calibration of said thermometer and independent thereof, a light-sensitive chart disposed on one side of said thermometer, a source of light disposed on the opposite side of said thermometer at an acute angle with said chart, means for photographing said scale upon said chart, means for directing rays from said source of light upon the indicating column of said thermometer, and means for forming adjacent the image of said scale an image of that portion of the indicating column of the thermometer above the liquid.

1,506,765. SYSTEM FOR CONTROLLING THE SPEED OF DYNAMO-ELECTRIC MACHINERY. FRANK W. MERRILL, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 17, 1921. Serial No. 470,474. 6 Claims. (Cl. 171—229.

1. In a system for regulating the speed of a dynamo electric machine, a varinble impedance device for controlling the current supply to the field of said machine, said impedance device comprising two rotary elements, one rotatable by the dynamo electric machine, the speed of which is to be regulated, and the other rotatable at a constant speed and means whereby one of said elements may be rotated by the other.
